Michigan Fiend Admits -:- Murder of Two -:- More Young Children

ADOLPH HOTELLING

Adolph Hotelling, 47, church elder of Ossowo, Mich., today confessed to killing two neighbors' children in addition to his fiend-slaying of Dorothy Schneider, 5, of Mt. Morris.

HAROLD LOTRIDGE

Harold Lotridge, of Ossowo, first drew attention to Hotelling by telling police he had dreamed the church elder did the killing. Arrest and confession followed.

DOROTHY SCHNEIDER

The body of little Dorothy was found in a creek, mutilated by severance of parts by a sharp instrument. A blood-stained knife was found in Hotelling's room. He has been placed under heavy guard at Flint, Mich..

"PAL" MOURNS FOR PLAYMATE

Here's "Pal," the Schneider dog, snapped by a photographer as he looks forlornly at Dorothy's doll, understanding that something is wrong but not just sure what has befallen his tiny mistress. The slayer is believed to have been the "Ape Man" who terrorized Ossowo women two years ago by his "Peeping Tom" tactics and his maniacal laugh which would suddenly be heard beneath a window.

MRS. BACON ARCHIE BACON JENNIE LAWRENCE

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Bacon and Jennie Lawrence saw a man answering Hotelling's description carry a bundle, now known to have been the body, into the woods the night of the murder. Bacon helped the slaying elder extract his car from a mudhole. Later he gave clues to authorities which proved invaluable in linking Hotelling with the crime. Bacon went to Flint yesterday and positively identified the churchman, as the man he aided and as the one seen carrying the bundle into the woods near his farmhouse.

GALLUP, N. M., Jan. 18.

THE beginning of our prohibition age which was to empty prisons, insane asylums and eventually put an end to crime is strangely the beginning of the worst crime age in our history. As you travel across this continent, the fourth trip for this writer within six weeks, newspapers bring you their stories of robberies, holdups, kidnapings and other crimes at every railroad station.

THE Winslow Daily Mail, only daily newspaper published in Northern Arizona, says in big type front page "jury probes double murder." Nearby a three column picture shows Ruth Snyder walking to the electric chair, her eyes fixed on a cross held before her and the electrician just beyond. The picture was sent by telephoto.

Science killed the woman, then sent through space pictures of the killing.

KILLING husbands all over this country usually, like the Snyder murder, have bootleg whisky for their mainspring. The Winslow Mail's Arizona murder has a western atmosphere.

John and Annie Tillman, married but separated, asked the assembled company to excuse them and stepped outside the ranch house. He had a .38 automatic, she a .32 calibre revolver. She dropped dead, then he dropped dead. Other newspapers along the line bring their tales of holdups, robberies and kidnapings with murders, with bootleg whisky playing a part in all. Something should be done to discourage bootleg whisky.

NEXT in news importance to well planned or impromptu killings came carefully organized prize fights on profits and legislative corruption. Messrs. Dempsey and Tunney will fight again next June. Fifty thousand fools will spend several millions to see that imitation of the brook that went on forever.

UZCUDUN, a Basque, imported from the Pyrenees, for prize-fighting, as they used to import fair haired northerners for gladiato fights in Rome, "walks all over Ed Keeley of Boston, batters him into submission in two minutes, and 50 seconds." Rather a come down for Uzcudun, playing hired thug. His ancestors used to harpoon whales in the rough Atlantic off the West Coast of France 2,000 years ago.

BOOTLEG whisky, paying a profit of $70,000,000 a year to the criminals of Chicago alone, degraded public officials legalizing

ADMITS MORE CRIME

By International News Service.

IONIA, Mich., Jan. 18.—Adolph Hotelling, revealed now as the arch fiend who attacked two children of his Owosso neighborhood and suspected as the "Ape Man" who terrorized Owosso housewives two years ago, is ready to plead guilty to the murder of 5-year-old Dorothy Schneider.

In an amplified confession penned by himself, Hotelling said today:

"Wishing to clear up everything in these matters and to make a clean breast of all, I hereby confess to the attack of Esther Skinner at Oak Hill Cemetery, Owosso, on or about February 17, 1926, and to the attack upon Ella May Horn near Carland, on April 27, 1927."

Before the day is over the life sentence for the murder of little Dorothy may be passed on the middle-aged churchman whose Jekyll and Hyde personality embraced a mild mannered public life cloaked in smug respectability and a hidden self steeped in a sordid emotionalism surpassing normal understanding.

The last stumbling block in the way of returning Hotelling to Genesee County, the scene of his crime, was cleared today when Gov.

PLANE UP 27 HOURS

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 18.—The giant tri-motored monoplane Spirit of California, manned by Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith, Australian flier, and Lieut. George R. Pond, of the United States Naval Reserve, was still aloft at 2:09 o'clock (Pittsburgh time) today after 27 hours of continuous flying in an effort to smash the world's endurance record.

Circling over the airport like a monster night bird, its three engines were functioning perfectly and its gas supply was encouragingly high, according to a stream of radio messages coming to airport officials from the two birdmen.

"ALL IS WELL"

At 3:31 a. m. the flying pair, who seek to lower the mark of 52 hours and 22 minutes set by two German aviators, messaged: "All is well."

The huge plane was launched on its attempt to establish a new world's endurance mark yesterday morning at 8:09 o'clock. Its tanks at the time of the take-off carried 1,500 gallons of gasoline, sufficient fuel, in the opinion of fliers, to allow for success with the absence of unforeseen mishaps.

Fuel shortage was the cause of a previous attempt made by Capt. Kingsford-Smith and Lieut. Pond to break the record after more than 49 hours of continuous flying.

Thaw's Movie Dream Bursts

Harry K. Thaw, of Pittsburgh and New York, today is en route from Hollywood to New York, his dream of placing two new stars in the film firmament shattered beyond repair.

ANITA RIVERS

Anita Rivers, his fair-haired hope, has quit him cold. She announced she, being blonde, preferred California, and proved her statement by remaining there to try for success on the screen without Thaw's aid.

SUSAN HUGHES

Undismayed by failure in Hollywood, Susan Hughes, a striking brunette, is coming east with Thaw to resume work for him in small comedies he has been producing in New York studios under his own direction.

LAY STRIKE TO BIG BUSINESS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Powerful corporations, including the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Pittsburgh Coal Company and the General Motors Company, are held responsible for the bituminous coal strike in Western Pennsylvania by the United Mine Workers of America in a statement presented today to the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Instances of small operators, willing to adhere to the provisions of the Jacksonville agreement, but forced by the powerful railroad and other interests to repudiate it, are cited. Details of the eviction of 12,000 families from their homes "in the dead of winter" are told. And the intimidation of striking miners, even to prohibiting their attendance in church, is related.

URGE SENATE PROBE

The statement was presented to the committee with a petition urging the approval of the resolution by Senator Johnson of California to investigate the soft coal strike in the tri-state district and other sections of the country.

The large coal companies, dominated by the railroads, "have resorted to the most brutal methods of warfare," the statement alleges. "They employed armies of armed gunmen, recruited largely from the criminal element of the country, and placed these men in and around

Chevrolet Dealers Meet

The largest automobile meeting of its kind ever held in Pittsburgh is taking place today with 650 Chevrolet dealers and 150 bankers with whom they do business in session at Syria Mosque in the annual Chevrolet meeting.

R. H. Grant, vice president of the Chevrolet Motor Company in charge of sales, is directing the meeting, perhaps the most unique and comprehensive of its kind ever held in the automobile industry.

Mr. Grant—he sold 1,000,000 automobiles in 1927—accompanied by a large staff of Chevrolet officials, arrived here late yesterday. The meeting here today is the third of a series of 43 to be held this winter and spring from coast to coast in a comprehensive effort to apprise the country-wide Chevrolet dealer organization of the tremendous sales plans which this fast growing company has arranged for the year.

BANQUET THIS EVENING

Following the afternoon meeting the 800 visitors will be guests of the Chevrolet Motor Company at an elaborate banquet in the William Penn Hotel, where Mr. Grant will preside as toastmaster.

In addition to Mr. Grant, the party which arrived last evening included: M. D. Douglas, assistant

Sings to Kill Pain

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 18.

HIS left hand completely blown off when the detonator of a large bomb exploded in his grasp, and his right hand terribly mangled, Private William C. Quinn, Fortieth Bombardment Squadron, Kelly Field, warbled "just another day wasted away" while the ambulance rushed him to the station hospital.

"It's the only way to soothe the pain," he explained to astonished surgeons. His condition is critical.

VET WANTS ELECTRIC CHAIR JOB

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 18.—The position of public executioner raises no qualms in at least one Pennsylvanian, Gov. Fisher learned today.

His mail this morning contained an application from a Pennsylvania veteran of the World War, who wants the appointment to throw the switch at Rockview penitentiary, whenever a murderer's life is claimed for his crime. The contract as state executioner is now held by Robert Elliott, of New York, who yast week was in charge of the execution of Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray.

Gov. Fisher declined to reveal the name of the Pennsylvania applicant, who wrote he is a citizen of the state, 30 years old, with a knowledge of electricity. He said he could fill the position because of "a full knowledge of duty" which two years' service overseas had taught him.

Elliott receives $200 for an electrocution, unless he electrocutes more than one person on the same day. In that case he receives $150 for each electrocution after the first.

THINK MISSING SMITH COLLEGE GIRL SLAIN BY MANIAC

Girl Missing, Boy Held

SARA WORLEY

WILLIAM VALENTA

Sara Worley, 15, of Fifth avenue, McKeesport, is missing from her home, and William Valenta, 17, of 2917 Bowman street, McKeesport, is under arrest, police said, charged with contributing to the girl's delinquency. The case was reported to the Missing Persons Bureau by J. R. Considine, Valenta's brother-in-law.

Darrah Loses Post

Harry Darrah, for more than a score of years secretary of the Police Pension Fund, was ousted from that position today when the board reorganized and elected new officers for the ensuing year.

Chester B. Morley was elected Darrah's successor. Morley was in charge of the return property department, Police Bureau.

Darrah was marked for the skids when a faction of the organization objected to his receiving a pension of $75 a month and collecting $5,000 a year as secretary. The disgruntled faction maintained that he should have waived his pension and collected only his salary as secretary.

Dog's Ownership Decided by His Tail

BUTLER, Pa., Jan. 18.—Fred, a valuable farm dog, was Exhibit A in a court dispute between two farmers yesterday. And it was his tail which settled the argument!

Dan Anderson insisted Fred was his dog and that Fred's tail had been bobbed to alter the animal's appearance. J. O. Kohlmeyer said Fred belonged to him.

A jury in County Court examined Fred's tail and agreed with Kohlmeyer.

SHOT, HE CAN'T RECALL DETAILS, AND IS HELD

Jerome King, 22, of 210 Meyran avenue, walked into Mercy Hospital at 5 o'clock this morning to have a bullet wound in his left hand dressed. Questioned by police, he said he had been held up, but didn't know where, how much he lost, or whether it was a white man or Negro that stopped him. He was charged with being a suspicious person and police are investigating.

SANDY LAKE WOMAN, 82, FOUND DEAD IN FIELD

SANDY LAKE, Pa., Jan. 18.—Believed to have wandered away from home during the night, Mrs. John Vprous, 82, was found dead in a field near her home yesterday. Death was due to exposure and old age.

QUESTION ASYLUM GUARDS

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 18.—(INS.)—Working on the theory that Miss Frances St. John Smith, New York heiress and 18-year-old Smith College freshman, was slain by a maniac, state police today began an intensive search in this vicinity.

State authorities believe that the solution of Miss Smith's mysterious disappearance will also solve the equally mysterious disappearance two years and two months ago of Miss Alice Corbett, 19, of Utica, New York, Smith College junior. They regard it as more than a coincidence that both girls vanished on Friday, the 13th.

REVEAL GIRL HEIRESS

The hunt by all officers of the state police was the result of the intercession of United States Senator Frederick Hale, of Maine, a friend of the vanished girl's father, a retired New York broker. The senator revealed that the family of Miss Smith fear that she has been kidnaped and held for ransom. She was recently bequeathed a large sum of money—reported to be $2,000,000—by a distant relative.

Senator Hale telegraphed an appeal to Gov. Alvan T. Fuller to have the state employ every possible resource of the commonwealth to locate the missing girl. Gov. Fuller immediately got in touch with Brig. Gen. Alfred F. Foote, Commissioner of Public Safety, instructing him to give every assistance in the search for Miss Smith, and so notified Senator Hale at Washington. Today Gen. Foote personally was directing the state investigation of the mysterious case.

HUNT DEGENERATE

Putting aside, temporarily at least, the theories of kidnaping, elopment, or amnesia, state authorities, working independently of private detectives, and college officials who have thus far been conducting investigations, today sought a crazed degenerate, believed to have done his work with clever cunning.

The state police search centered on a large wooded territory surrounding the State Hospital for the Insane here. Officers questioned attendants in an effort to learn if any of the 1,200 inmates had been absent from the institution last Friday, the day Miss Smith disappeared. Meanwhile other state police concentrated on the theory of foul play and went over central and western Massachusetts for clues.

Today

prize fighting as a national amusement, intelligent and highly organized finance running the country and giving the 120,000,000 enough prosperity to keep them satisfied, such is the picture of our civilization. But even so, it is better than it was once.

HUMAN beings as a whole, like individuals, do only ONE thing really well. The work of the human race today is scientific and industrial, making new discoveries in science, applying them to man's material welfare. Today scientific workers are like builders installing plumbing, heating and other conveniences in a big building, later families move in and live comfortably.

AFTER a few years or centuries, of industrial, scientific development, this nation will move into the finished structure and find for amusement something better than bootleg whisky, crime waves, prize fights and struggling to get more money than it needs.

LITTLE FARADAY imagined all that was to follow when he discovered "electro-magnetic induction," showing that an electric current is produced by moving a magnet inside of coiled wire. George Eller Hale, chairman of the national research council, says Faraday could not have imagined that this discovery would develop the entire electrical industry, and in the United States alone give work to 6,000,000 people. When a practical British statesman asked Faraday "of what real use is your invention," Faraday told him, "some day it may be developed so that you can tax it."

THAT incident related by Mr. Hale shows that Faraday foresaw dimly the extent of his discovery. But he could not have imagined that it would be used to kill Ruth Snyder and send through the air, without wires, pictures of the killing. He could not foresee human beings talking across the ocean, and around the world. The wonder may go farther and produce eventually a race of really civilized human beings.

THIS planet is ready for an improved race. Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico would provide homes for tens of millions of them in magnificent scenery, brilliant sunshine and beauty. WHEN and IF human beings do become civilized, they will fly out to these high plains to live under clear blue skies instead of crowding like ants in hideous cities, the cunning exploiting the simple minded, and the simple minded enjoying their prize fights, crime stories and executions.

BALTIMORE SENDS ASSISTANCE

Ten fire companies were hurried from Baltimore in a wild, 40-mile night ride to aid the Washington firemen. All other communities in a 30-mile radius also rushed sorely-needed aid. Sixteen firemen were taken to hospitals suffering from smoke and exposure. Loss was estimated between $500,000 and $1,000,000. There was no known loss of life.

WAR URGED ON AUTO THIEVES

Declaring that 5,200 automobiles were stolen last year in Pittsburgh, C. H. Roth, secretary of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, has asked Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh to curb the sale of ignition keys, and to prohibit the practice of youths caring for automobiles in public parking places.

their mining camps for the sole and only purpose of intimidating their employes and inflicting cruelties upon striking union miners and their families.

"These companies have obtained from courts injunctions of the most amazing character. One even goes so far as to prohibit the United Mine Workers from supplying any aid of any kind to striking union miners or their families, even to avert starvation."

SEE DRIVE ON UNIONS

Referring to the Pennsylvania Railroad and other systems accused of co-operating to smash the unions the statement says:

"It is well known that the Pennsylvania Railroad has been co-operating with the Pittsburgh Coal Company, the Hillman Coal and Coke Company, Jones & Laughlin, the Inland Steel Company, the Wheeling Steel Company, the Bethlehem Mines Corporation and others in the policy of eliminating the union and sustaining the action of the Pittsburgh Coal Company in repudiating its contract with the United Mine Workers of America."

The statement tells of an experience of John H. Jones, head of the Bertha Consumers' Company. Mr. Jones is said to have called at the United Mine Workers' office in June, 1927, and to have said that he was prepared to sign the Jacksonville agreement, but that he had been informed by the purchasing agent of General Motors that he could not sign the contract. Mr. Jones, it is said, was threatened with ruin unless he conformed to the policies of the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

The statement also says: "It may also be of interest to know that Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, was a member of the board of directors of the Pittsburgh Coal Company up to the time that he became Secretary of the Treasury, and that his brother, R. B. Mellon, has been a member of a board of directors ever since Andrew W. Mellon resigned as a member."

SEARCH VESSEL FOR ARMS

GALVESTON, Tex., Jan. 18.—A through search of the steamship Gaston, which sailed from Newark for this port on January 1, failed to reveal a shipment of arms for Nicaraguan rebels, according to customs officers and department of justice operatives who completed their search of the vessel yesterday.

A few days after the Gaston sailed for Galveston, a former officer of the steamer informed the Department of Justice at Washington that a shipment of arms was on board. The search of the vessel was then ordered.

Amity at Parley Urged

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

HAVANA, Jan. 18.—An appeal to the statesmen of the 21 Latin-American countries to forget hate, ambition and rivalry and concentrate upon friendship and co-operation marked the first business session of the sixth Pan-American Congress today.

It came from Dr. Rafael Martinez Ortiz, secretary of state for Cuba, who addressed the conference in the role of host.

"Delegates," he said, "you are about to commence your labors: the program, drafted with the help of all, permits hope for excellent results.

"Let us bear in mind that nothing stable can be founded on hate, ambition and rivalry. You are going to work for the future more than for the present. If you succeed in taking a forward step; if the whole world that beholds you finds open all your resolutions, the book of immortality will be opened to you. You have faith and perseverance; success must be with you."

Dr. Ortiz reviewed at considerable length the history of Pan-Americanism, starting in the days of Benjamin Harrison, which saw the first Pan-American conference. He gave credit to James G. Blaine for the initial vision of Pan-Americanism, and quoted copiously from Blaine's address to the first Pan-American Congress. To wit:

"The delegates can do much to establish permanent relations of confidence, respect, and friendship between the nations they represent. They can show to the world an honorable, peaceful conference of 18 (now 12) independent American powers, in which all shall meet together on terms of absolute equality, a conference in which there can be no attempt to coerce a single delegate against his own conception of the interests of his nation, a conference which will permit no secret understanding on any subject, but will frankly publish to the world all its conclusions; a conference which will tolerate no spirit of conquest, but will aim to cultivate an American sympathy as broad as both continents; a conference which will form no selfish alliance against the older nations of which we are proud to claim inheritance, a conference, in fine, which will seek nothing, propose nothing, endure nothing that is not in the general sense of all the delegates timely and wise and peaceful."

The aim of the present conference, Dr. Ortiz declared, should be the same goal that Blaine envisioned nearly a half century ago.

COOLIDGE HOME TOMORROW

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 18.—President Coolidge, homeward bound, arrived in Jacksonville at 9 o'clock this morning, aboard his presidential special train.

The President left the train for an hour, and motored to the principal points of interest in the Florida resort city, before proceeding northward on the journey which will bring him back to the White House early tomorrow.

START HUNT FOR MAN MISSING EIGHT YEARS

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Jan. 18.—After a wait of eight years for the return of Harvey Patrick, who, as trustee for the estate of Mrs. Mary Haney, was to pay $30 annually to Flushing township for the upkeep of the Rock Hill Cemetery, township officials have begun a search for the man. Patrick, who has not paid any money since 1920, cannot be found and his bondsmen are dead.

LONG SENTENCE HELD LEGAL

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 17.—Russell Thomas, 20, Negro, of Monongahela, questioned in the murder of Thelma Young, 17, of Washington, three weeks ago, will serve the term of 18 months in the Allegheny county workhouse given him by Alderman J. F. Carmichael for molesting three Washington women.

Workhouse officials at first would not accept Thomas, questioning the authority of Alderman Carmichael to sentence him to such a long term. A conference between District Attorney Warren S. Burchinal, of Washington county, and the Allegheny county officials resulted in the agreement that the alderman had full power to sentence Thomas six months on each of the three counts.

Fred W. Green authorized the warden of Ionia prison to turn Hotelling over to Sheriff Frank Green, of Genesee County.

Fearful of mob violence Gov. Green had sought to prevent the slayer's return to Flint, but on advice of legal counsel decided to recognize the jurisdiction of the Genesee County Circuit Court over the prisoner.

Hotelling's attorney, William A. Seigmiller, had sought to avert the return of the prisoner and had appeared in Circuit Court at Flint and pleaded for a change of venue.

State authorities have not relaxed their precautions against lynching, and fear of Genesee mob violence delayed Gov. Green in ordering Hotelling's return to Genesee county.

But Judge Fred W. Brennan, presiding in Genesee Circuit Court, was said to be determined not to grant the change of venue.

According to report received by Gov. Green and W. W. Potter, Attorney General, Judge Brennan said:

"I will not allow a change of venue unless Hotelling appears in person in my court and pleads not guilty. Talk of mob violence against the man is unfounded. The prisoner will be in no danger if returned to the jurisdiction of my court."

Gov. Green's comment was:

"The blood be on their heads."

The Governor had previously said:

"I do not believe there are enough police in Michigan to protect Hotelling if he is returned to Flint."

Hotelling's physique, with its long arms, stooping shoulders and squatty body, and his agility acquired from years of climbing scaffoldings as a carpenter, tally with the description current at the time the "ape man" was on his rampage.

The "ape man" went about at night, peering into women's bedroom windows. When the women discovered him and screamed hysterically, he cackled a maniacal laugh.

3 MORE DIE IN GANG FEUD

By International News Service.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—Gangland war flared again in Chicago today, and the bodies of three victims, riddled with machine-gun bullets, were found in two different places of the deserted wastes on the far South Side.

Bodies of two of the victims, fashionably dressed, were found slumped in a ditch. The third victim was found a mile away hurled in the marshy weeds adjoining an unfrequented road.

Squads of police were rushed to the scenes.

TAKEN FOR RIDE

The police said there was every indication that the men all had been "taken for a ride" by their enemies and shot and their bodies dumped from an automobile as it passed along the road from Steger to Chicago Heights.

The victims were identified as Joseph Caziando, 20 years old; Joseph Fasso also was 20 years old, and James Fuller, 28, of South Bend, Ind.

The body at Steger lay in a road marking the dividing line between Cook and Will counties and the police of both counties started an investigation. All three men were well dressed.

The body at Steger was allowed to remain in the road pending the arrival of a coroner and the other two bodies were taken to an undertaker's office.

The clothing of the victims was torn and mud-spattered, indicating they had fought to save their lives.

The police found that the three victims were seen together in a restaurant in Chicago Heights early last night, 30 minutes before shots were heard at the point where the bodies of Faso and Fuller were found.

Fuller's body revealed a card bearing the name of Joe Regnarski, Fort Wayne, Ind. His cap was marked "Chaney's, Auburn, Ind."

Chorines Robbed Here

Ten chorus girls of the Eddy Wyse Theatrical Company appearing this week at the Stahl Theater in Homestead are minus all their ready cash and their purses, stolen sometime yesterday from the theater dressing rooms.

A diamond ring, an evening gown and keys to the company's wardrobe also are missing. Homestead police believe a 12-year-old girl and her younger brother are responsible for the theft. Yesterday afternoon police found the girl and her brother hiding in "back stage" of the theater but the pair were released when they said they were resting.

COAL COMPANY WINS REVENUE TAX ACTION

Federal Judge R. M. Gibson handed down an opinion holding the Fink Coal and Coke Company not liable for internal revenue tax between 1919 and 1925, in which time the concern did not engage in any activity other than maintenance of its corporate existence and property. The coal company had brought action against Collector of Internal Revenue D. B. Heiner to recover $1,515.25 claimed to have been wrongfully exacted as capital stock taxes.

ALL OPPOSITION CHIEFS EXILED FROM MOSCOW

TROTZKY'S CREW ORDERED OUT

[The following dispatch, delayed by censorship, is the first direct word from Moscow on the exile of Leon Trotzky and fellow oppositionists received by the Associated Press. Previous news on the exiling of the opposition leaders has come through Riga and Berlin.]

MOSCOW, Jan. 14.—(AP.)—(Delayed)—All opposition leaders of every shade and character have been ordered to leave Moscow and to proceed to various distant points, where they must remain for indefinite periods,

In administering punishment, the oppositionaries were divided in three groups—the incorrigibles, penitents and non-penitents.

Leon Trotzky, former head of the Red Army and once outstanding figure in the councils of Soviet Russia; Christian Rakovsky, former Soviet ambassador to France, and Karl Radek, Bolshevist journalist, head the non-penitents, since they abide by their principles. Their punishment is therefore more drastic.

Rakovsky and Radek were sent to Ust-Sysolsk, a small town far north in the Komi region bordering on Archangel province.

Leon B. Kameneff, once ambassador to Italy, and Gregory Zinovieff, formerly head of the Communist International, head the penitents, having declared themselves before the entire party as erring in their views and tactics. Kameneff has been asked to proceed to Penza, a provincial city in Central Russia, and Zinovieff to Vologda. Both have been assigned to jobs in the state education departments and will remain until the central committee sees fit to restore them to their rights.

The incorrigibles, headed by M. Sapronoff, former secretary of the central executive committee, received more serious punishment. The Sapronoff group were sent to various points in the remotest regions of Siberia.

This group is regarded as chronic oppositionaries, having opposed everything and everybody.

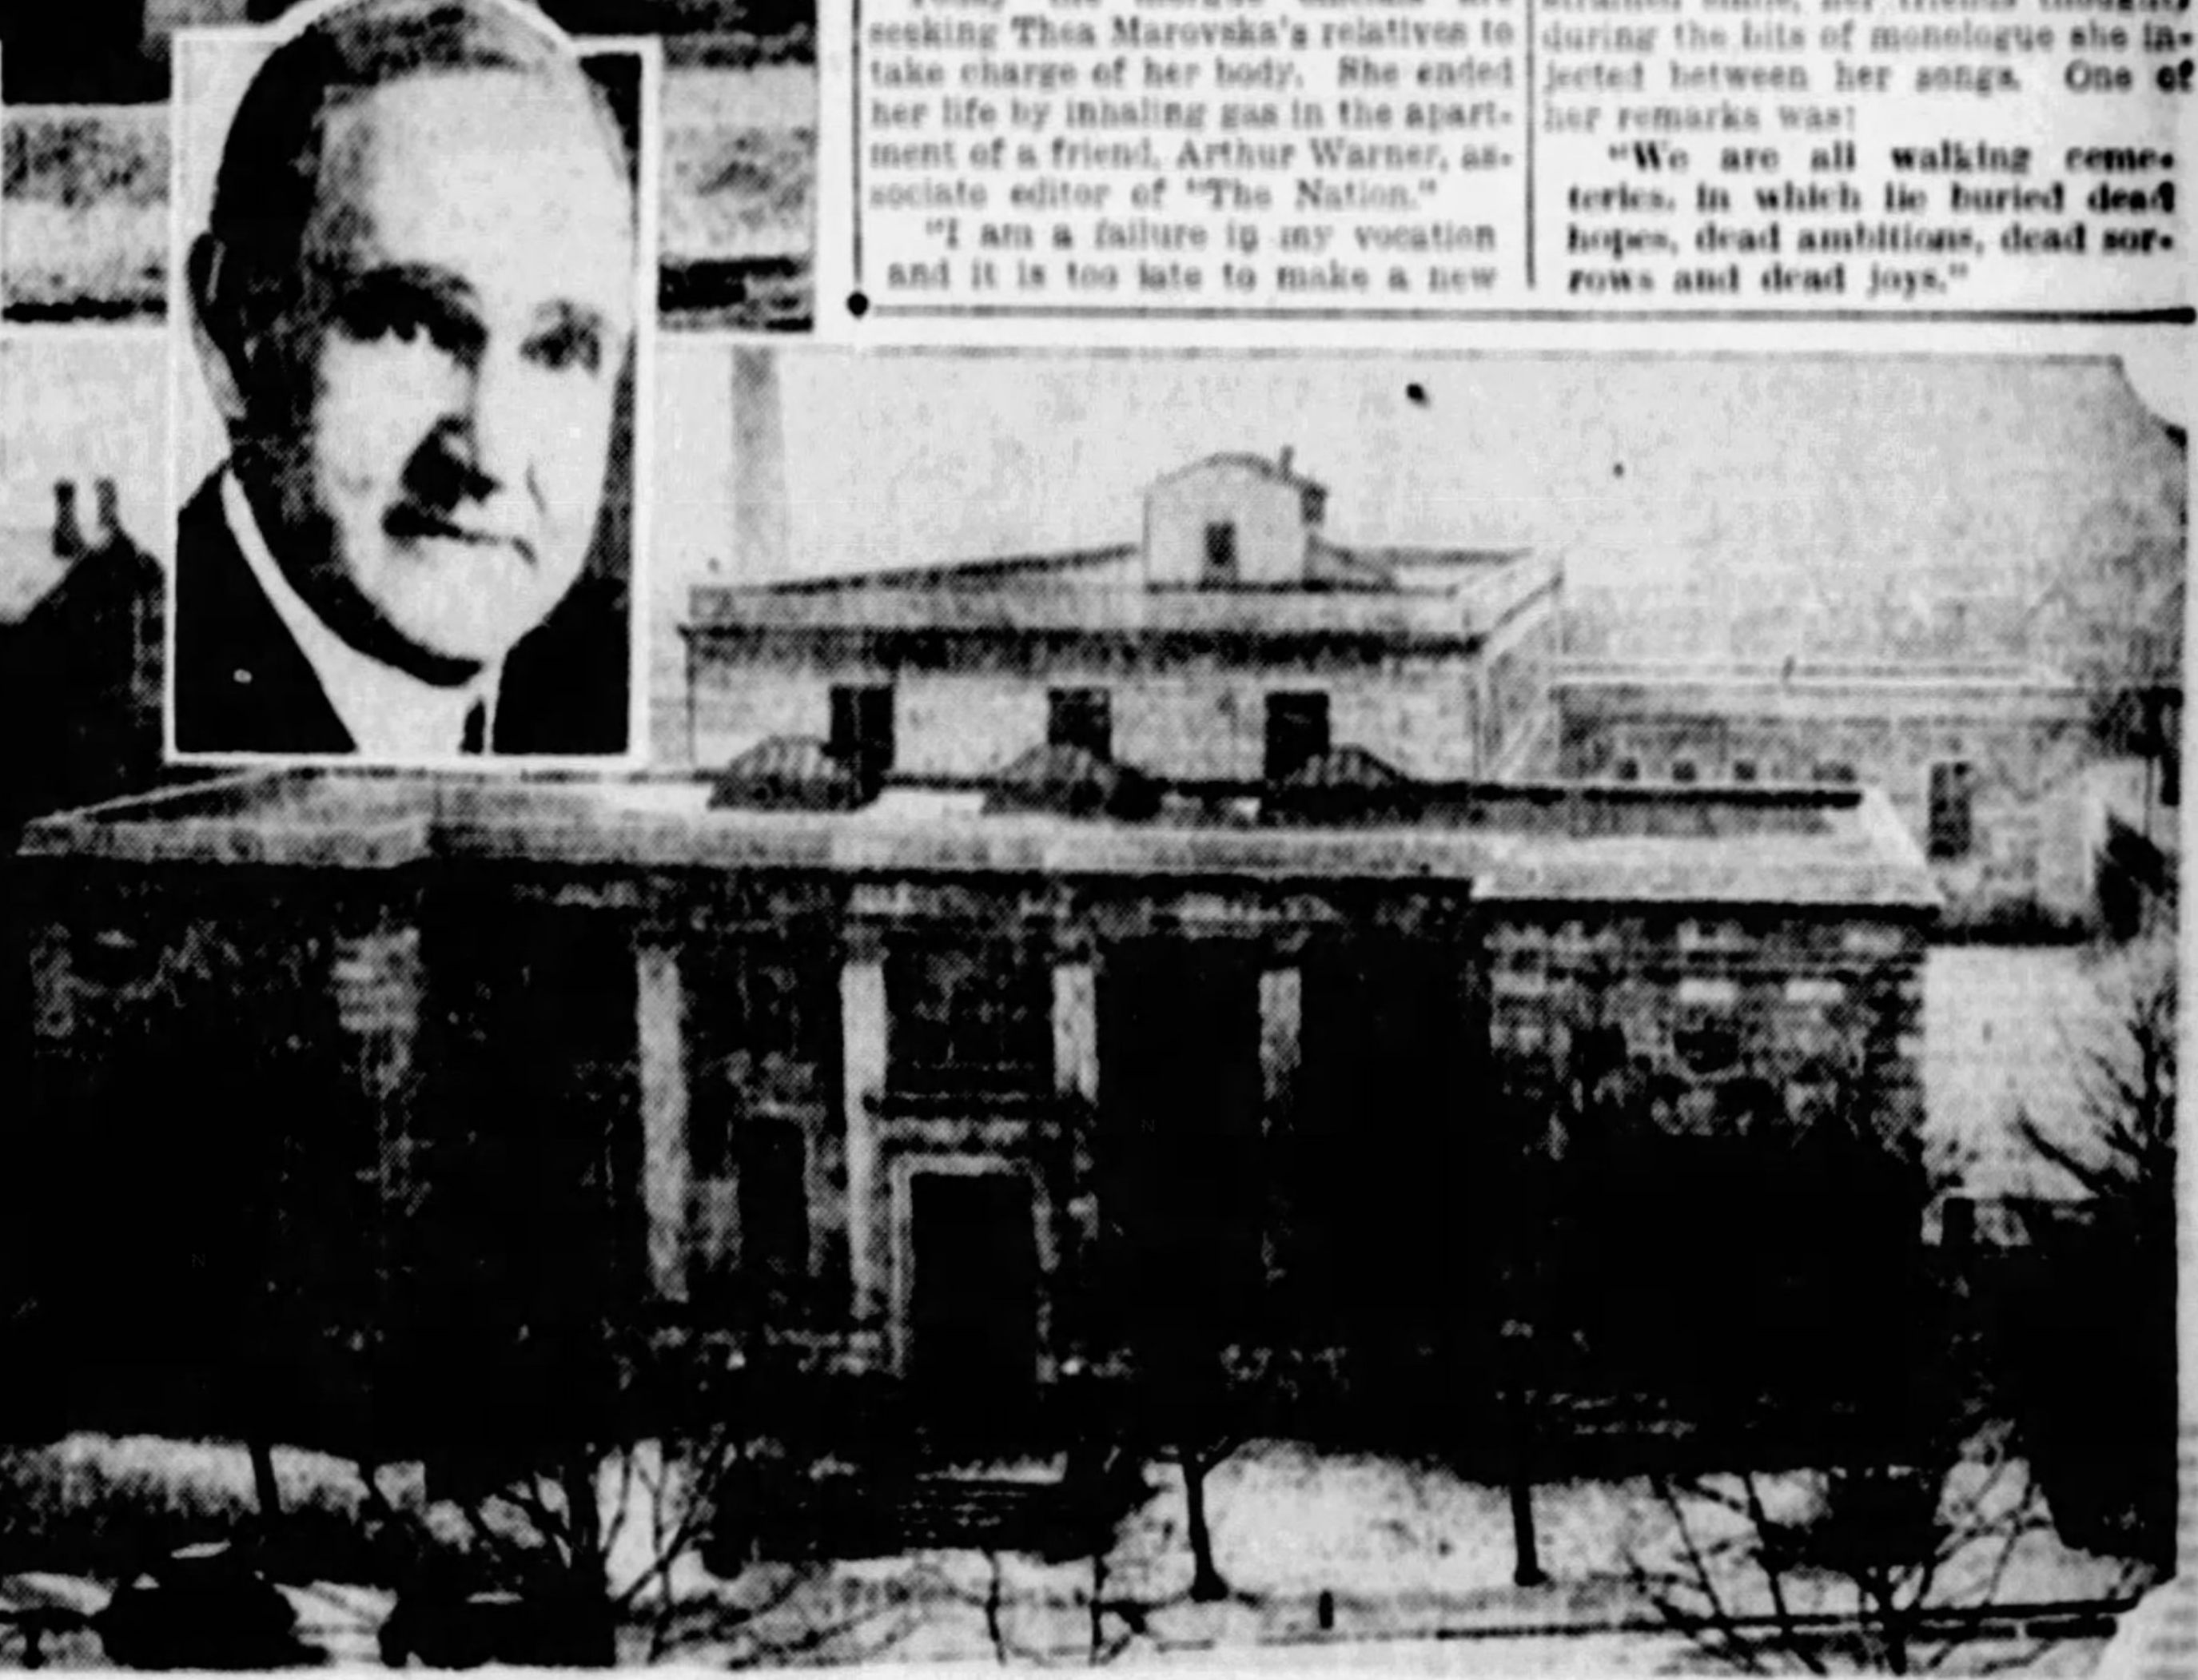
Schools' Progress Shown

KNOXVILLE JUNIOR HIGH

The Knoxville Junior High School, one of the three new schools most recently completed by the board of Education under the administration of Supt. William M. Davidson. It was opened in September. It cost 105,810, was designed by Press V. Dowler and constructed by the Pittsburgh Engineering and Construction Company.

TAYLOR ALLDERDICE HIGH

The Taylor Allderdice High School, Shady and Forward avenues, completed at a cost of $1,568,300, and opened in September. R. M. Trimble was the architect, and the building was constructed by H. Miller & Sons Company. There are 125 rooms.



HENRY CLAY FRICK TRAINING SCHOOL

The Henry Clay Frick Training School for Teachers, in Boquet street, opened for classes in September, which cost 774,924. It was designed and built by Ingram and Boyd, and the J. Fullman Company. The building has 60 rooms. Dr. Davidson, under whose regime the schools have been built, is shown in the inset. He recently was re-elected for a term of six years.

FAILURE, SINGER TAKES OWN LIFE

CRITICS WRECKED "BIG MOMENT"

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Jan, 18.—Thea Marovska's "great moment" came last Sunday night when she made her debut as a concert singer,

The curtain rose. She looked out upon a vast sea of faces. Here and there were friends. Back stage were flowers they had sent. She sang "Song Dramas of the People," in English, German, French, Russian and Yiddish. You see, all her life she had studied and worked for this big moment. She had been a pupil of Yvette Gilbert, famous French vocalist, and of Max Reinhardt, German master of stagecraft. Her voice rose and fell—

And then the curtain went down. The audience applauded politely, and departed.

Today the morgue officials are seeking Thea Marovska's relatives to take charge of her body. She ended her life by inhaling gas in the apartment of a friend, Arthur Warner, associate editor of "The Nation."

"I am a failure in my vocation and it is too late to make a new start," she said, in a note left to Warner.

She was only 35, and in private life was Miss Dorothy Mierowsky.

Clippings found in Thea Marovska's effects revealed that the metropolitan newspaper critics had paid scant attention to her debut. Some of them did not even mention it.

"Unfortunately," said one, "Mme. Marovska cannot sing. Her sense of pitch is so flagrantly inexact that it neutralizes her otherwise delightful performance."

She seemed to sense that night, as she stood before the footlights, that she had "failed." She smiled (a strained smile, her friends thought) during the bits of monologue she injected between her songs. One of her remarks was:

"We are all walking cemeteries, in which lie buried dead hopes, dead ambitions, dead sorrows and dead joys."

INGHRAM DULANEY

Inghram Dulaney, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Dulaney, 422 Broad street, Washington, Pa., will be officially appointed an Eagle scout, the highest honor of the Boy Scouts, Friday, January 27. He is the second scout in Washington county to receive this honor. His achievement is all the more notable because he has been a member of Troop No. 9 of the First Christian Church, Washington, only since February 10, 1926.

NEW J. & L. HEAD BOOSTS YOUTH

T. M. Girdler, new president of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, second largest independent, has shown his faith in youth by promoting to high executive positions four men, none of whom has yet passed out of the "forceful forties." The oldest is 44. Two are native Pittsburghers. One rose from the ranks,

R. J. Wysor has been appointed general manager of all works and properties, taking the place vacated by Girdler on his assumption of the presidency. Wysor, formerly assistant general manager, is 43, a native of Virginia, a graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, class of 1906, and held executive operating positions with the Panama Canal Commission, Carnegie Steel Company and Bethlehem Steel Corporation before joining the Jones & Laughlin organization in 1925 as assistant general manager.

Frederick E. Fieger has been made assistant general manager, succeeding Wysor. He was formerly general superintendent of the Aliquippa works of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation at Woodlawn. Fieger, 44, was born on the South Side, and was employed in various executive operating positions with the Whitaker-Glessner Company, now the Wheeling Steel Corporation, before joining the Jones and Laughlin staff at the Aliquippa works in 1917 as superintendent of the wire department. He rose steadily through various positions to general superintendent of the plant.

J. Z. Collier has been made general superintendent of the Aliquippa works, succeeding Fieger. Collier was formerly general superintendent of the South Side works. He is 41, a native of Atlanta, graduate of the Georgia School of Technology, class of 1906, and occupied positions in the operating department of the Westinghouse Machine Company and various steel companies before coming with Jones & Laughlin in 1918 as assistant chief engineer of their Aliquippa works. He advanced through various posts to the general superintendency of their South Side works.

S. S. Marshall, Jr., has been made general superintendent of the South Side works, succeeding Collier. Marshall was assistant general superintendent of the same works. He is 43, a native of the North Side, and when only 17 began his career with Jones & Laughlin in the engineering department of the Eliza blast furnaces, advancing steadily through various executive positions.

H. D. Stark succeeds Marshall as assistant superintendent of the South Side works.

J. & L. SHOVES YOUNG EXECUTIVES AHEAD

J. Z. COLLIER

J. Z. Collier, 41, has been appointed general superintendent of the Aliquippa works of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation.

F. E. FIEGER

In choosing his new department heads, President T. M. Girdler has favored young men. F. E. Fieger, oldest of the appointees and assistant general manager, is only 44.

S. S. MARSHALL

S. S. Marshall, Jr., 43, has been made general superintendent of the South Side works, succeeding Collier. A native Pittsburgher, Marshall worked his way up from the ranks.

R. J. WYSOR

R. J. Wysor succeeds Girdler as general manager of all works and properties. He is 43 and was formerly with the Carnegie and Bethlehem Steel companies.

ASK $60,000 DAMAGES IN WIDENING PROJECT

Suits totaling $60,000 were filed against the city of Pittsburgh for property damage due to the widening of Irwin avenue, North Side. The Pleasant Valley Building and Loan Association, and Jacob Weisberg and his wife, Hazel Weisberg, are the claimants, each suing for $30,000. The building and loan concern asks damages for property owned by it at 816-818 Columbus avenue, destroyed as a result of the widening project. The Weisberg property consisted of a three-story brick building and a two-story frame building and garage located at 814 Columbus avenue, also destroyed.

2 Robbed By Auto Bandits

Leaping from an automobile upon their unsuspecting victims who were walking in Jackson street, East End, last midnight, five automobile bandits forced John B. Ryan, of 6434 Jackson street, and Jordan Watson of 6603 Watson street to turn over the small amount of change each had on his person. The robbers disappointed with their loot, which was less than a dollar, stole the silk scarfs the men were wearing.

Ryan and Watson told police at the Frankstown avenue station that all the men were armed and were not masked. They were traveling in a closed automobile which was driven close to the curb where the victims were walking..

Mrs. William Koates, of 1610 Morningside avenue notified police last night that while she was absent from her home, robbers entered through a rear door and stole loot valued about $200. Two $50 liberty bonds, a revolver, clothing and the contents of a child's bank were taken by the robbers,

PRINCESS DEER RIVER

A widowed Indian princess, Guh-U-Wa-No-La—Iroquois for Deer River—who now serves smiles and sandwiches in a Fifth avenue restaurant, has asked the county commissioners to give her permission to set up what is best described as a "hot dog" stand in one of the new county parks. Her husband was killed while working as a structural iron worker on the new Liberty Bridge last summer and the princess is the sole support of young Arrow Point, her 11-months'-old son.

650 CHEVROLET DEALERS MEETING HERE TODAY

OUTLINE PLANS FOR RECORD YEAR

general sales manager; J. C. Chick, regional sales manager; D. G. Frazer, service promotion manager; W. G. Lewellen, assistant sales promotion manager; J. L. Rogers, assistant accounting manager; Gustaf Uk, assistant commercial car manager; D. U. Rogers of the sales promotion division and Roy C. Hayes.

Having shattered its own great record in 1927, when it became the world's largest automobile manufacturer through the production and sale of more than one million cars, the Chevrolet Motor Company in 1928 is planning to break its own record by building and delivering more cars than have ever been sold by a manufacturer of modern gear-shift cars in a single year.

What Chevrolet plans in 1928 and how the crack sales organization expects to attain its new goal is being outlined today at the meeting, intense interest in which is being displayed as a result of the 1928 plan to break last year's record.

The successful termination of plans which Chevrolet has arranged for the year should affect every municipality in the country, it is pointed out. The expected increase in business is expected to react to the benefit of every community, especially Pittsburgh and some 60 other cities where Chevrolet maintains assembly plants or zone office operations.

Great sales gains made by Chevrolet in this section have been representative of increases throughout the country. An instance of the fact is the Chevrolet business in the Pittsburgh zone for the first 10 days of the month is 50 per cent greater than that of the corresponding period of 1927 according to W. E. Holler, sales manager of the local zone. Despite the rapid deliveries the number of unfilled orders on hand exceeds by 100 per cent the number on hand at this time last year. Mr. Holler announced that

Plan to Break Million Car Record

R. H. GRANT

Mr. Grant, vice president of the Chevrolet Motor Company, is in Pittsburgh today with other Chevrolet officials to address the annual meeting of dealers here. (Additional pictures on page 6.)

MERCER SAGE BLASTS MILD WINTER HOPES

GREENVILLE, Pa., Jan. 14.—Jerry Welk, 85, of this place, jury commissioner of Mercer county, constable and old-time weather prophet, predicts January will wind up with zero temperatures and snow, and that February will have plenty of cold weather and storms. Welk blasts the hopes of those who expect the mild winter to continue.

BEST SELLER SEES RECORD YEAR

Declaring that the automobile industry is entering the greatest year in its history, R. H. Grant, vice president of the Chevrolet Motor Company in charge of sales, said on his arrival here last night that there should be a market for 500,000 low priced cars in addition to the normal expectancy in this price class this year.

The man who sold 1,000,000 automobiles last year is here to direct the annual Chevrolet sales meeting in Syria Mosque this afternoon and preside at the banquet that will follow in the William Penn Hotel tonight.

Mr. Grant supported his prediction of unusual prosperity for the motor industry this year on the facts that the country is generally prosperous; that today's motor car offers the greatest dollar value on record and that the delay in buying last year—because one of the largest producers was out of the field part of the year—should throw additional business into 1928.

Commenting on the Chevrolet program for the sale of another million cars in 1928, Mr. Grant said.

"I am just as confident of that million as if I had them sold right now."

He stated that the four-millionth Chevrolet rolled off the assembly line at the Flint (Mich.) plant last Wednesday marking a milestone in the production history of the country.

OUTLOOK FAVORABLE

Asked how he felt about Chevrolet's prospects for the year, he pointed out that Chevrolet is now the world's largest automobile manufacturer and declared that there is every indication that at the close of the year the company will continue to be the largest.

"Our organization is prepared to handle its full share of the anticipated growth in the automobile business this year," he said. "All Chevrolet production operations are on a maximum capacity basis that we may meet the 1928 demand and make immediate delivery on all models.

"During the latter part of 1927 we made extensive preparations for our 1928 program. Our sales organization has been enlarged and intensified through the creation of new regional and zone offices and by additions to field personnel.

"Production facilities have been augmented by the recent acquisition of a $1,500,000 foundry at Saginaw, Mich., and a new assembly plant that will get into operation shortly at Atlanta, Ga., to supply the Southeast. This will increase by 250 cars a day the volume of the other seven assembly plants now in operation in the United States.

"With these improved facilities and with a bigger and better car at reduced prices, we feel assured of establishing a new record this year."

2 AUTOS TO FAMILY

Mr. Grant is a firm advocate of the ownership of several automobiles in families that can afford them.

"A few years ago, a family having more than one automobile was questioned as to its extravagance," he said. "Recently the public accepted the idea that two automobiles to the family was an economic benefit.

"If the automobile, by making individuals more efficient, has become recognized as a contributor to national prosperity why should not the thought be carried out that every adult member of every family should own an automobile, if he is able to finance one?

"Certainly it is desirable to make all members of society as productive and as useful as possible. The ownership and use of an automobile is a sure way to do this, it seems to me."

"An analysis of the market indicates that we are starting on the final stage where the goal is universal, individual ownership of automobiles in order to bring society to the highest state of efficiency.

"From a transportation standpoint this is a necessity. After this becomes more generally recognized, the market for automobiles will become even larger than it is at the present time. Consequently the industry should be optimistic, and we should look forward to even larger yearly figures than we have been used to in the past."

Following the meeting and banquet here today, Mr. Grant and his party will leave for Detroit where the annual "Motor City" Chevrolet sales meeting will be held next week.

NAME COLLEGE TRUSTEES

Three Pittsburgh men yesterday were named members of the Board of Trustees of Grove City College at a meeting of the board in the William Penn Hotel. They are Attorney William M. Robinson, the Rev. Dr. Stuart Nye Hutchison of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church and F. B. Hufnagle, president of the Crucible Steel Company. J. Howard Pew, son of the late J. N. Pew, former president of the board, was elected president to succeed the late F. R. Babcock.

The naming of the three men brings the total number of Pittsburgh men on the board to 17. Wier C. Ketler, president of the faculty, reported a very satisfactory year at the school, with more than 600 students enrolled.

SEE SELLOUT FOR MINERS' SHOW

The sympathy felt for the suffering women and children in the mining villages of Allegheny county found expression today in a number of ways. The public clamored for seats for the midnight benefit show for the unfortunates, to be given at the Davis tomorrow, with acts from a dozen theaters. It was announced that the sign painters had made signs for the entertainment without charge and that the stage hands, motion picture operators and musicians, like the actors and managers, will give their services gratis. That means that every cent taken in at the box office will go to the miners' destitute families. There will be no deduction of any kind for expenses.

It is now assured that every seat for the Davis show will be sold. Late applicants will find only standing room available.

Appreciating the need for extensive relief if the thousands of poverty-stricken women and children in the mining camps are to be saved from starvation and disease, and in response to the popular interest shown in the benefit entertainment at the Davis, the Theater Managers' Association of Pittsburgh has arranged to put on another benefit for the miners' families. It will be a midnight performance at the Sheridan Square, Thursday, January 26. Tickets for this second show will be placed on sale at the Sheridan Square tomorrow.

The Davis entertainment has been described as "a ten-dollar show for a dollar." Stars and headliners from legitimate, vaudeville, burlesque and movie houses will participate. There will be acts from the Alvin, Nixon, Pitt, Davis, Grand, Harris, Loew's Penn, Loew's Aldine, Sheridan Square, Gayety, Liberty and Schenley.

The same theaters will contribute acts to the benefit at the Sheridan Square next week, but they will all be different from those to be presented at the benefit tomorrow. As in the case of the Davis show, all seats will be reserved and will sell at the uniform price of $1 each. Gross receipts will be devoted to the purchase of food and clothing under the supervision of the theater managers for distribution among the neediest of the miners' families.

W. A. RYAN NAMED K. OF C. DISTRICT DEPUTY

Appointment of William A. Ryan of Knoxville as Knights of Columbus district deputy for the twenty-first district was announced here yesterday by State Deputy Lawrence G. Dana of Bradford. His district will include councils at Washington, Carnegie, Crafton, Coraopolis and Pittsburgh, with 2,500 members. Mr. Ryan is national president of St. Paul's of the Cross Laymen's Retreat League.

These Chevrolet managers are here attending the annual meeting at Syria Mosque, this afternoon, of Chevrolet dealers.

CHEVROLET DEALERS

the more than 5,000 unfilled orders now on hand would be filled shortly.

Mr. Holler, who welcomed the Chevrolet party to Pittsburgh last night, will act as host to the visitors during their stay and will be assisted by the following officials from the Pittsburgh office: C. L. Milliken, assistant zone sales manager; T. L. Keating, city sales manager; W. V. Winn, fleet and truck manager; C. J. Peters, parts and service manager; H. D. Sparks, sales promotion manager; E. L. Meade, car distributor, and A. A. Klein, office manager.

The area represented by the dealers here today has a population of more than 4,000,000 people, covering parts of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio. Every Chevrolet dealer within a radius of 250 miles was invited to attend.

GRANT TO SPEAK

The afternoon meeting in Syria Mosque took the form of the most elaborate sales presentation ever attempted by an automobile manufacturer. Important phases of the retail automobile business from a sales standpoint were discussed thoroughly by high factory officials and experts from the central office in Detroit.

Under the leadership of R. H. Grant, who directed one of the most spectacular sales drives ever witnessed in the automobile industry when he brought Chevrolet over the top of the million mark in 1927, executives of the Chevrolet sales organization elaborated on some vital details of present day topics emphasized by present market conditions; the successful operation of a retail automobile business and various phases of sales, service and advertising.

Talks are illustrated in the form of playlets, depicting the proper methods that should be employed in the successful operation of a retail automobile business. To make this possible more than a carload of show equipment with a special show crew has been brought to Pittsburgh for the occasion. For several months artists have been working on the design and production of curtains, drops and stage settings to be used in the presentation of the Chevrolet "show." Experts have been busy since last fall producing the many and varied pieces of stage art and mechanics that are a part of the Syria Mosque show this afternoon.

So elaborate is the setting that more drops and stage equipment are used in illustrating the Chevrolet show than are usually required by large theatrical productions. An instance of this is the fact that 42 drops are used. A specially trained crew of scene shifters, electricians and theatrical hands under the direction of an experienced stage manager back stage while the meeting is in progress.

Following the meeting the dealers and bankers will be guests at the banquet in the William Penn. An unusually fine program of entertainment, novelties and other features have been arranged.

Following the meeting here the party will leave for Detroit where a similar meeting will be held next Thursday.

C. W. BROWN HIT BY PARALYSIS

Capt. C. W. Brown, president of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, was stricken with paralysis yesterday in his home at Sewickley. He was about to leave for a week's vacation in Atlantic City, to be followed by a cruise in the West Indies. Physicians say he will recover. Mr. Brown is one of the leading financiers of Western Pennsylvania.

Our Greatest January Clearance in 97 Years

Unmatchable Piano Bargains

Are the Dominating Features of This Notable Yearly Price Reduction Event Now In Progress at Mellor's

Mellor's January clearance is not merely a hurry-up or "hurrah" sale arranged to arouse the credulity of the general public. It is more than that and vastly different. In reality it is an outstanding store-wide clearance of standard pianos—new and reconditioned—offered at the very lowest price levels which, in turn, means money-saving prices that are astonishing. We characterize this event as the most important sale of high-grade, absolutely reliable Players, Grands and Uprights that we have ever inaugurated during our active and prolonged experience of over ninety-seven years as purveyors of the world's foremost and best musical instruments. Nowhere else and at no time will you have the opportunity of purchasing a piano of equal quality and reputation for the same money.

Want to put some of your funds beyond risk?

A LIVING TRUST at The Colonial Trust Company is often used by business and professional men to furnish an unfailing income for their families, an "old-age" retirement fund for themselves, or an educational fund for the children.

You turn over to The Colonial Trust Company certain income-producing securities, or land, or money. The Colonial invests the money for you, handles the securities and manages the real estate. The income is paid as you direct.

Living Trusts are also widely used by those who are retired and by others who wish to be free from the responsibilities of managing their property.

Any of the officers of the Trust Department at The Colonial will be glad to discuss a Living Trust for you.

THE COLONIAL TRVST COMPANY

OUR CREED

To discharge the duties of Trustee, administrator, executor or guardian with diligence, judgment and skill, is one of our legal obligations. To bring to this work the same personal interest, the same sympathy, the same individual attention to specific family problems, the same humanness that you yourself now show, we regard as an equally strong moral obligation.

MASS FORCES OF U. S. FOR DRIVE

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 17.—(AP.)—Harassed by three days of persistent and heavy bombing from Marine Corps planes, rebel outposts today had fled from the San Albino region, Marine headquarters announced. The announcement was made upon the return of airplane patrols from the region where the Marines are massing for a drive against the rebel general, Augustino Sandino.

A combat patrol also reported there was no evidence in the Quilali district of rebel activity. It was believed that Sandino's forces had retired to El Chipote, which he made his headquarters after the Marines took Quilali.

A company of Marines went to Matagalpa to strengthen the garrison there.

The explosion of two bombs is thought to have warned Sandino's followers to leave Jinotega Sunday. It was reported that Sandino left El Chipote stating he would go to Jinotega and that his arrival would be announced by the explosion of two bombs. The explosion took place as forecast. When Sandino did not appear it was believed that this was a warning to his cohorts.

With the arrival of Maj. Gen. John A. Lejeune, commander of the Marines, and Brig. Gen. Logan Feland, and with United States ships daily disembarking Marines and supplies, airplanes and ammunition at Corinto, Nicaragua is assuming the military appearance which it had last February when more than 4,000 Blue Jackets and Marines occupied all the important cities of Nicaragua and guarded the National Railway.

Champ Commuter Travels 500,000 Miles on Rails

Presiding Judge Richard A. Kennedy of the County Court yesterday completed his fiftieth year as a commuter in the Central Region of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Traveling daily from Tarentum to Pittsburgh, Judge Kennedy is now said to be the veteran commuter of the district, having traveled a total of approximately 500,000 miles. He began commuting when he first entered law school in Pittsburgh. During the 50 years he has spent about $5,000 for commutation tickets.

NEW! LISTERINE SHAVING CREAM
If you don't say this wonderful new cream gives you the coolest shave you ever had you will be one of the few exceptions.

Sore throat's easiest victims—reducing women!

Neglecting a cold or sore throat is dangerous business for anyone—doubly dangerous for reducing women weakened by strenuous exercises and "canary bird" diets.

For both colds and sore throats often lead to serious complications if not treated immediately.

Look upon throat irritation as a warning and at the first sign of it gargle repeatedly with Listerine, the safe antiseptic, used full strength.

If rapid improvement is not apparent, consult your physician.

Time and time again, however, Listerine has checked colds and sore throats before they had a chance to become serious.

Certainly, this pleasant precaution is worth taking during winter and early spring weather when grippe, "flu," and pneumonia are a constant threat. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

HAD AWFUL PAINS ACROSS HIS BACK

Prominent Railroad Man Was Relieved by Ten Herbs; Praises Medicine.

"Some time ago I began to suffer with my back," was the statement of Mr. Fred Wetzel, prominent railroad man, who lives at 205 South Irving Ave., Scranton, Pa., according to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at the May Drug Store, 529 Liberty Ave., Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating the great natural medicine, Ten Herbs. "I had terrible pains across my back, which at times felt as though it might break in two," continued Mr. Wetzel, who is employed by the D. L. & W. Railway, and is a member of the Knights of Malta. "I had dizzy spells, and my condition became so bad I could hardly work.

"I have always had confidence in herbal medicines, so when I heard about Ten Herbs, I decided to try it. This preparation made a great improvement in me. I don't have those terrible pains across my back any more, and I am free of dizzy spells. Ten Herbs did so much for me, I shall never be without a bottle in my home. I am pleased to endorse it to the public."

If you are weak, nervous and underweight; if appetite is lagging and you lack ambition; if there is stomach distress, aches or pains throughout the body, biliousness, headaches, dizziness, frequent rising at night, or constipation—you had better try Ten Herbs, which is used and highly recommended for all such disorders. Thousands say this great herbal compound benefits and invigorates the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and has a cleansing, soothing, correcting effect on the entire system. Get a bottle today and see how you feel after taking a few doses of this popular medicine.

The Ten Herbs Man is at the May Drug Store, 529 Liberty Ave., Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free sample given.

WOMAN SLAYER GETS LIFE TERM

James Johnson, Homestead Negro, was sentenced to life imprisonment on a first degree murder charge by visiting Judge J. Frank Graff in Criminal Court today.

Johnson withdrew his plea of not guilty yesterday after prosecution testimony had been heard and put himself at the court's mercy. He was accused of slashing his landlady, Mrs. Ella Bryant, Negro, 38.

It was brought out today that Johnson had been sentenced to life imprisonment in Norfolk, Va., on a murder charge in 1915 and had been pardoned in 1922.

Lucio Mendoza, 19-year-old Mexican of Cherry way, Homestead, testified that in self defense he had killed Porforio Cerbantez, 25, also a Mexican, on the old Brown homestead property, Browns Hill, last July 6. He took the stand in his own defense in Criminal Court, where he is on trial for murder before Visiting Judge A. B. Smith of Susquehanna county.

EPIPHANY SHOW ON TONIGHT

The cast of "The Epiphany Musical Review" is ready for the first performance, which is scheduled for tonight at the Epiphany Auditorium, Washington place. The big amateur production, staged for the benefit of the Pittsburgh Lyceum, also will be given tomorrow night.

The Epiphany players have a big surprise for the two big audiences which they expect. The first part of the show is in the nature of an old-time minstrel production with blackface comedy abounding. The after part is loaded with features.

J. VANCE, WASHINGTON COUNTY PIONEER, DIES

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 18.—John Vance, in his eighty-eighth year, a member of one of the pioneer clans of Washington county, died yesterday at his home, 241 Locust avenue. He was born at the old Vance homestead, east of here. He was a prominent farmer and breeder of Percheron horses. Since 1878 he had been an elder of the First Presbyterian Church of this city, being elected to succeed his father, Samuel Vance, at his death. One sister, Mrs. Martha Paul of this city, survives.

Ever-Changing Feminine Styles Is One Cause For Shut-Down of Another Motion Picture Studio

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18.

THE ever changing styles in women's costumes, together with over-production, is given as the reason for closing Universal Studios. H. M. Henigson, in verifying the report that Universal will temporarily cease production activities, stated that Universal cannot possibly release any more pictures for 18 months.

"There are so many films already made and awaiting release," said Mr. Henigson, "it would be the height of foolishness to go ahead producing. Styles change too rapidly. A modern picture made today and released 18 months hence would be laughable. A year ago the skirts were up to the knees; today they are wearing them longer. The rainy season, too, will be here shortly—the time when production must necessarily be lessened."

Warner Brothers was the first company to shut down for two months. The stages at Universal City will be darkened for a period of six to 10 weeks, although plans for future pictures will be discussed. There is a strong rumor that other companies will follow this example.

As long as Edmund Goulding's active brain is intact, you may hear of him selling himself and an idea to some studio. He has more of these ideas than any individual in Hollywood—and while some of them may be a bit too radical there are others that are worth investigating. I have in mind a play he recently wrote. He told the story to John McCormick, who hit the ceiling three times, sent a hurry call for Colleen Moore and nabbed that tale before Eddie ever left Mr. McCormick's office. They will call it "Tomorrow" and it is to be Colleen's next picture, following "Lilac Time."

Bessie Love's overworked tennis racket and ukulele will be idle for the next few weeks. Bessie is moving to the Columbia studio to star in "Broadway Daddies" for Harry Cohn. She steps right into Columbia from Universal where she recently completed "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?" There apparently will be no anxious moments of waiting and fear for the next job for Bessie for many a day. She's one free-lance player who, like Tennyson's immortal brook, goes on forever. Frank Capra will direct Miss Love and the rest of the cast gradually is being assembled.

The star who has his option taken up on at increased figure may feel that he is a Sarah Bernhardt and an Edwin Booth combined. Producers aren't exercising their options this season. I know of 10 individual cases where players have been offered a renewal of their contract at the same figure, being denied the increased salary called for in the option. In some cases, realizing the condition of things, the stars have bowed to the inevitable and accepted the producer's offer. Others have started out independently to try and get a higher salary elsewhere. Richard Dix is said to be leaving Paramount all because of an option, and there are many others equally well known and equally profitable to the box office. Just whether or not the producers will be able to regulate salaries in this way is a moot question.

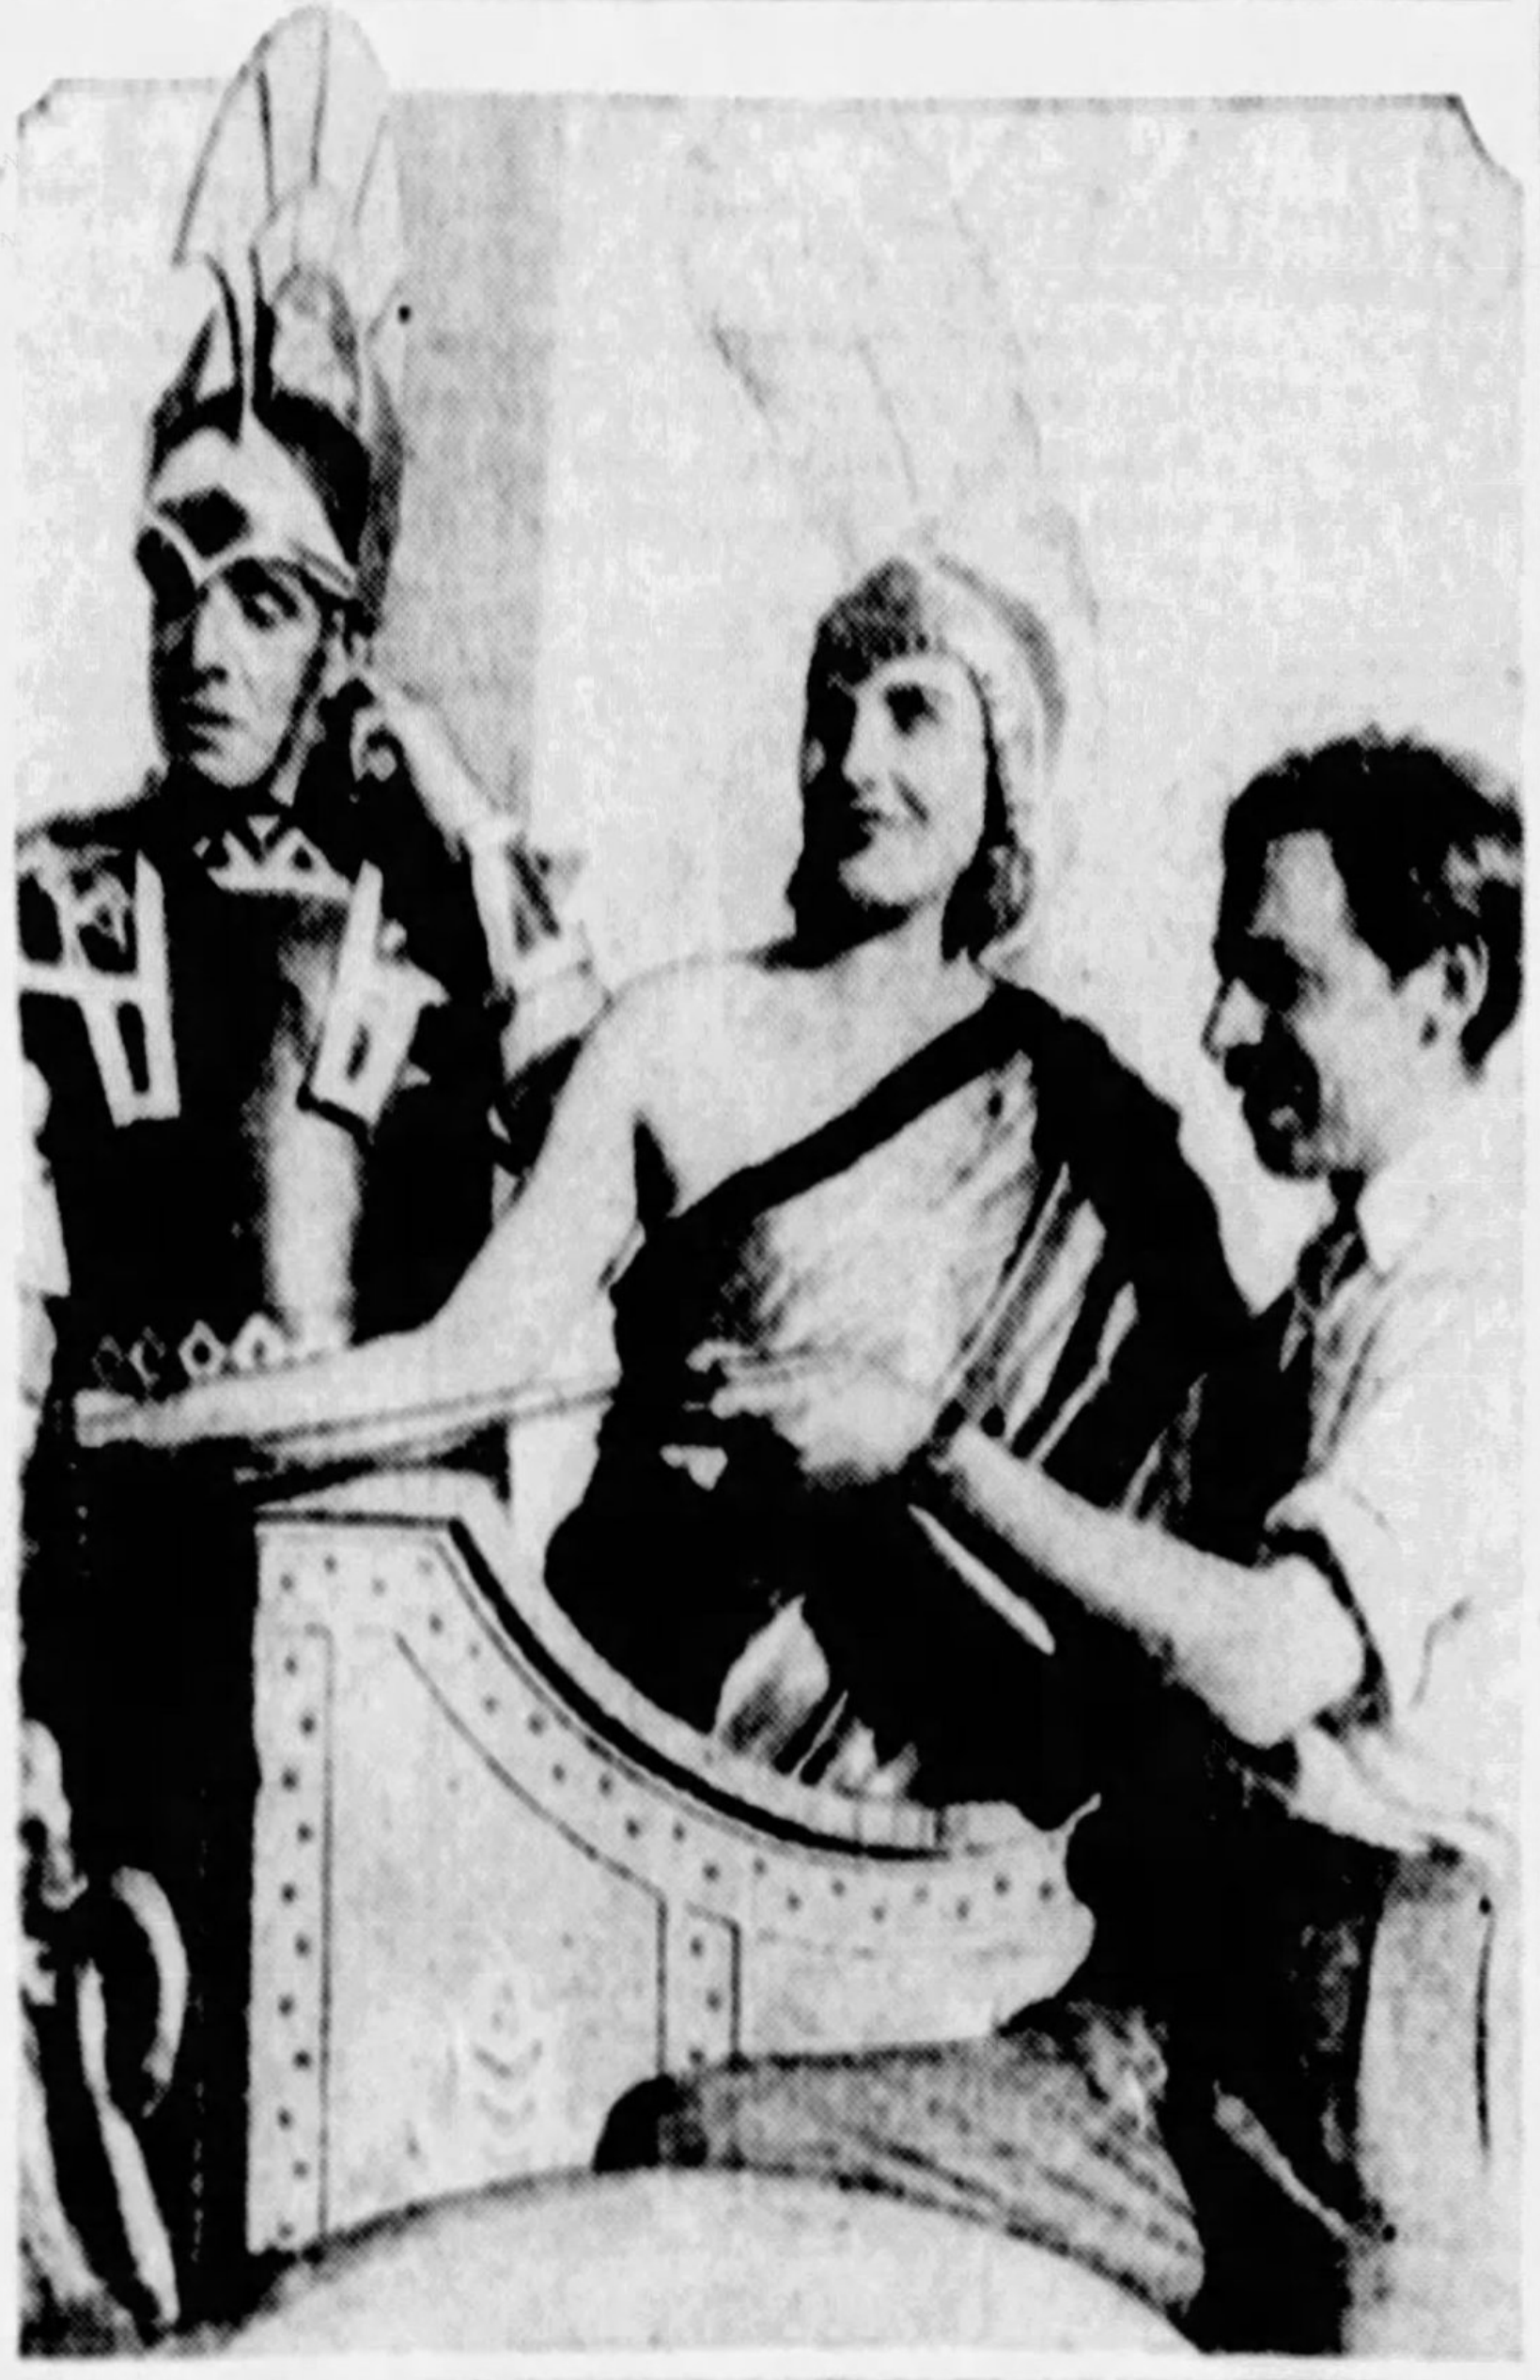
Allow me to present Beverly Hill. Honest, it isn't a pun and, honest, I'm not advertising the well known town. Beverly Hill is the name of Tiffany-Stahl's latest screen find. If my advice means anything, they'l change this moniker back to the real name of Barbara Leonard. Such a name is a handicap before the girl ever gets started. She is to be groomed for bigger and better stardom. Her curriculum consists of a small part first, followed by more pretentious roles.

The Noah Beerys will start life all over again in a bungalow at Studio City, near Lankershim. About a year ago Mrs. Beery left home and Mr. Beery was left alone with only a big house to cheer him. But now they've kissed and made up and are all ready to start life anew. He is building a bridal bungalow for her where all past differences will be forgotten. If only all married people could be sensible enough to separate for a few months when there are disagreements there would not be so many divorces. Mr. Beery, by the way, is getting along famously with his free-lancing, but then he would, for he is at all times a good actor.

Charles Puffy, Hungarian actor, takes his pen in hand to ask me not to refer to him as the rotund comedian of Universal Studio. "That title," he says, "has followed me around in my American career. I do not consider my self a comedian, nor am I any more at the Universal Studios. Of course, I am rotund. I cannot deny that." I'm afraid I disagree with Mr. Puffy, who seems to feel that a comedian is not as gifted as a tragedian. However, we haven't the space to argue about this in the paper, nor the time. But I do notice a tendency on the part of the foreign members of the film colony to regard comedy as an inferior species of screen entertainment.

Snapshots of Hollywood. Constance Talmadge having her hair shampooed at Jom's Beauty Parlor with 10 people watching the operation. Carmel Myers looking despairingly for a taxi to convey her to a late luncheon appointment. Her car was suffering from a flat tire. Harry K. Thaw sauntering into the Mont-Marte, accompanied by the two beautiful young girls who came west with him.

Lew Learns to Drive



LEWIS STONE had to take lessons from Alexander Korda to qualify as a chauffeur of a chariot in "The Private Life of Helen of roy." Maria Corda is the passenger.

GERMAN DRYS ASK NEW TAX

By Universal Service.

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—Like a bolt out of the blue, prohibition has become a national issue in Germany. The entry of the League of German Municipalities into the political field with a demand for a liquor tax surprised even the drys.

Beer and wine enthusiasts felt that their stronghold was really endangered for the first time with the formal declaration of the league, representing every important city, that the time is ripe for a heavy liquor tax in order to "discourage excessive drinking with its resulting social and economic burdens to the state."

Musical Pieces in Future Bills

"Countess Maritza," an operetta, comes to the Alvin next Monday night for a stay of one week only, playing the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees, and for which the sale of seats will begin tomorrow morning. The company includes Walter Woolf, Odette Myrtil, Gladys Baxter, Marjorie Peterson, George Dobbs, Robert Greig and others.

Monday evening, January 23, will bring "Africana," the Negro revue, which has had a run of six months on Broadway and four weeks in Philadelphia, to the Nixon Theater. The star is Ethel Waters, a comedienne who has received much commendation. The seat sale opens Thursday.

Tomorrow, Howard Thurston, the magician, will play the first matinee of his engagement in the Pitt this season. At the Saturday matinee, Thurston will entertain a number of school children with his mysteries.

Bob Hall, known as "The Extemporaneous Chap," will appear in the program of Keith-Albee vaudeville in the Davis next week. He makes poems on every conceivable subject, and does it extemporaneously.

Barthelmess Busy Filming Story of "Chad"

An ideal vacation land has been discovered by Richard Barthelmess. The First National star is now on location, making the picturization of John Fox, Jr.'s "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," and in the California hills Barthelmess and his company have found some of the most beautiful scenic spots in America.

In wooded glens, far from civilization, Barthelmess and his fellow players are making scenes for this epic of the Civil War days, and enjoying every minute. On a raft equipped for camping with a shelter tent and a fire, Barthelmess will make a trip down a river, for the picture, as did "Chad," the boy hero of the original story.

"The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" is an Alfred Santell production, with Santell at the megaphone. The members of the company who are on location with Barthelmess include Molly O'Day, his leading lady, Nelson McDowell, Martha Mattox, Victor Potel, Mark Hamilton, William Bertram, Gardner James, Walter Lewis and Bob Milasn.

Court Upholds Use of 'Her Wild Oat' as Film Title

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The use of "Her Wild Oat" as the title of the First National picture starring Colleen Moore was upheld by Judge Goddard of the United States District Court when he dismissed a request for an injunction restraining First National from the use of that title made by Samuel Cummings and Public Welfare Pictures Corporation.

In denying the motion, Judge Goddard said that in his opinion the title "Her Wild Oat" in no way conflicts with that of the plaintiffs, whose picture "Some Wild Oats" released in 1920, is nominally of an educational character, designed for special audiences interested in hygienic education.

According to Judge Goddard, First National Pictures is within its rights in using "Her Wild Oat" as the title for a screen production of a totally different character presenting a well-known star.

CONCERT BY KREISLER TO BE GIVEN JAN. 26

Fritz Kreisler will give a concert on Thursday evening, January 26, in Carnegie Music Hall, the sale for which opens tomorrow. His program will include the Bach Sonata in E-major, Mendelssohn Concerto in E-minor, and shorter numbers, including several of his own works. Carl Lamson will accompany. Mr. Kreisler.

BARITONE SINGER IN CONCERT HERE FRIDAY

Louise Graveure, noted baritone, will appear in the Carnegie Music Hall Friday night as the third feature in the Bortz concert series. His program will include operatic selections, folk songs and classical numbers.

FRANCE TO REPLY TO U. S. NOTE FRIDAY

PARIS, Jan. 18.—The French reply to the last note from Secretary of State Kellogg will not be sent until Friday. Foreign Minister Briand discussed the status of the Franco-American negotiations at the cabinet meeting yesterday and decided to hold off his reply until Friday, when the text will be presented to the council of ministers.

DAMROSCH TO DIRECT IN SYMPHONY HERE

Walter Damrosch and his New York Symphony Orchestra will play in Syria Mosque Friday night and Saturday matinee, January 27 and 28. The Friday night program will include "La Nuit Ensorcelee" by Chopin-Aubert, in which Mr. Damrosch plays a small part on the piano, and "Entrance of the Little Fauns" by Pierne. The Symphony for Friday night is Beethoven's No. 3, the "Eroica". The symphony for the Saturday matinee is Brahms No. 2.

OVALTINE

Now a new "Pick-up" Drink from Switzerland

Picks you up when you feel low . . . Ends afternoon "let-downs" . . . Keeps you on your toes

Busy, ambitious men. You'll find them everywhere now. "Hitting the ball" as hard in the late afternoon as in the early morning. This is how they are able to keep up the winning pace.

They drink a glass of Hot Ovaltine whenever they feel mentally or physically tired. It puts them back in their stride almost instantly. For this new Swiss food-drink has the amazing power to pick you up in a natural, healthy way. To give you tireless energy that outlasts the day. This is why.

Every glass of Hot Ovaltine is actually a meal in itself. In such easily digested form that it quickly supplies your system with energy-producing nourishment. Also helps to digest other foods you eat. Millions now drink Ovaltine regularly. At soda fountains. In their offices. At home. More than 20,000 doctors recommend it.

Drink a glass of Hot Ovaltine when you feel tired. Served at all of our fountains. Or you can easily make it at home. We have Ovaltine in 4 different sizes for home use.

Take a can home. 4 sizes for home use. Delicious, hot or cold.

400 SEARCHED LEAVING BOAT

HOBOKEN, N. J., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Four hundred guests of the Hoboken Chamber of Commerce, at its annual banquet, including jurists, lawyers, corporation officials, the Hoboken city commission and other of the county's most prominent men, were searched for liquor by two United States customs guards as they left the steamship Berlin of the North German Lloyd Line last night. Sixteen small bottles of liquor were taken, William Sanders, deputy surveyor of the port, said today.

The customs men were not on special assignment, he explained, but were only carrying out the regular orders to search everyone carrying packages from the ship, where the Chamber of Commerce had held its annual dinner. They made no arrests.

The small bottles were of uniform size, he said, adding that he believed them to have been souvenirs of the dinner.

The fact that 400 guests attended the dinner and only 16 bottles were taken, he declared, indicated that the presence of the customs men had become known and other bottles disposed of.

MINE PICKET FREED AFTER FINE IS PAID

Paying a fine of $10, Arthur Lee, union picket in Carnegie, was released from jail today following a hearing before Judge James B. Drew in Common Pleas Court on a writ of habeas corpus obtained by Lee's counsel. Lee had been sentenced to 30 days in jail on a disorderly conduct charge by Justice of the Peace A. W. McMillen of Carnegie.

Depositories for the Pension Fund are Mellon National Bank, Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, Colonial Trust Company, Pennsylvania Trust Company, Union Savings Bank, Potter Title & Trust Company and the Farmers and Mechanics Bank of Sharpsburg.

ADDITIONAL AWARDS FOR ART EXHIBITION

Two additional awards have been announced for work by local artists in the eighteenth annual exhibition of the Associated Artists of Pittsburgh, which opens February 10 and closes March 9 at Carnegie Institute.

They are an award of $100 to be given by the Art Society of Pittsburgh, for the best figure painting, and an award of $50 given anonymously for the best black and white composition.

AUTO STRIPPERS SHOOT OWNER SURPRISING THEM

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 18.—Surprised by Raymond Hitechew, 27, of Shade township, as they were stripping his auto in front of his home, two robbers shot him three times and escaped into the mountains. While detectives searched for the pair, Hitechew was in serious condition in Windber Hospital.

'CIRCUS' PART OF ELECTRIC TALK

At the monthly membership meeting of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce at noon tomorrow, S. M. Kintner, manager of the research department of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, assisted by Dr. Phillips Thomas, research engineer, will stage an "electrical circus," in which the performers will be six of the most startling inventions developed in the last two years in the Westinghouse laboratories.

Although applications of these devices are quite apart from the field of radio communication, they all resulted from researches in radio engineering. "By-products of Radio" is the subject of the address Mr. Kintner will give in connection with the demonstration.

SENTENCE YOUTH FOR AUTO AND STORE THEFT

John Crawford, 17, 1426 Eckert street, North Side, was given a sentence of 90 to 180 days in jail by Judge James R. Macfarlane in Criminal Court today on his plea of guilty to the theft of the automobile of Salvadore Loborde, 1621 Orchlee street, North Side, and entering the drug store of John L. Jordan, 1300 Woodland avenue, North Side, and taking $10 December 15.

SPEAKING of SPORTS

by HARRY KECK

now of some of the P. & O. players getting back into the simon-pure sphere again.

JUST how this can be accomplished is difficult for an outsider to grasp, but it has been done and may be done again.

I spoke the other day with an official of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U., and he explained the position of that body in this wise:

"Until a few seasons ago there was no real organization of amateur basketball players in this section. The result was that when the A. A. U. began to take a hand and to issue membership cards to players and clubs and leagues it had to start with a clean slate. Players who had been playing indiscriminately, first with this club and then that one, were taken in and notified they must adhere to the rules of amateurism from that time on. A start had to be made and that was the beginning.

"THERE was no intention of breaking any rules in staking these players to a clean bill of health, but it was felt advisable rather to give a bit and bend the rules to get the amateur game going. There are times when such things must be done.

"We believe we have accomplished a great deal in the few seasons we have been functioning, and see our goal directly ahead. We are confident we will have basketball on as firm an amateur basis shortly as the other sports."

THE intentions of the local body of the A. A. U. may be of the best, but it has been my observation that the rule-bending is still going on, and, unless this "giving a little" is halted, whatever good has been accomplished soon will be undone.

For instance, suppose the players of the P. & O. League, a professional circuit by the ukase of the Allegheny Mountain Association itself, should be taken back as amateurs—wouldn't that be making a joke of the amateur rule?

Strict amateurism says, "Once a professional, always a professional." The idea of lifting a ban, even after a period of penitence on the part of the individual who has elected to forfeit his amateur standing, is ridiculous. The only excuse the A. A. U. has for existing is to mark a dividing line between amateurs and professionals and ADHERE STRICTLY TO IT. There can be no exceptions. To wink at violations of the letter or the spirit of the amateur code is to encourage hypocrisy. And hypocrisy has no place in clean sport or in the councils of clean sport.

IN OTHER words, the various and sundry local basketball players either are amateurs or they are professionals.

AND IF THE A. A. U. TAKES BACK ANY OF THE PLAYERS IN THE LEAGUES IT HAS DECLARED PROFESSIONAL, IT LEAVES ITS MOTIVES OPEN TO QUESTION AND WELL-MERITED REBUKE.

The A. A. U. cannot expect the public to be so gullible as to swallow a plan whereby it declares a league professional in order to scare its individual players into deserting to seek A. A. U. affiliation. The amateur code says that:

1. Any athlete who receives money, or
2. Any athlete who plays WITH OR AGAINST a professional, or,
3. Any athlete who capitalizes his athletic fame or ability IS A PROFESSIONAL.

Therefore, if one member of a league is a professional, every member of it is a professional.

That is not a rule of the professionals' making; it is a part of the code of the A. A. U. And if the A. A. U. does not strictly enforce it, then, I say, give us honest out-and-out professionals rather than dishonest amateurs any day in the week and twice on Sundays.

SO FAR as the professional or independent basketball racket around here is concerned, it, too, can stand for much improvement. The leagues are loosely managed and many of the clubs do just about as they please in the matter of taking on and discarding players, ignoring the dictates of the league officials and playing the game as they see fit. A case in point is the action of the Goldensons in quitting the P. & O. League when ordered to cut out rough playing, which included slugging during and after games. This is an offense that would justify the league in throwing out the club bodily rather than giving it the choice of behaving or resigning, as was done.

Basketball is too fine a sport to have to stand for the abuses it has received from both the amateurs and so-called professionals in this section, and it is time for a good house-cleaning on both ends. Rule with an iron hand seems to be about the only solution of the problem, and if it is not resorted to soon the death knell of the game's popularity will be found not far off.

EVERETT SCOTT SIGNS WITH READING CLUB

READING, Pa., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Everett Scott, former major league shortstop, who holds an American League record for having played in 1,307 consecutive games, has signed with the Reading Internationals today. He played with Baltimore in the International League and Toledo in the American Association last season.

LOCAL GOLFER ADVANCES

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 18.—Pittsburgh's lone representative in the annual championship tournament of the Winter Golf League of Advertising Interests, Urban E. Dice, will play his second round match here today. He will oppose W. E. Dunnell of New York in the third flight. Dice advanced yesterday without swinging a club, when J. Pierce of Philadelphia defaulted to him.

WALTONS TO MEET

A special meeting of the Pittsburgh chapter of the Izaak Walton League will be held next Monday night in the Rehearsal Hall of Carnegie Institute.

American U. Is First Foe

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The Duquesne University basketball squad, nine men in all, arrived here last night, and, after a good night's rest, awoke this morning freshened to the thought of making good against their first opponent of their extended Eastern invasion, American University, here tonight. Capt. Reich and his fellow players appeared eager for the battle, if not a little optimistic.

Coach Chick Davies' men are in the best of shape for the embroglio, which will be watched with interest. The Pittsburghers were said to have been pointed toward the battle with Catholic University tomorrow night and that they expect to easily come through their first encounter.

On Friday, Duquesne faces the quintet of Mount St. Mary's College of Emmitsburg.

PITT MEETS W. VA.

West Virginia's Mountaineer squad on Friday night may provide the test that Coach Carlson's Panthers have been waiting for. The visitors from Morgantown will compose the best cage team that West Virginia has had in a number of seasons, according to local arbiters who have officiated in Mountaineer games this season.

NOTES of the BOXERS

THE card has been completed for the boxing show at McKeesport tomorrow night with the signing of Tiger Joe Randall of Elizabeth and Jess Hook of McKeesport for the second bout and J. D. Barrett, former amateur of Swissvale, and Georgie Peck of the North Side for the opener. A double windup heads the bill with Teddy Welch of McKeesport and Cowboy Joe Cannell of Youngstown in the main event and Andy Torovsky of Wilmerding and Al Dundee of Mansfield, O., boxing the first 10 rounds.

The McKeesport club is trying to close a 10-rounder between Phil Sculle of McKeesport and Harry Taylor of the North Side to go as a companion piece for the Luis Carpentero-Jackie Rodgers main bout next week.

Sammy Silverberg of Detroit will meet Otto Von Porat, the Norwegian heavyweight, at Chicago Friday night.

Al Trainer and Pat Haley box the main bout at the Cambria Club in Philadelphia Friday night. George Gemas, the Philadelphia heavyweight, who boxes Jack Gagnon at Providence tonight, meets Will Matthews of Baltimore in the windup at the Manayunk Club in the Quaker City tomorrow night.

The winner of the Ace Hudkins-Lew Tendler bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, Friday night will be matched with Sergt. Sammy Baker in the same ring February 17.

Andy Divodi and Charley Rosen will box the eight-round semi-final to the Tendler-Hudkins battle. Nick Testo and Arturo Shekels are down for another eight-rounder, as are also Minty Rose and Routier Parra.

CHICAGO-ARMY TILT NOV. 24 IS UNLIKELY

CHICAGO, Jan. 18—(U.S.)—Scheduling of a game between the University of Chicago and the Army on November 24 is hardly likely, it was revealed yesterday. President Max Mason of the university referred all questioners to Father Amos Alonzo Stagg, mentor at the university.

Although November 24 is an open date at Chicago, the university already has scheduled the maximum of eight games allowed under Big Ten conference rules. The Chicago schedule opens one week earlier than other conference schools. No game could be played on November 24 unless one of the other scheduled teams are dropped.

Tartans Bow to W.&J.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 18.—The W. & J. floor team maintained its clean slate for the season by downing the Carnegie Tech passers here last night, 30 to 19, making the third victory for the Presidents. Again the Carnegie players have come to W. & J. and returned to report the same old tale, just another setback at the hands of the Red and Black, a story which they have been telling for 15 years or more without a single interruption, for Carnegie never has beaten W. & J. in basketball over that period.

After finishing the first half with a five-point lead and the score 16 to 11, against the Carnegie team, the Presidents had to step out when the visitors tied the count at 16 to 16 by a short spurt during the first three minutes of the final half. This was the only time the visitors threatened the Presidents, who did not take long to put a safe number of points between them and sew up the game. The lineup:

W. & J.—30.		CARNEGIE TECH—19.
Kirkman	F.	High
Robinson	F.	Crum
Sanders	C.	Bond
McMunn	G.	White
Gilchrist	G.	Hitchcock

Substitutions—Lewis for Robinson, Robinson for Sanders, McKissock for McMunn; Carnegie: Stauffer for High, Mehrman for Bond, High for Stauffer, Bond for Mehrman, Kilgore for High. Field goals—W. & J.: Kirkman 6, Robinson, Sanders 5, Lewis, Gilchrist; Carnegie: Crum 2, Bond, White 4. Foul goals—W. & J.: Kirkman, missed one; Robinson, 1 out of 3; Sanders, 1 out 1; Lewis, missed one. Carnegie: High, missed one; Kilgore, missed one; Crum, missed one; Bond, 2 out of 3; Mehrman, 1 out of 1; White, 1 out of 2; Hitchcock, 1 out of 1. Referee—Al Stack. Umpire—Cal Bolster.

GROVERS BEAT THIEL

GREENVILLE, Pa., Jan. 18.—Grove City barely nosed out Thiel, 29-25, here last night in a fast, close game featured by the comeback of the local quint during the final minutes of the game. The visitors piled up a big lead in the early minutes of the second half, but were extended to retain their advantage at the finish.

WESTMINSTER VICTOR

MEADVILLE, Pa., Jan. 18.—Westminster's powerful floor team overwhelmed Allegheny's passers, 44 to 11, in a one-sided game here last night. Westminster piled up a 25-7 lead in the first half and never was headed.

Duke Gridders Start "Spring" Practice

IN THE "good old days" of the flying wedge and $14.56 gates, the college football season opened in October and, if the players were sufficiently hardy and enthusiastic, it lasted until November.

Today the closed season on footballers extends over a period of one week.

About a week ago Pitt's mighty gridiron Panthers returned from the Far West and brought the 1927 football campaign to a timely close.

Yesterday Elmer Layden, head grid coach at Duquesne, called his huskies out for "Spring" practice—and the 1928 football season got under way with a frigid bang.

More than a score of would-be champions of the Duquesne grid cause, all in full uniform, answered Layden's call. Assistant Coach Weibel assisted in the tutoring.

With the opening game only eight months away, Coach Layden realizes that little time is to be lost. Grid fundamentals were handed out fast and furiously.

Spring grid practice on the Hilltop will be staged twice each week so long as the weather remains clement.

Sale of Small Ball Clubs Scored

DUBUQUE, Ia., Jan. 18—(AP.)—The home town spirit "which makes baseball great" is being squelched, President Belden K. Hill, of the Mississippi Valley League believes, by the major league practice of buying small league clubs as player farms.

Addressing the league owners in annual meeting here, President Hill said it is "nothing less than craven to allow outsiders of higher leagues to come in and take over our home town club."

"It is not," he added, "the true American spirit."

ATLANTA SIGNS SPENCER OF LITTLE WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 18.—Carl Spencer, southpaw pitcher, of this city, has accepted the terms of a contract offered him by the Atlanta club of the Southern League, and will report for the training camp about the middle of February. Spencer was the property of the Rochester International League club for several seasons. He has pitched in the Eastern, Maine, New York - Pennsylvania, International and Southeastern leagues. Last year he was with Savannah in the Southeastern League and had his best season, winning 21 games and losing five.

The Goslins are eager to win the second-round title in the County League and their showing against the Duquesne Lafayettes indicates they will be in the running from the start to finish. The Goslins were the only team to defeat the Lafayettes.

DRIBBLES

Nate Lippe, former Rauh star, did not get much of a chance to show anything aginst his former teammates last night when he appeared in the lineup of the Butler Veterans of Foreign Wars. Lippe was guarded closely by the Rauhs.

The Western Union basketball team desires games with junior and light first-class teams at home and abroad. Call Grant 8136-W and ask for the manager.

The Goldensons, who dropped out of the P. & O. League race, will meet the crack Ritz Club at the Market House Friday night and the Protected Home Circle Five at Sharon Saturday night.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association passers will invade the coal regions of Pennsylvania in March, meeting Wilkes-Barre in Wilkes-Barre on March 3 and Scranton at Scranton on March 4.

The Five Horsemen of Uniontown this season are forced to play all games on foreign floors and would like to arrange contests with the leading first-class teams in this vicinity. This team defeated such quintets as the Morrys, Duquesne Lafayette and the Cyclers last winter and would make a good attraction for local clubs. Harry O. Shockey is the manager. His address is 104 Pittsburgh street, Uniontown, Pa.

First place is at stake tonight in the Philadelphia Company League when the Duquesne Light passers engage Philadelphia Company. The game is scheduled at Fifth Avenue High School.

The Paramount A. C., undefeated so far this season, meets the Union Savings Bank quintet tonight on the Center Avenue Y. M. C. A. floor.

Fifth Avenue Noses Out Peabody

By VERNON SWARTSFAGER.

IT appears that the game between Fifth Avenue and Schenley High School the latter part of this week in the Pitt Stadium is going to be a hum-dinger, as witness Fifth Avenue's gallant fight to nose out Peabody yesterday to the tune of 29 to 28.

It was Peabody which held the advantage for the largest part of yesterday's game, but it was the fighting spirit that always has marked the basketball teams of the downtown school that brought it through to victory. An excellent chance to get the edge, during the final minutes of play, which it failed to take advantage of, cost Peabody the contest. Sally, a sub, failed to make count two chances from the foul line with only a minute of action remaining.

South Hills kept apace the times by soundly drubbing Langley, 33 to 8, in a one-sided tilt that left the Tunnelites in their same position. Allegheny walloped Oliver, 48 to 17. Perry barely defeated Carrick, 24 to 22, and Crafton went down to defeat before Coraopolis, 34 to 14, the latter being a W. P. I. A. L. embroglio.

As matters stand now in the City League, Schenley and Fifth Avenue each have won two games in Section 1—which supremacy will be settled this Saturday night instead of Friday, as originally scheduled. Westinghouse and South are tied for the next ranking, with Peabody on the tail end.

In Section 2, South Hills holds the top rung, with Perry, Allegheny and Langley in a three-cornered tie for second place. Oliver comes next, with Carrick in the cellar minus victory.

SOCCER NEWS

by TOM BIRKS

THE first inter-state soccer game between Western Pennsylvania and Ohio will be played at Howard Field, Cleveland, Sunday. Final arrangements were made at last evening's meeting. The local all-star outfit will be in charge of Phillip Hillen, vice president of the local association.

However, Cleveland fans may seem assured of success in the forthcoming game, will the return game be an assured success with a heavy traveling expenditure?

Ohio, naturally, is keen upon inter-state battles because of the success derived from the Ohio-Michigan annual battles. But both of these states are blessed with the happy faculty of playing Sunday football, and this counts heavily when expenses must be met. The local governing body has contracted for two games, however, and the obligation must be met. At the present time it is going to work a hardship on local officials to stage a game here.

Mustard Hollow also will be in town Saturday, meeting the McPhersons at the Salt Works grounds. This battle should draw nearly as many fans as the Celtic clash. The McPhersons have a large following and the Mustard Hollow club should prove a great attraction.

PAUL RETIRES AGAIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Paul Berlenbach has retired again. This time the former world's light-heavyweight champion, his friends say, is determined to quit the ring and go into business as proprietor of a New York bowling and billiard academy.

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

SOMETHING like seven rival clubs would like to lure Fresco Thompson and Fred Leach away from the Phillies, but if the famed cellar champs dispose of this pair without getting commensurate value in return they might as well move in on the Blue Ridge League to finish the season.

FRISKY FRESCO is the winning type of player; he can hit as low as .270 and still be an important member of a fighting club, but the former Pirate was clever enough to stay in the charmed .300 circle last season.

LEACH did not hit up to his capabilities, but Fred was dangerous, especially to those pitchers who were in the dark as to how to proceed. Carmen Hill and Kremer were able to stop this country-butter swinger by pitching in a certain spot, yet Fred made things miserable for most of the Pittsburgh sharpshooters.

THE Quaker centerfielder stopped more baserunners than any of his pasture brethren. This does not mean that he possesses the best arm, but it is a fact that Fred carries a gun at all times. He is a fine boy in every respect and deserves to succeed.

SPEAKING of outfielders who trip up the daring baserunners, it is a matter of common agreement that the boy with the best arms gets less chance to catch the sprinters for the reason that they fear him and hence are apt to refrain from taking chances.

TAKE the Cuyler-Lloyd Waner comparison. Little Lloyd is a wonder performer but he is hardly the ideal centerfielder on account of his failure to get "something" on the ball when he flips it to third or home. A lot of runners would try for two bases on Sprout's arm where they would hold up with a fellow like Cuyler or Leach ready to let fly.

IF BROTHER LLOYD could throw like Paul—or, on the other hand, if Paul could run the sacks like Brother Lloyd—well, give either one the missing requisite and he would be just about the best all-around performer in the game.

SPROUT runs the bases with all the judgment of a star of this angle of play. Paul uses bad judgment on the sacks at times; he stole only five bases throughout the whole of last season. But how he can paddle that ball!

SLUGGERS TO LEAD WAY TO CAMP

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Babe Ruth is going after a new home run record. And so is Lou Gehrig.

The mighty sluggers of the Yankees will report at the St. Petersburg training camp a week ahead of the regulars to prepare for another great sprint.

The Babe had his bat pointed for a total of 500 home runs. He has a stack of 416 now which includes a banner crop of 60 from the last campaign. Of course Ruth doesn't figure on corraling the deficit in the approaching drive, but he believes in trying for more than last season.

Departure in advance of the main New York squadron is of the twins' own initiative for they desire to get in some intensive practice before the clubs swing into the championship schedule.

Babe and Lou will hitch on to a contingent of batterymen due in Florida on February 26.

"You can bet your life I'm going to hit more than four homers next April," the Babe said. "If you remember, that was all I turned out last April. I've always been troubled by a slow start and I'm going to see if reporting a week earlier will do any good.

"If I had only hit more homers last April I would have had a lot more on October 1. Not that I am predicting I will break my 1927 record, but you can't hang a guy for trying."

Gehrig was held to four homers last April, also, and he is anxious to start active training.

Ruth's earnings last year are estimated at $225,000, including his $70,000 yearly salary from the Alas, Poor Gene; His Days Are Lean!

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

BENEATH a calm and shady palm
Gene Tunney mourned his lot,
Although the day was full of balm
And climate and what not.

GOLD sunlight kissed the green-clad hill
And songbirds wheeled in air.
All nature smiled on him and still
His heart was full of care.

HE scanned the dreary tidings of
The Sharkey-Heeney scrap,
And though the sky was bright above
A frown was on his map.

HIS hope of million-dollar mills
Had fallen flat and low.
"There ain't no gold in them thar hills,"
He muttered in his woe.

Sharkey's Defi No Barrier

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(INS.)—Tex Rickard was confident today that his plans for a third Tunney-Dempsey bout here in June would not be impeded by the action of Jack Sharkey in filing a challenge with the New York State Athletic Commission for a meeting with the titleholder.

The promoter pointed out that if necessary he could take the fight elsewhere. Rickard leaves today for Miami, Fla., where he will confer with Tunney next week.

James E. Farley, chairman of the commission, said the challenge would not be placed on file until March.

"Under the rule which requires champions to accept a title match at least once in every six months," Farley explained, "Tunney still has nearly two months of grace. By that time he may have accepted a match and Sharkey's challenge would be automatically withdrawn."

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18.—Jack Dempsey, who said yesterday he would come back for a series of fights leading up to a (ho, hum!) third meeting with Gene Tunney next Summer, today said he wasn't sure but that he wouldn't fight any more at all.

If this isn't ballyhoo, what have you?

SPEAKING of SPORTS

by HARRY KECK
SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

THERE is much agitation in local basketball circles these days. Some of the amateurs are on the pan, and there is a heated controversy over the withdrawal of the Goldenson team from the P. & O. League, a circuit which has been branded a professional organization by the A. A. U.

It seems that every season must bring its deluge of bickerings in the floor sport. The amateurs cast aspersions on the pros and vice versa, and both fight among themselves, with the result that both brands of the winter pastime suffer.

AMATEUR basketball hereabouts is in a ticklish position. The status of some of its players is not clearly defined and the authorities therefore find it difficult to cope with individual and group cases that come before them.

Take, for instance, the situation that arises when players in a league that has been called a pro outfit decide they'd like to become amateurs again, because there is no profit for them in the pro ranks, anyway. They find the A. A. U. willing to listen to their pleas and in some cases to reinstate them. There is talk right

IRISH BACK NAVY IN GRID WAR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS.)—Asserting that the Army is confronted with the loss of Notre Dame on its football schedule, Representative Britten (Rep.) of Illinois today made public a letter by Knute Rockne, the Irish coach, to substantiate his statement.

The Rockne letter, written last March, was addressed both to West Point and Annapolis officials and asked whether the service schools observed the three-year rule.

"I presume if we are to remain a member of the Indiana Intercollegiate Conference we will, after the present contracts have expired, be able to compete only with institutions that have the one-year freshman rule and the three-year rule," Rockne said.

Britten declared that if West Point persists in its refusal to adopt the three-year rule other universities will refuse to schedule Army games.

NAVY STILL HAS HOPE

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 18.—(INS.)—There is still a chance that the Army-Navy football game will take place in 1928, although the football world believes that the annual fixture between the service elevens is officially off the program. Commander Jonas Ingram, director of athletics at the Naval Academy, has announced he is saving the date of November 24 for the Cadets.

Although there has been no resumption of the "peace conference" between the superintendents of the two schools and there seems little likelihood of there being, the Navy football officials feel that the Army will once more consider the matter before definitely cancelling the game.

GAME TONIGHT.
Detroit at Chicago.

MANAGER CLEGHORN will stand pat on the same lineup that beat Chicago Monday night when he sends his Pirate skaters against the world champion Ottawa Senators tomorrow night at Duquesne Garden.

The combination will find Smith and McCaffrey on the defense; Milks, Darragh and Cotton on the line. Smith was elevated to the starting defense when Marty Burke reported sick after the Montreal game last Saturday. His play in the Chicago tussle earlier in the week was of such high order that Cleghorn is going to give Marty a rest and continue Smith on the first combination.

When the team arrived home yesterday Dr. H. W. Wuerthele, club physician, was summoned to attend Burke. After an examination the Pirate star was ordered to remain in his room until tomorrow morning. Whether or not he will be able to don a uniform tomorrow night depends on Dr. Wuerthele's report tomorrow morning.

The shifting of McCurry to the secondary line apparently has made that trio as effective as the so-called regulars. In the Chicago setto McCurry scored both goals, with White assisting on one, while Drury put up a bang-up game by breaking up play after play back-checking. The present makeup of the two lines will be kept intact as long as they continue to show as they did in Chicago.

STEVENS MAY COACH YALE

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Marvin Stevens will be "acceptable" as new head coach of Yale football, but no official action yet has been taken on the question of a successor to T. A. D. Jones, who resigned last year, Louis E. Stoddard, chairman of the Yale football committee, said today in taking cognizance of reports that Stevens already had been agreed on.

Selection of a successor to Jones is up to the 1928 Yale football committee, which has not yet been appointed, Stoddard said, in pointing out that no formal action was yet possible. The new committee will be named shortly, however, and the coaching situation will be one of its first responsibilities.

Stevens, an assistant backfield coach for the last few years at Yale, has frequently been mentioned as a successor to Jones and it is understood is favored by Jones for the head coach post.

Stevens, a transfer student, played only one year at Yale, 1923, but was a sensation as a ball-carrier and kicker. He has been an aid to Jones for four years.

Pittsburgh boasts the national amateur soccer champion aggregation in the Heidelberg Club, which has a good chance of repeating this year, and, if it does, should be the official representative of the United States in the Olympic games competition. Berky Jones (shown heading the ball above) was a member of the 1924 American Olympic soccer team and the only player from this section ever to be so honored. He is the best all-round player in this district, being equally good on offense and defense. Five new players are on this year's Heidelberg squad and have made the outfit even stronger than the 1927 aggregation. Left to right in the picture of the new squad are: Back row—Grilli, Courtley, O'Donnell, Fagan, Grandy, Manager Balsarini and Kusis. Front row—Vallani, Chappell, Buff Donnelli, Buck Donnelli, McCoskey, Jones and Stenzel. All are American-born players.

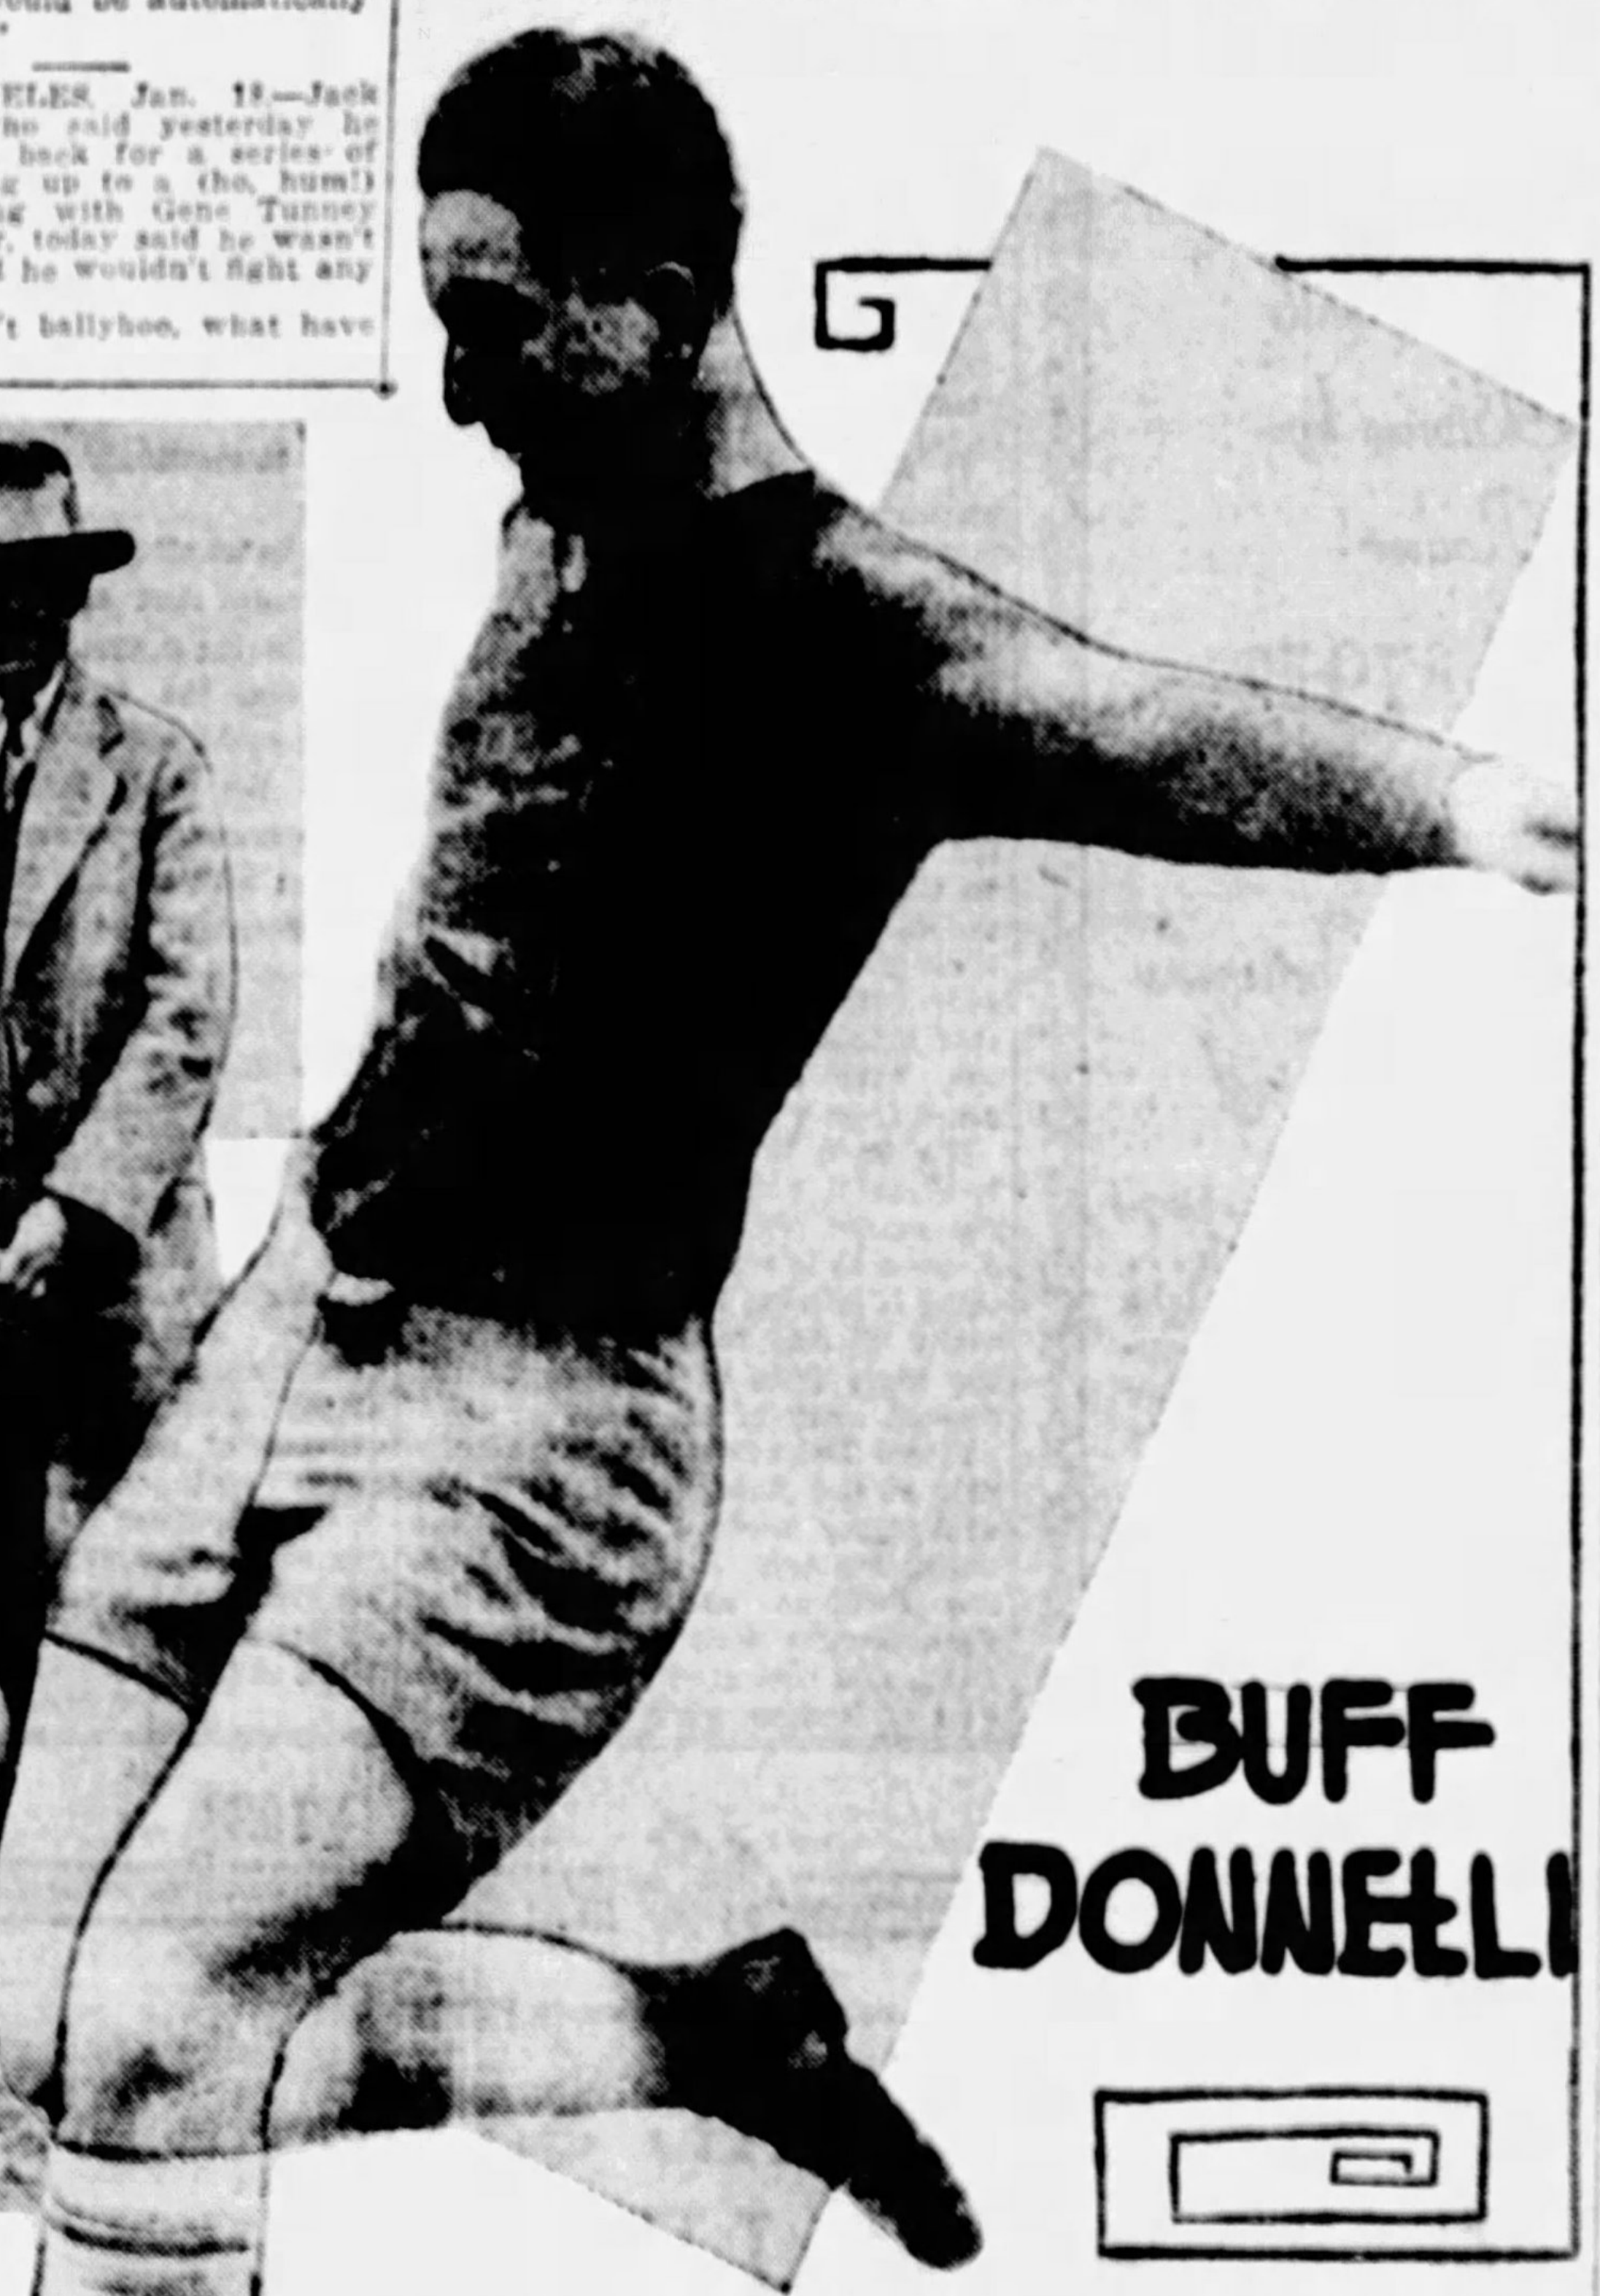
Marathoner, 40, to Try Comeback

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Willie Kohlemainen, the world's greatest marathoner two decades ago, has started training for a comeback at the age of 40 years.

Kohlemainen, a brother of the famous Hannes, has temporarily laid aside his bricklayer's tools and donned running togs in preparation for his entry in C. C. Pyle's cross-continent race starting from Los Angeles in March.



VERSATILE STAR

Buff Donnelli not only is a star for the champions of amateur soccerdom, but also plays in the backfield and does the punting for the Duquesne University football team during the fall season. He is rated the hardest goal-shooting player in the United States and, due to his speed, scores easily from the 30-yard line against the best goal-keepers. This is his first season with Heidelberg. He played for Cuddy in the Keystone League last year. His brother, Buck, also is a member of the Heidelberg outfit.

SHOTS and PASSES

by JULIUS LEVIN

SEVERAL drastic changes have been made in the personnel of the Goose Goslin Club in an effort to bolster the South Siders for the second round of the Allegheny County League schedule.

Eddie Ritzel and Al Ammons, former stars of the Heinz House and for the last two years regulars on the Goslin quintet, have been given their release and the management of the team transferred from Charley Paske to Joe McDonnell.

The Goslins, it is said, will make an effort to land Roy O'Donovan, former Duquesne University captain and star, who was given his release by the Braddock American Legion club of the same league last Saturday.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Mid-Winter Weddings May Be Lacking in Numbers But Make Up for It in Importance

WHAT the weddings of the midwinter season may lack in numbers they make up with the importance of the events and the many entertainments preceding the marriages.

A much-entertained bride is Virginia Hill, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Schuyler Nicholson, of Shady avenue, whose marriage to Frederick Rufus Crawford, you remember, will be an event of Wednesday, January 25.

Two entertainments are planned for today. Mrs. J. Boyd McKown is giving a luncheon this afternoon in the Twentieth Century Club. And this evening the William Loftus Monros, of Wilkins avenue, will give a dinner in their home.

Another luncheon is planned for Friday, when Mrs. Charles Jarrett will give a luncheon in her home on Aylesboro avenue. That night a theater and supper party will be given by Jean Brown Scott, Philadelphia society girl, who will be maid of honor, and James Haller Hardie, who will be best man.

Mrs. Henry Altmiller, of Albemarle street, will give a luncheon in her home on Saturday. On Sunday evening Ann Watt, Virginia Patterson and Harriet Patterson will be hostesses at a supper party in the Longue Vue Club. An informal tea will be given on Monday afternoon by Mrs. Nicholson, mother of the bride, in her home on Shady avenue.

Something rather new in the way of pre-nuptial entertainments is a "spinster" dinner, which will be given on the same evening as the stag dinner—Monday night. Mrs. John H. Nicholson, of Shady avenue, will be hostess at this novel event in her home. The women of the bridal party, of course, will be the guests.

The J. Wood Clarks, of Shady avenue, will give another dinner party, to be an event of Saturday night in the University Club.

Mrs. Harris E. Wainwright and her young daughter, Mrs. Albert Horne Burchfield, Jr., will entertain for the bridesmaids on Tuesday at a luncheon in the home of Mrs. Wainwright.

The rehearsal dinner will be given on Tuesday evening, with Mrs. Rufus Choate Crawford as the hostess, in the University Club.

The John F. Kizers, of Towanda, and the C. Bedell Monros will give a breakfast on Wednesday, January 25, the morning of the wedding, for the bridal party and out-of-town guests. The event will take place in the Pittsburgh Country Club.

The nine young girls, under the captaincy of Mary Louise Johnston, who will sell cigarets at the Aero Club ball on February 3 in the William Penn Hotel, will wear aviation costumes, I hear. And this novel note will not be the only striking feature of the decorations, all to be suggestive of aviation.

Yesterday invitations were issued to 600 society people. There are to be many notable guests of honor from other cities, I have been told. Commander Richard E. Byrd of the United States Navy is expected to be there. Lieut Lester P. Maitland, the first man to fly from the mainland of the United States to Hawaii; Gen James E. Fechet, chief of the Army Air Service, and many others.

This custom of going South or abroad or West during January and February is becoming more and more widespread. There's even something contagious about it, for the more one hears of fascinating travel plans, the more one would like to go forth and see a bit of the world that is enjoying languorous sunny days.

Mrs John A. Beck and her daughter Rhea, who live in the Schenley Apartments, have left for Africa, which this year has become very popular with Pittsburgh folk.

The Mediterranean country has always been alluring to Americans. Mrs. William Whigham of the Schenley Apartments has sailed on the Homeric for that land of the sun.

The land where orange blossoms are now blooming, California, is attracting many. The W. W. Blackburns of Lexington avenue are enjoying motoring along orange blossom-lined boulevards in Pasadena, Cal. They are stopping at the Hotel Huntington. They like, too, the Japanese garden with its exquisite exoticism.

Many Pittsburghers have been in New York. Among them the James B. Laughlins, Mrs. Clifton A. Verner, Mrs. John W. Lawrence, Mrs. Harold E. Williams and Mrs. James T. Campbell.

Mr. and Mrs. John Merton Hipple of Meade street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Virginia Anne Hipple, to John Winchester Baugher, Jr., of Pittsburgh, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Winchester Baugher of Norfolk, Va. An early summer wedding is planned.

* * *

The engagement of Miss Mildred Miriam Robb, daughter of Mrs. Sadie Robb, of Black street, to Fred H. Ludin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Ludin, of Shady avenue, is announced.

The Pittsburgh Alumnae Association of the Kappa Kappa Gamma fraternity will hold its annual benefit bridge party Saturday, February 18, in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association annex. Mrs. William Foraker, president of the alumnae, has appointed Mrs. William B. Lawton, Jr., as chairman.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Mary E. Romain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Romain, of Youngstown, O., and Willard E. Dunkle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Dunkle, of Wilkinsburg, which was solemnized Saturday in Wellsburg, W. Va. Mr. and Mrs. Dunkle will live in Wilkinsburg.

* * *

Mrs. James Edward Leslie, of Detroit, Mich., formerly of Pittsburgh, is the house guest of Mrs. Henry P. Haas of College avenue. Mrs. Haas and Mrs. Leslie have just returned from Atlantic City.

ASPINWALL WOMEN PLAN VARIED PROGRAM

A varied program has been arranged for tomorrow's meeting of the Woman's Club of Aspinwall, chief of its features being a talk by Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, of the Better Magazines Council of Allegheny County. A playlet entitled "What Happened to Mother" will be given by 12 members of the drama department under the direction of Mrs. J. J. Frey. The cast includes Mrs. D. V. Limborg, Mrs. Edith Bryson, Mrs. W. C. Bulmer, Mrs. E. A. Blaswell, Mrs. L. D. Harrison, Mrs. F. A. Henry, Mrs. C. V. Keil, Mrs. F. L. Matlby, Mrs. J. W. Munsell, Mrs. W. H. Reuter, Mrs. R. Paul Scott and Mrs. J. B. Montgomery. Soprano solos will be offered by Mrs. William Wilson Colledge, a member of the Oakmont Woman's Club, Mrs. J. B. Henry, who has arranged the program, accompanying her, and Mrs. D. K. Ballard will contribute readings. For the tea hour, which will follow, Mrs. T. J. Ford and her committee will take charge.

To meet Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, chairman of the County League, and new members of the local unit, the Twentieth Ward League of Women Voters, will hold a reception in the home of Mrs. R. T. Lewis, Sherwood avenue, Friday afternoon. A musical program will be given by Mrs. Hope Adams, accompanied by Mrs. A. J. Green. On Thursday evening, February 2, a benefit card party will be given by the league in Sherrod Temple, Sheridan. Mrs. Frank Duffield is taking reservations.

A paper on "Modern Music," which was given by Mrs. John Snodgrass before the Prytaneum Study Club yesterday, was illustrated with songs sung by Mrs. Frank Toy and Mrs. Frank Norris, with Mrs. Charles Stone at the piano. Piano selections were contributed by Miss Relda Keister. The members met with Mrs. Norris at her home in Eleventh avenue, Munhall.

In celebration of foreign missions month, Mrs. Charles K. Roys will be the guest of the Presbyterian women of Pittsburgh at the William Penn Hotel next Monday afternoon. Mrs. Roys will speak on her recent trip around the world, giving news of political conditions in China. Mrs Roys was for a number of years a missionary in Tsinan, Shantung province, and has been more recently a secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions.

Cordova, Seville, Granada and Toledo—their beauties but more especially their architecture were described yesterday in the talk which M. A. DeVitis gave before the Regent Square Woman's Club. Mr. DeVitis illustrated his talk with views and, in keeping with the topic, George Smith presented several Spanish piano compositions. The women met in the home of Mrs. W. G. Fixel, of Lancaster avenue, and had as guests members of the Woman's Club of Swissvale and Mrs. R. J. Veber, president of the Wilkinsburg Civic Club. Mrs. Fixel was assisted by Mrs. H. H. Hook, Mrs. M. S. DuBarry, Mrs. R. C. Rick and Mrs. F. W. Wappat. Mrs. Oscar Fyler, Regent Square president, welcomed the guests and Mrs. T. C. Rankin responded for the visiting club.

The Hillsdale Parent-Teacher Association met this afternoon and heard Mrs. Harriet Boobyer speak on "The Aims and Purpose of Modern Education." The school pupils gave a program and tea was served.

American music day will be observed in the Congress of Clubs tomorrow by the Outlook Alliance, with Stephen Leyshon, organist and radio announcer as the speaker. His subject will be "Certain Phases of American Music."

A benefit card party will be held in Gimbel's next Tuesday by the Consumers' League of Western Pennsylvania.

MUSIC

Paul Kochanski
Syria Mosque

Gitta Gradova
Tuesday Musical Club

The program:

Concerto A Minor	Bach
Chanson Louis XIII	Couperin
Allegretto	Boccherini
Rigaudon	Rameau
Praeludium et Allegro	Pugnani
Fontaine d'Arethuse	Karol Szymanowski
Tzigane	Ravel
Pavane	Ravel
Cortege	Boulanger
Campanella	Paganini-Kochanski

Greater than all expectations was Paul Kochanski's violin recital in Syria Mosque last night. Last year he came an absolute stranger and won our admiration through his sincere approach to great music, his own personality, and the freshness and individuality of his playing. Last night he surpassed in every way his former playing and established himself among our favorite greatest violinists and musical entertainers.

If we speak of springing, bow, pizzicati, double stopping, harmonics, cantilena and all the rest of these terms which indicate technial difficulties in the life of a violinist, we must say that Kochanski accomplishes them all all with mephistophelean grace and ease. He must study his phrases under a magnifying glass, for their lines are as refined as an engraver's. As for nuance he can carry his tone from the eeriest whisper to almost orchestral grandeur within a few bars, and with that tone achieve effects that I, for one, have certainly never before heard from a violin.

His Bach is never ponderous; it is cheerful and in the andante of the sonata almost a human voice. Kochanski is an actor too. If anything is missing in his playing, how easily we may read his meaning in the tense lines of his face or the sensual sway of his body.

Pierre Luboshutz assisted admirably at the piano, especially in the wild Gypsy music of Ravel and the Polish fantasy. A prelude of Bach, the Siciliano and Rigaudon of Francoeur, a Spanish Dance of de Falla, and that graceful Waltz in A Flat of Brahms were the encores.

Bach-Saint Saens	Chorus of the [illegible] Cantata
Arcangelo Corelli	Sarabande and Gigue
Bach-Busoni	In Thee is Joy
Manuel De Falla	Ritual Fire Dance
Emerson Whithorne	Chimes of St. Patrick
Jacques Ibert	Little White Donkey
Alexander Scriabine	Sonata No. 4
Frederic Chopin	Impromptu A flat major
Frederic Chopin	Berceuse
Frederic Chopin	Mazurka Op. 67, No. 4
Liszt-Busoni	Mephisto Waltz

The Tuesday Musical Club presented Gitta Gradova in piano recital at Soldiers Memorial Hall yesterday afternoon. It was the club's annual artist program and one of the most refreshing recitals heard in a long while. The playing lasted not more than an hour; only the Chopin Impromptu and Berceuse were trite, but they were dressed more interestingly than is often the case.

To be at all fair to Miss Gradova one must first of all consider the abominable acoustics of that upper hall and the fact that a concert piano could not be carried into the hall. We made this pianist's acquaintance last season when she appeared with the Art Society. Then, as yesterday, she impressed by the unusual precision of her fingers and the brilliant flash of her nuances. The cold tone of her Bach is not without its humor when she plays descriptive pieces as Ibert's "Little White Donkey", nor lacking in passion when she drives the rhythms of DeFalla's pagan "Ritual Fire Dance." The limped Sarabande of Corelli and Scriabine's Sonata displayed momentarily a certain warmth of feeling that never becomes sentimental and kept the Chopin numbers from becoming effeminate. The Mephisto Waltz was her genre and a real tour-de-force. As encores came Godowsky's Alt-Wien and Moussorgsky's Hopak.

WOMAN FINED FOR ASSAULT

Mrs. Stella Tarnapowicz, proprietor of a confectionery at 3821 Butler street, was fined $25 on an assault and battery charge but acquitted on a dry violation charge in Criminal Court.

Mrs. Martin Sweeney, 238 Thirty-eighth street, was acquitted of an assault and battery charge brought against her in a cross suit by Mrs. Tarnapowicz. It was testified that a fight resulted when Mrs. Sweeney entered the store and upbraided Mrs. Tarpapowicz for selling liquor to her husband.

McGovern Urges Historic Town Names Kept

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern is "hook, line and sinker" against the changing of names of county roads or towns that have a tinge of historical connections.

"Take the case of Shoustown," the commissioner told his colleagues. "There's the name of a town that should never have been changed. Why the first mail to be delivered to Pittsburgh went through Shoustown. The town is rich in historical memories, but look what they did to it, they canged the name to Glen Willard, and the identity of the town and its history has been lost."

BOGGS & BUHL

remnant day

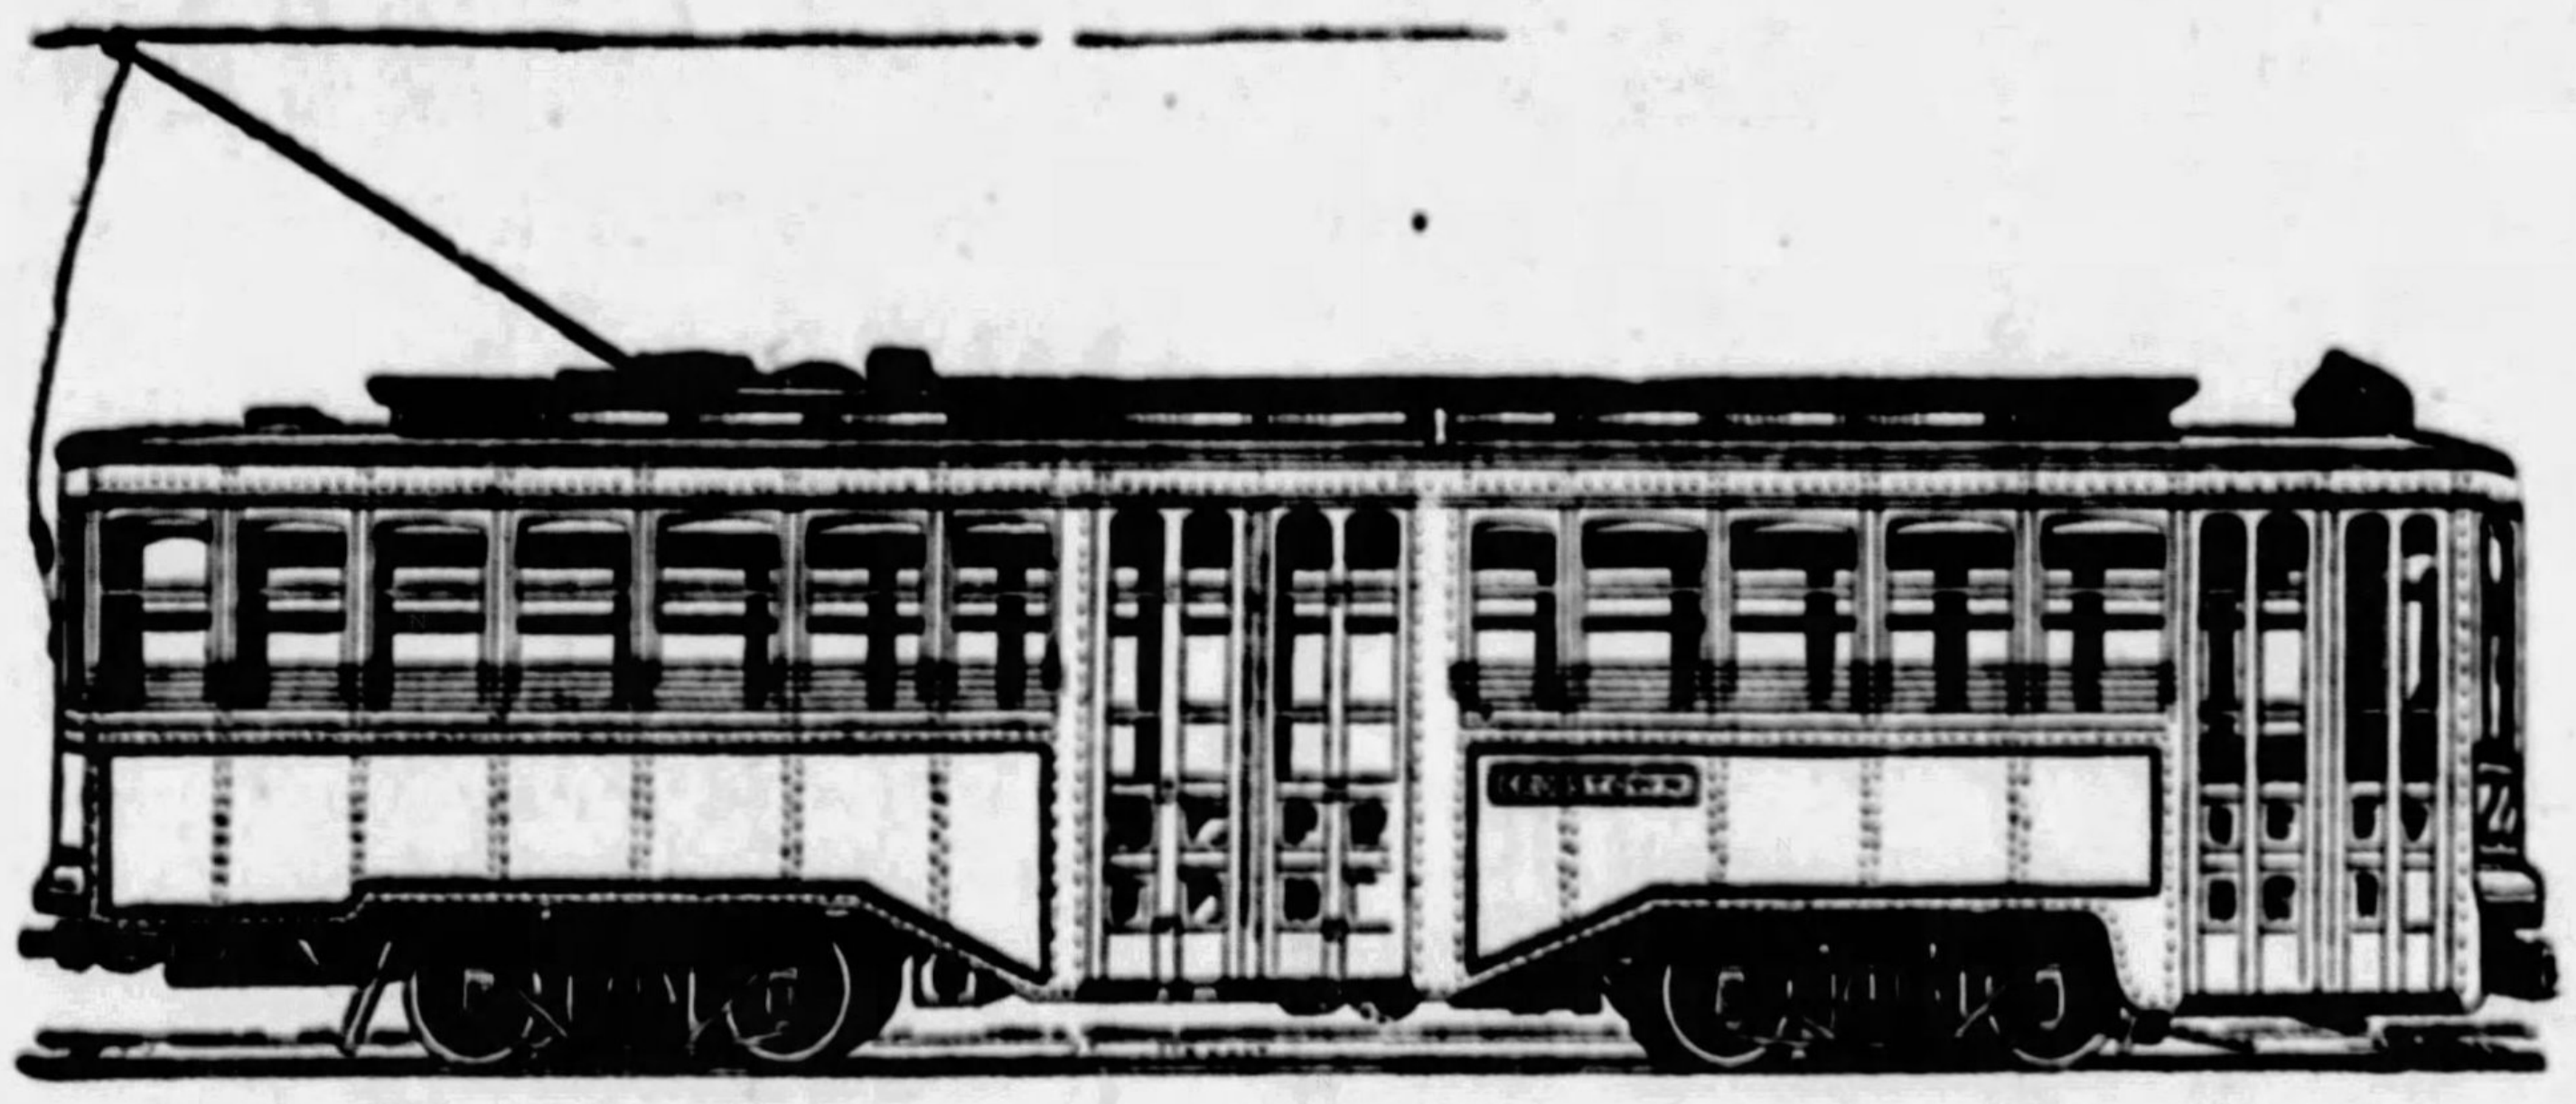
—the greatest thing of its kind in America

The very mention of these words—"Remnant Day"—and the date means the greatest out-turning of shoppers this community ever witnesses. "The Greatest Thing of Its Kind in America"—for good and definite reasons.

The first Remnant Day we know of was held at this store nearly half a century ago—a novelty in those old days—and the novelty and supremacy of this store's Remnant Day has never waned.

It's an occasion that needs no demonstration---thousands of folks come from miles around---hundreds wait for weeks ahead for this day---the store's most conspicuous event,--when Goods and Prices from every department in the store tell a story of dollars saved by everybody who attends---a sale of unusual appeal

From the opening of the doors to store closing values are picked up at first sight---Red Ink (Remnant Day) B & B prices mean just one thing---radically slashed. Friday---Remnant Day will speak for itself---no matter where you live, it will pay you to come---to arrive early---prepared to stay and make a day of it.



Special Increased Street Car Service

FOR REMNANT DAY

The Boggs & Buhl store is already served by street cars every half minute from the heart of downtown and from points on this side of the river. To make it still more readily accessible special extra trolley service will be maintained all day Remnant Day on the Crosstown and the Pennsylvania Station (No. 7) routes.

Your transfer from any city car is good on these routes or on any of the other five routes passing the B & B door.

Remember the following lines all come directly to the store—several others only a block away.

SPLENDID MOTOR PARKING FACILITIES

The Logical Store for Every Motorist

Automobile parking facilities that are practically unparalleled by any other metropolitan store of which we know. Large spacious streets surrounding the park on the Diamond Street side of the store—other streets available within a block.

Even should the immense throngs of Remnant Day crowd these resources, the door attendants at the Diamond Street entrance will aid you in obtaining space for your car in the immediate neighborhood.

It will pay to come a long distance if necessary to this sale—and to make a day of it while here.

EX-POLICEMAN CONFESSED FIREBUG

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS.)—John J. Fisher, an ex-policeman who has confessed, authorities said, to starting two of the seven major fires which yesterday swept the city, explained that he was compelled to set the blazes by an "irresistible impulse."

He was formerly a psychopathic patient at Walter Reed Army Hospital.

Fisher withstood more than 12 hours of grilling questioning before he confessed, police disclosed. His confession was given to police in a written statement.

The confession stated that Fisher, after he heard the engines rushing to the Woolworth fire, the first, he followed them in his automobile and became obsessed with an impulse to "set fire to something." He went to the McDowell Bros.' feed store in Eckington place, Fisher added, and set fire to the place by dropping matches over the first floor of the building. After the fire was well under way, Fisher said he drove to Fourteenth and W streets, and, breaking through a window, set ablaze the Lank Woodworking Company plant by again throwing matches on the floor.

Fisher was not sure about the other fires because, his confession said, he was in a stupor from time to time from his "maniacal craze," and does not remember his movements.

A revised estimate by authorities today placed the damage from all the fires at about $100,000. During the excitement of yesterday they placed the loss at $500,000.

MALONE SEEKS RELIEF

James F. Malone, president of City Council, will appoint a committee to seek other sources of revenue than real estate, which is paying 67 per cent of the taxes in the city and county, he told members of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board yesterday following the noon luncheon at the William Penn Hotel.

A vigorous effort will be made to secure a return of a part of the motor license fees to the city for the maintenance of highways, Mr. Malone said. The license fees are now used entirely by the state. Mr. Malone predicted great progress in public improvements in the city in the next 50 years.

The Charles A. Painter, Jr., residence at the northeast corner of Morewood avenue and Castleman street, Shadyside, has been sold through Henry I. Adair for Walter G. Shotts to Mrs. William Penn Snyder for $60,000. The lot is 77x180 feet and is improved with a 14-room stone house and garage.

B. Thorpe & Co., represented by Harry Averbach, sold for A. V. Trimble to Charles Rosenberg an eight-room house at 2218 Shady avenue, Fourteenth Ward, lot 31x150 feet, for $14,250. The buyer takes the property for a home.

ASK 28TH WARD FIRE HOUSE

A committee was appointed at a meeting of the Chartiers Board of Trade last night to appear before Council to ask for a combination police and fire station for Crafton Heights, the Twenty-eighth Ward. The station also would serve Westwood, Elliot, Oakwood and East Carnegie.

It was reported at the meeting that the plan for a bridge at Liberty avenue, with ramps to Water street and Penn avenue, and a tunnel through Mt. Washington connecting it with Banksville road, was being approved by many civic bodies in the county.

POSPONE VOTE FRAUD CASES

The first of numerous election fraud charges, scheduled for trial today in Criminal Court, was postponed until tomorrow by Judge James R. Macfarlane yesterday on the request of Attorney Rody Marshall, busy in Common Pleas Court. The defendants, from the Twentieth district of the Tenth Ward, are Michael Andrews, judge of election; Jacob Steine, acting inspector; E. J. Bennett and E. N. Fink, all members of the election board, and Carrie Weaver, overseer. First Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park represents the prosecution.

"GIANT" POWER IS PLANNED HERE

"Lindy" at Brooks Field, Fitting for Pilot's Wings

An Apt Pupil He Proves and He Is Soon Ordered to Fly Around Alone

In yesterday's chapter of "We" in the Sun-Telegraph, Col. Lindbergh described his futile attempt to fly to California from Texas. In a small town he tried to take off from the main street, guiding his 44-foot plane between two poles 46 feet apart. He struck a pole and crashed into a store. The owner refused compensation, saying the advertisement was worth the cost of the repairs required. Later, in rough country, the boys' ("Lindy" and Klink), plane was so damaged by Spanish dagger that all "Slim's" spare time was exhausted in making repairs. They decided to return to San Antonio and separate. Lindbergh going to Brooks Field.

CHAPTER XI.

I ARRIVED at Brooks Field on March 15, 1924, but was not enlisted as a flying cadet until March 19. Ordinarily a cadet enlists at the nearest station to his home and is given free transportation to his post of service and back to the enlistment point after his discharge. By enlisting at Brooks I was entitled to no transportation allowance, except, possibly, bus fare back from Kelly, where I graduated a year later.

There were 104 of us in all, representing nearly every state in the Union. We filled the cadet barracks to overflowing. There were two cots to each window, and some of us were even quartered in the recreation hall. We were a care-free lot, looking forward to a year of wonderful experiences before we were graduated as second lieutenants and given our wings. Nearly all of us were confident that we would be there to graduate a year later. We had already passed the rigid physical and mental entrance examinations in which so many of the other applicants had failed. We had no doubt of our ability to fly, although most of us had never flown before and we had yet to get our first taste of the life of a flying cadet.

By the time we had been in the barracks a few hours stories began circulating around which originated from conversations with the last class of cadets who were waiting to be transferred to the advanced flying school at Kelly.

Rumors of "Benzine Boards" and "wash-outs," "academic work" and "eight-hour examinations," "one eighty's," and 'check pilots," "walls with ears" and "cadet etiquette"—these and a hundred other strange terms were condescendingly passed down to us by the old cadets of six months' experience. Someone remarked that less than forty per cent of us could expect to finish the primary training at Brooks and that probably half of those would be washed out at Kelly.

Learning the Rudiments

By bed check that night we had already begun to feel the apprehension which is part of a flying cadet's life from his first day at Brooks until he has received his pilot's wings at Kelly.

Our actual flying training was to begin on the first of April. Two weeks were required to become organized and learn the preliminary duties of a cadet. During these two weeks we were inoculated against typhoid and small-pox at the hospital, taught the rudiments of cadet etiquette, given fatigue duty, required to police the grounds surrounding our barracks, inspected daily, and instructed and given examinations in five subjects. In our spare time we were allowed to look around the post or take the bus to San Antonio, provided, however, that we were back in bed not later than 10 o'clock on Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights. At all other times we could stay out as late as we desired

When we did have a few spare moments in the afternoon, they were usually spent in trying to "chizzle" a hop from one of the instructors on the line.

Learning to Fly

Early one morning we were allowed to take the training ships out and push them to the line for the old cadets to fly. But when one of the planes nosed over after eight husky rookies heaved up on the 150-pound tail, it was decided to put us to work moving hydrogen cylinders for a balloon ascension.

As the first of April approached we were looking forward to the start of actual flying with great anticipation. Coupled with this was the anxiety of waiting for the returns from our examination papers, the failure of any two of which would be sufficient cause for their owner to be washed out from the courses.

The flying instruction was carried on from two stages or different sections of the field. I was assigned to B stage, which was about a half mile out in the field from the cadet barracks. Each instructor had about six cadets assigned to him, and early in the morning on the first day of April our instruction commenced. I was assigned to Sergt. Winston, together with five other cadets. We pushed his instruction plane out from the hangar to the line. Sergt. Winston picked out one of us, told him to get into the rear cockpit and was off. The rest of us walked over to B stage, watching for tarantulas along the road on the way.

In 1924, the Curtiss Jenny was still used by the Army for a training plane, although the 90 H. P. Curtiss OX-5 engines had been replaced by 150 H. P. Hispano-Suizas. The more modern types of planes for training were still in the experimental stage. The Jennies had been designed during the war and they were becoming obsolete, but it is doubtful whether a better training ship will ever be built, although undoubtedly the newest type is much safer. Jennies were underpowered; they were somewhat tricky and they splintered badly when they crashed hard; but when a cadet learned to fly one of them—well, he was just about capable of flying anything on wings with reasonable degree of safety.

I had been particularly fortunate in my assignment of an instructor. Sergt. Winston held the record for flying time in the Amy with about 3,300 hours. He was an excellent pilot, and knew how to instruct if he wanted to. When my turn came he asked me how much flying time I had had, and after I told him about 225 hours he turned the controls over to me, with orders to take the ship around and land it.

Right-Hand Flying

I had some difficulty in flying with my right hand. The war-time ships which I was accustomed to were built to be flown with the left, but after the Armstice it was decided to change the throttle over to the other side, on the theory that the right hand was the natural one to fly with. After three landings, however, Sergt. Winston got out of the cockpit and told me to fly around for 30 minutes and try to get used to right-handed piloting.

When we were not flying we were gathered around the stage house watching the progress of our classmates and learning how to turn the propellers over in starting the engine without placing ourselves in a position to be struck in case it kicked backwards. To a pilot, the propeller is the most dangerous part of his plane, and is a constant source of worry to him when his ship is on the ground among people who vie with each other in seeing how close they can stand to the whirring blade while the motor is still running. Then there is usually a contest to see who can be first to move it up and down after it stops turning over.

A cadet is usually given about 10 hours of dual instruction before he is allowed to solo. The instructor first takes him up, and after flying around for a few minutes, allows the student to take hold of the controls to get an approximate idea of the amount and direction of movement necessary for gentle banks and turns. Then the instructor throws his hands up in the air in full view of the student—the signal that he has turned over entire control of the ship. The cadet is given the opportunity suddenly to realize that flying is not a simple operation of pulling the stick back to go up and pushing it forward to come down, but that an instinctive and synchronized movement of all controls is necessary even to keep the machine in level flight.

BARE GIANT POWER PLAN

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Formal protest against any flood control legislation affecting the Upper Ohio River basin which does not take into consideration comprehensive plans of private interests for the development of electric power projects has been laid before the House Flood Control Committee by C. S. Cochran, an attorney, of Pittsburgh.

The protest of Mr. Cochran, who maintains offices in the Park Building, is prompted by the appearance before the House Committee last week of representatives of the Pittsburgh Flood Commission, who urged that the bill now being drafted for relief of the Mississippi system incorporate provision for flood prevention on the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers.

In an extensive brief filed, it was revealed for the first time that private financial interest, whose identity was not revealed, are laying plans for the development ultimately of a stupendous power project on the upper Ohio basin which would cost more than $200,000,000.

The plan was described as the "Allegheny River and French Creek Power, Navigation and Flood Control Project," and has been under study for some time, it was stated. Murray & Flood, consulting engineers of New York City, completed a survey of the region and filed a report with their employer on October 18, 1926.

According to Mr. Cochran, private interests who are considering the project, are desirous that Congress not take any action towards flood control on the Allegheny and tributary streams without consulting engineers who have already gone into the more ambitious program. He requested that full hearings be held on the subject before a bill is reported.

"I wish this brief," he told the committee in an accompanying letter, "to stand as a stated objection to, or protest against, any flood control or other works in the Upper Ohio River basin, the plans of which do not take fully into account all the economic resources and necessities of the region affected."

It is contemplated that nearly all, or $166,771,000 of the total cost of the project be borne by the state and Federal governments, with the remaining sum by private interests, representing plant costs. Sale of power would yield a good return both to the government and to the private developers, the report stated.

The cost of contemplated improvements on the Allegheny was placed at $152,181,000, and on French Creek at $55,200,000. Construction would include dams, reservoirs, lands, locks and navigation facilities, all municipal, railroad and property damages and adjustments

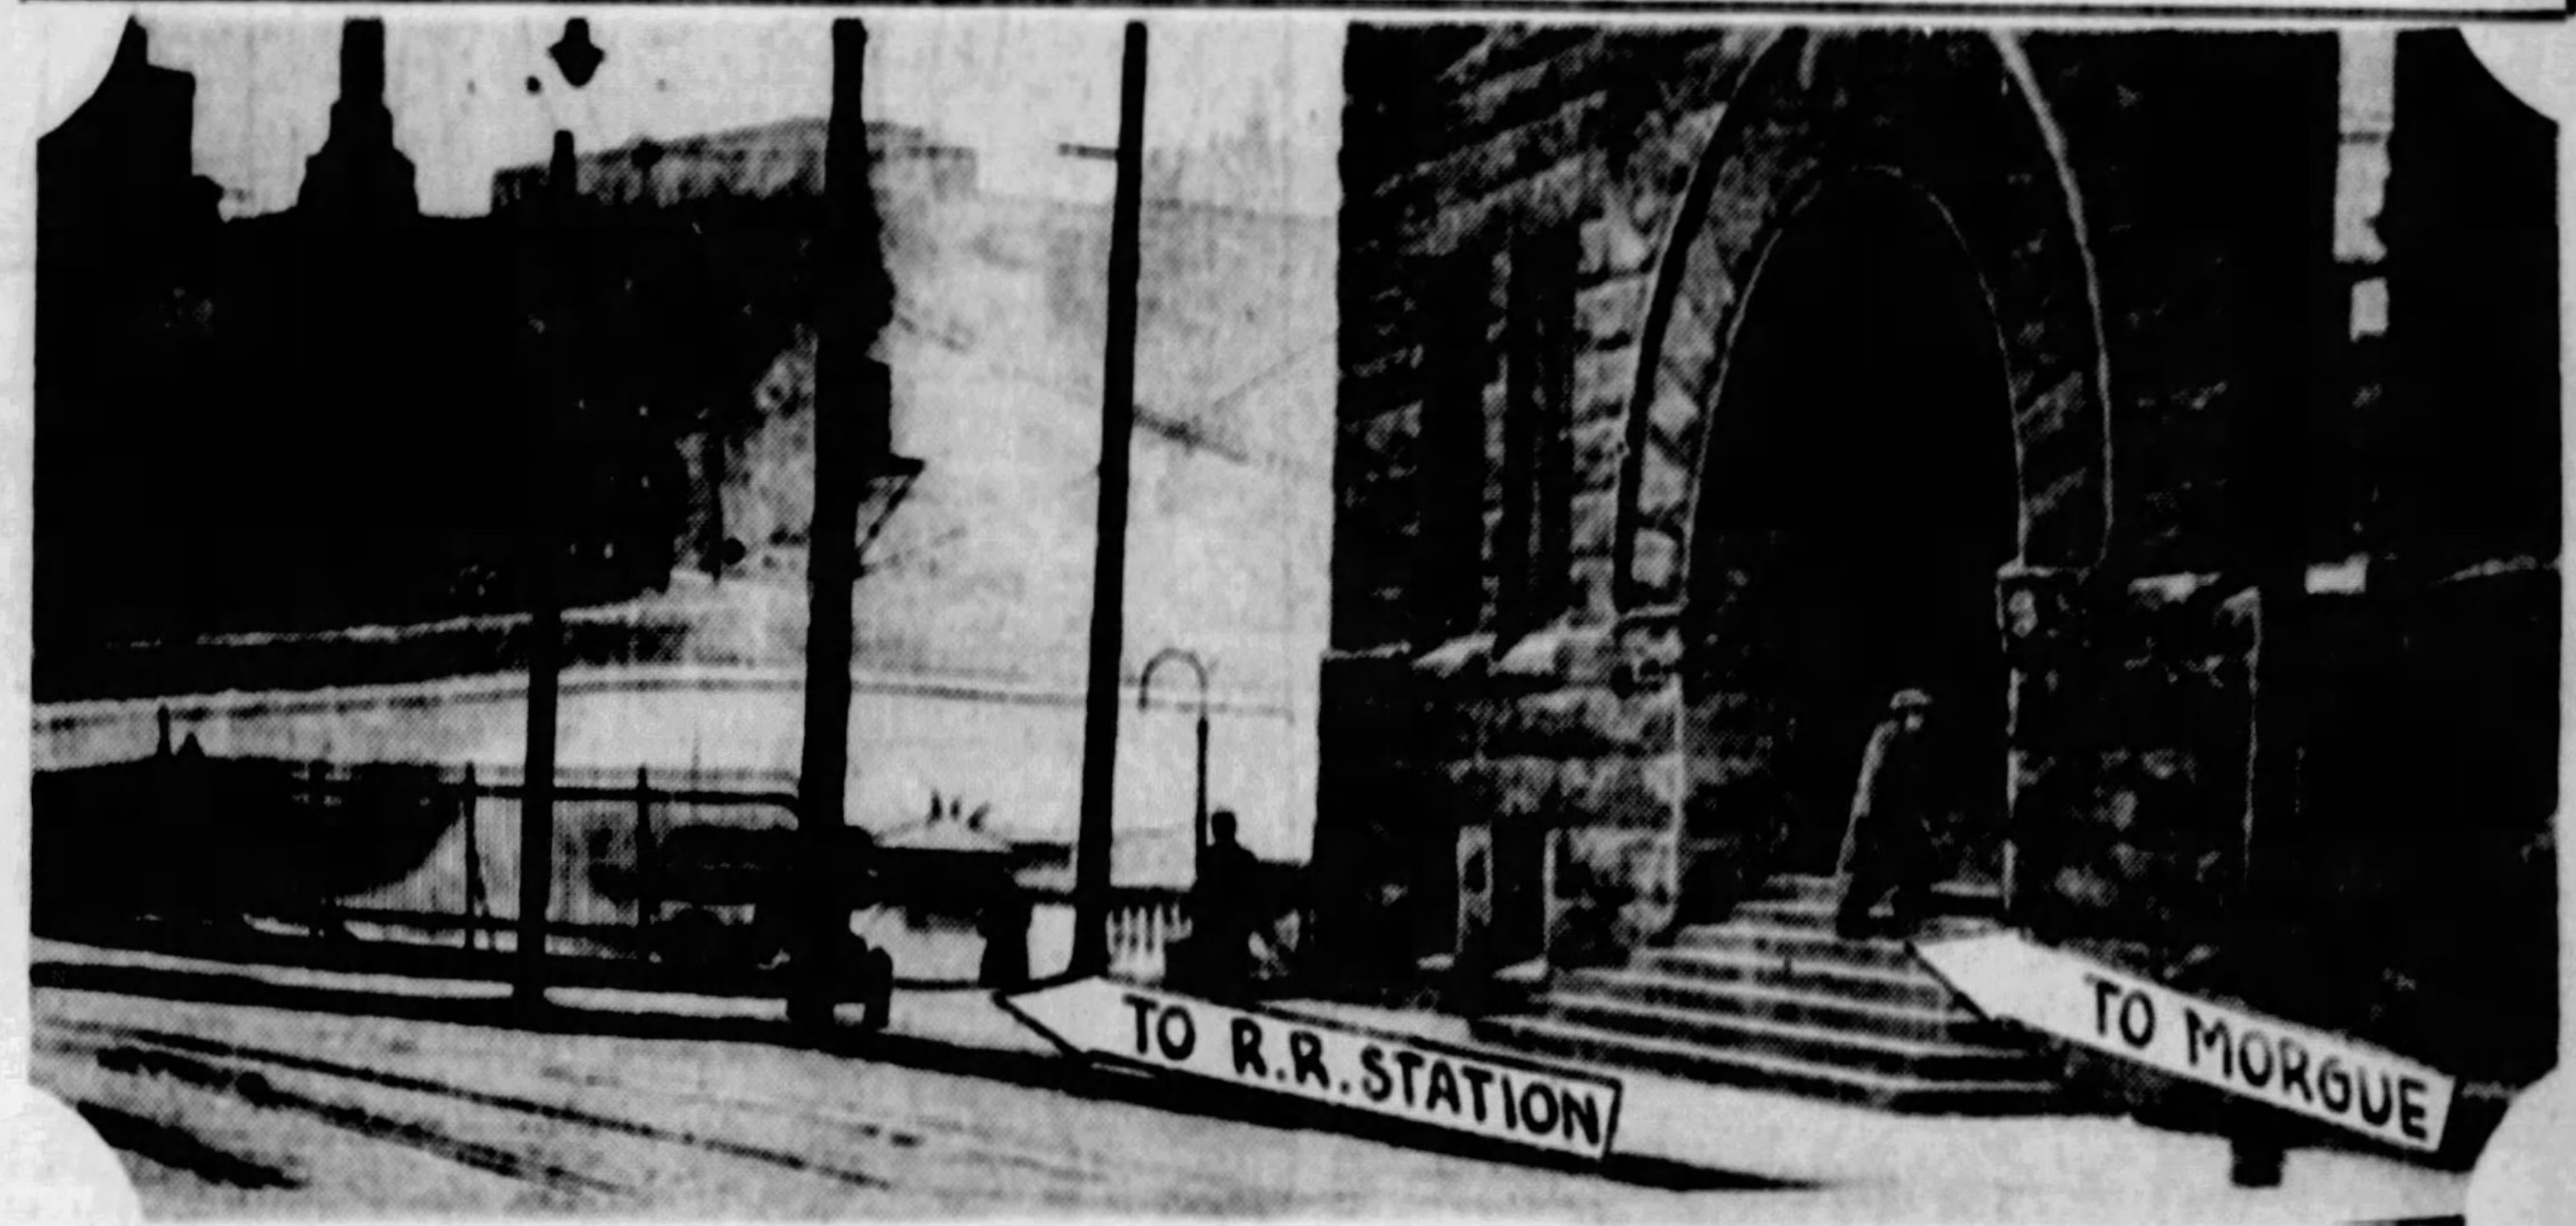
LAST MINUTE RUSHES TO TRAINS END IN MORGUE



WATCH YOUR STEPS!

It makes a lot of difference whether one goes up the steps to the right, or down the steps to the left, shown in the picture. The steps at the left lead to the Panhandle station of the Pennsylvania Railroad, where trains roar out of the Fourth avenue tunnel, bound for the open fields of Washington county and points south. The steps at the right lead into the hushed halls of death, the Allegheny County Morgue, where the journey of life is over for many of the city's people. Many persons hustling for trains, dash into the morgue building, mistaking their steps, and a confused consternation follows. It is suggested by travelers that the County Comissioners post notices sufficiently large to denote which steps to take, the ones leading to the morgue or the ones to the trains.

LOOK FOR SANTA OF CHINATOWN

An oriental mystery which might be entitled, "Who is the Chinatown Santa Claus?" developed in a hearing before the United States commissioner yesterday, when Yee Hong Cheung, proprietor of a store at 519 Third avenue, and Lee Ah Hoon, father of George Lee, Chinese politician who died recently, were arraigned on a charge of possessing smoking opium unlawfully.

The mystery concerns the identity of the donor of a Christmas package containing three silk handkerchiefs and four ounces of opium, handed City Detective Frank Ferris by Lee Ah Hoon the day before Christmas, which resulted in the arrest of the latter and Cheung by Detective Ferris and Government Narcotic Agents W. T. Duffy and Joseph Colebaugh, for alleged violation of the Harrison narcotic act.

Getting details into evidence from the defendants and Chinese witnesses, took the combined efforts of the commissioner, Assistant Federal Prosecutor Zeno Fritz, Attorney Louis Little, counsel for Cheung, a Chinese interpreter and others. Attorney Little declared he believed some of his client's countrymen were trying to "frame" Cheung, and severely cross-examined Yee Tom of 1200 Federal street, a government witness, as to whether he had had differences with Cheung over money matters.

A letter in Chinese had reminded Cheung that the Christmas season was near, the time for presents. He was told in the letter to wrap up four ounces of opium in three silk handerkerchiefs and to place the package on the mail box in front of his store for "Gold-tooth Fish," according to the interpretation. The letter, signed "J. G. Frank," contained a postscript reading, "You had better do this if you know what's good for you."

Cheung, according to the testimony, carried out the demands and Lee Ah Hoon, it was testified, told Detective Ferris about the package and went to the store and got it for the detective. Before the presentation Yee Tom, it was testified, had told Ferris of the "present." How he had learned of it was not developed.

Cheung was held for court and Lee Ah Hoon was held as a material witness.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH
by Harry J. Boyle

IT IS one of the major beliefs here that what oldsters refer to as the good old days are no more interesting than the present times. What gives the past a romantic halo is nothing but a change of vision. What, to old-timers, seems dull and gray in the present, takes on a lively aspect for youngish eyes. And it is true as truth itself that 20 years from now these times will be just as appealing in retrospect to men growing middle-aged as the period of 20 years ago appears to the middle-aged of this day.*

THE scene and circumstances change, and interesting personalities pass along, but always something new is coming along to replace the old. Such cogitations are produced by listening in the other day to a group of men in their late forties and early fifties sighing just a little for the old order in the Pittsburgh scene.

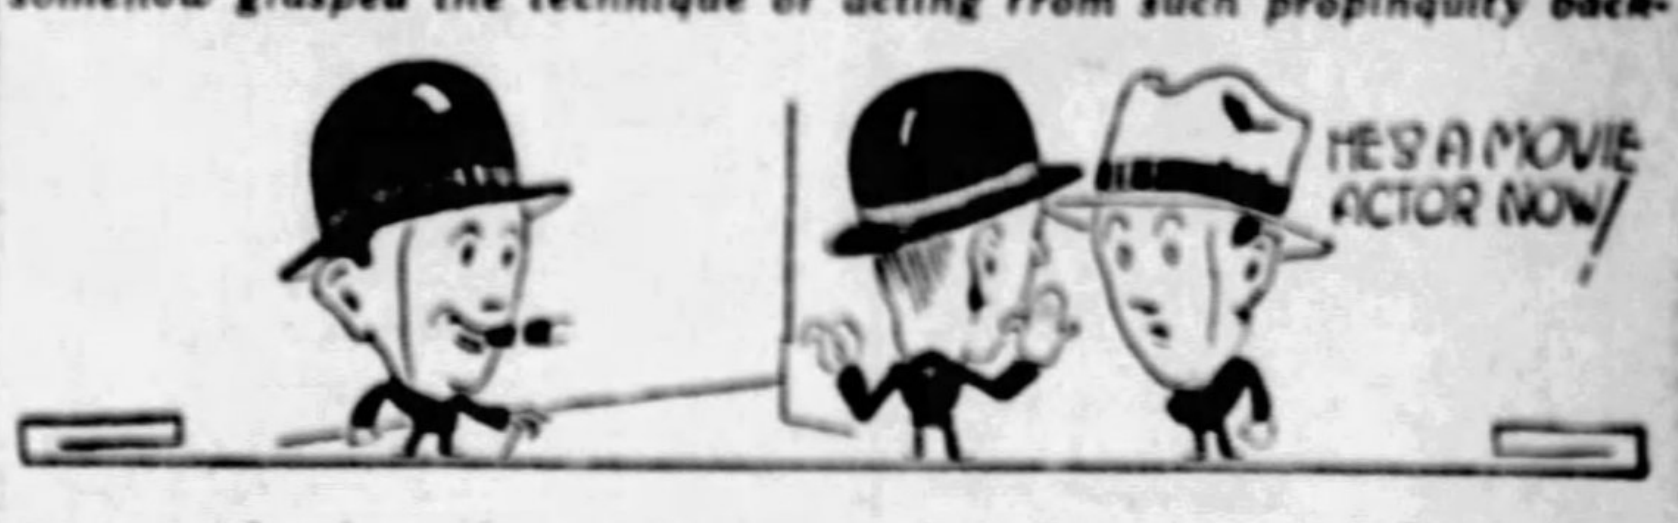
QUITE a while ago, from the stage entrance of the old Grand Theater in Fifth avenue, there moved out between acts a handsome looking stage hand to take a smoke or to get a breath of fresh air. He somehow grasped the technique of acting from such propinquity backstage, and when the movies were first becoming prominent Pittsburghers, who knew the stage hand, were delighted to read how Maurice Costello was viewed as one of the best romantic types on the screen.



HE'S A MOVIE ACTOR NOW!

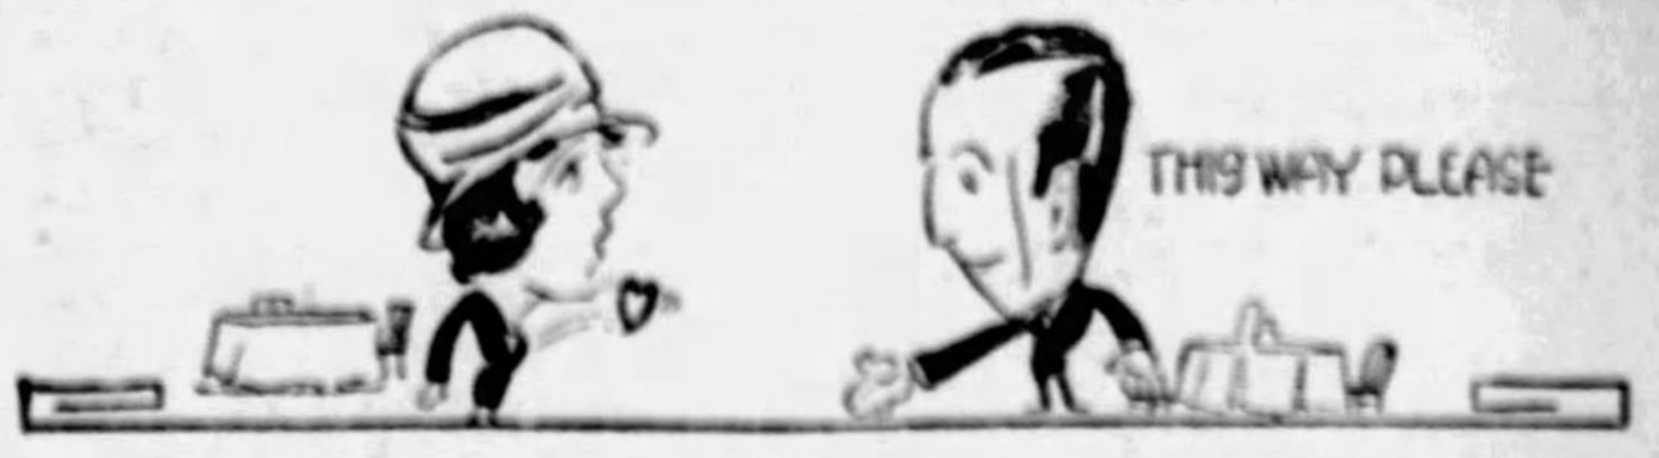
A LITTLE earlier there was a restaurant in lower Fifth avenue—a restaurant with a fine appeal for the discriminating. It was operated by a foreign-lookinig gentleman named Albert Menjou. Assisting the father, doing small jobs about the place, was a dapper son. His name was and is Adolph. At the present time, in any large city of the land, you will see him on the screen or will see posters telling of this former restaurant helper appearing in some suave comedy of modern manners. Pittsburghers, who dined at Menjou's place in those days, of course, had no idea that in the nineteen twenties the young man then about the place would be an internationally known favorite of the cinema.



Incidentally, Menjou is such a good actor that he made that great hurdle—jumping from heavy roles to the heroic mould. He wears a dress suit and two-gallon hat with more naturalness than an ambassador.

IN THE same section of town—downtown Fifth avenue—there was an amusement place called Harry Davis' Eden Musee. There was a balcony in front of the place and during certain periods of the day a somewhat raucous band played stirring tunes to cause onlookers to stop, listen and read of the wonders going on inside. Some persons with no soul for the higher things instituted injunction proceedings against this innovation and thereafter the band did its stuff inside.

IN RECOUNTING these events of another day, which bring back to the oldsters purple-tinted memories, the small group of men sighed pleasantly. There was a little silence as the cigar smoke at the dinner table decorated the reveries and then one of the men said: "Pleasant, no doubt, but 20 years from now another group will be sitting around and in the same identical tone that we have used in our reminiscences will be talking in hallowed tones of what right now seems quite common-place. Some will remember the dances; others will remember historic ring affairs at Motor Square Garden, others, characters of the stage now appearing in their prime at the local theaters, and beyond all doubt one of the group will say: 'Ah, those were the days.'"

A SAVANT has noted that a man in reminiscing uses a more appreciative and certainly a better-matured brain with a pair of young, romantic eyes—a combination that cannot help but bring a pleasant picture to the mind. It is a special kindness of nature which allows for pleasant memories of an interesting past.

Lily Forgets to Send The Laundry and Pat Is Angry

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

LILLY LEXINGTON, spoiled daughter of the CYRUS LEXINGTONS, is engaged to marry STALEY DRUMMOND, a rich bachelor much older than herself. She is fond of him, but realizes she does not really love him the day after she accepts him, when she becomes instantly and violently infatuated with a taxicab driver whom she sees down town when she goes to meet her chum, SUE CAIN. Forgetting all about Sue, she jumps into his cab and he drives her home. She learns that his name is PAT FRANCE and that he owns his own cab in a company headed by his friend, ROY JETTERSON. He tells her that he is going to sell it to finance a piston ring that he has invented, and he and his cab vanish from the streets. Lily misses him terribly, and decides she cares too much for him to marry Staley Drummond. But Mrs. Lexington announces the engagement, and the date of the wedding is set for June tenth. Then, on May tenth, Mrs. Lexington hires a new chauffeur, and it is Pat France. Lily tells her mother how much she cares for Pat, and Mrs. Lexington humiliates him so that he leaves the house. Lily leaves with him, and the next day she marries him. Lily asked to clerk in the Frances' grocery, decides to leave Pat. They make up and she tries to make the best of her position. Lily tries to get her clothes from home. She is invited to a party at the Jetterson's home and sees Elizabeth Ertz. She quarrels with his mother, and they take a little flat by themselves. Lily spends her $200 on clothes instead of fixing up the flat with it, deciding that the way to hold Pat's love is to be beautiful, no matter how the house looks or the cooking is done. She tries to think up ways of cutting down on the household drudgery.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"YES—that dress in the window. The gray-green one," Lily answered. "I'd like to see if it fits me."

It did. And so did the little slippers.

Lily bought them and wore them home, and when she arrived there at 5, after lunching with Sue, she had just 15 cents in her purse.

Not only her father's $200 were gone, but $10 that Pat had given her for household expenses were gone, too.

"Never mind; I can open a charge account at the delicatessen," Lily said to herself. "I ought to have one, anyway."

She was used to charge accounts, and she liked them. . . . It was so simple to just say "Charge it, please," and whatever you wanted away with you!

[illegible] flat looked most untidy when she opened the [illegible] had left the bed unmade, [illegible] dishes from her breakfast unwashed, and last night's supper dishes piled in the sink where she had rinsed them the night before.

She set to work to put things to rights, still wearing the new French dress. It never occurred to her to take it off. . . . She had bought it so as to be beautiful in Pat's eyes, and beautiful she was going to be!

By the time he got home at half past six everything was in order—or what Lily called order.

The spreads were pulled up to the top of the beds and the pillows laid upon them. The ash tray on the bedside stand had been emptied of most of its ashes. The dining room table was set with some rather sticky looking china.

In the sloppy little kitchenette Lily sat on a high stool opening cans. A can of beans and pork, a can of imported sausage, a can of peaches, a can of marshmallow "fluff" to pour over the peaches.

"Supper's almost ready," she sang out, her eyes like stars above the glory of the dress. And Pat, looking at her, forgot his disappointment in not finding potatoes cooking on the stove, coffee bubbling in the pot, and the kind of supper that a hungry man needs waiting for him on the table.

He took his bride in his arms and kissed her until she had very little breath left in her body and nothing but wild happiness in her heart.

"Oh, I love you even if you are poor—and so stingy that a nickel doesn't mean anything more to you than your right arm!" she sighed, kissing him.

"I'm sorry—but I've got to be stingy for a while," Pat answered.

That night, lying in bed, thinking things over, Lily decided that she must always look nice when he came home at night. She must never let herself get down at heel and fat and funny looking, as so many women who did their own work did. . . . And she fell asleep trying to figure out ways of cutting down her housework. She thought of one splendid way!

CHAPTER XXXI

LILY'S new plan was to go to the little Boyle street restaurant for her breakfast instead of trying to get coffee and orange juice for herself in the flat every morning.

"It won't take any more time to run down to the corner," she decided, thinking it over the next morning as she lay in bed staring up at the sunlit ceiling of her room, "than it would take to fuss around here, opening cream bottles and squeezing oranges. To say nothing of washing the dishes afterward!" She hated to wash dishes.

There was nothing about the work around the flat that she did not hate, as a matter of fact. She loathed bed making. She despised dusting and sweeping. And as for taking care of the soiled clothes that kept piling up and piling up at the back of the clothes closet—well, she just didn't know what to do about them.

"I must ask Pat about laundries," she said to herself that morning on her way to the little restaurant." He must know where his mother sent his shirts to be washed." Then she remembered vaguely that Pat had said something to her, not so long ago, about washig them herself! But, of course, he had been joking.

"Not that I wouldn't be glad to wash them," she thought. "But he'd never expect me to. . . . Why, that's work for a horse or a machine!"

She remembered, too, as she drank coffee and ate waffles at a shining white counter, that she had promised him that she would not fail him if only he would marry her—that she would do all the things that a poor man's wife has to do, and do them willingly. . . . Oh, well, people always were making wild promises before they were married! And who kept promises, anyway?

She went home and looked at the mountain of dirty clothes in the closet. A close, musty odor seemed to come from them when she opened the door.

She shut it quickly. "I really must send these clothes out to be washed," she told herself. And then forgot them!

Pat France might work by the sweat of his brow in a greasy machine shop or garage all day long, but he was one of those scrupulously clean people who never wear the same change of clothes twice.

Every morning he put on everything clean—clean underclothing, clean socks, clean collar, and tucked a clean handkerchief or two into his pants pockets.

But on the following morning, when he opened his dresser drawers, he found them empty.

Lily saw the blank look that crossed his face, as she lay watching him with eyes that were just open and that was all. He turned to look at her and she let the lids drop.

"Babe? You awake?" she heard him ask softly, coming to the side of her bed. She never moved a muscle.

Then, after a second, the closet door squeaked and she heard him throwing out some of the soiled things on the bedroom floor. . . . She opened her eyes again to see if he were finding the clothes he had worn the day before.

He saw her. "Gosh, I'm glad you're awake!" he said fervently. "I can't find anything clean to put on. . . . I suppose you've got the laundry hidden away somewhere. Women certainly can find more hiding places for things that ought to be in plain sight. "He shook his head, with its dark hair still wet from the shower.

His wife yawned and sat up in bed. "Do you love me, Mr. Zip-zip-zip?" she asked him, her pretty head to one side, her eyes wide and dewy with sleep.

Pat frowned, one eye on the little tortoise-shell-and-gold traveling clock that belonged to Lily and stood among her toilet things on the dresser.

"Sure, I love you," he answered abruptly. "But—look at the time. I've overslept, and I should have been at work an hour ago. . . . Have I any clean clothes or haven't I?"

Lily glanced at the clock. It was five minutes past eight.

"Why don't you get yourself an alarm clock?" she asked, although she knew that he had decided not to spend an extra dollar for an alarm clock. Daylight coming into the room always wakened him, he had told her.

"Lily, have I any clean clothes?" He was impatient now.

Lily fell back into her pillows and shut her eyes.

"I'm not going to answer you when you use that tone to me," she said, sullenly.

She waited for him to come and beg her pardon—to gather her into his arms and hold her tight and kiss her as if he never would stop.

But he did not come near her. She stole another quick glance at him. . . . He was tying his necktie under the collar of yesterday's shirt, and the clean, well-groomed look that had first drawn her to him was gone, in spite of his bodily cleanliness and his careful close shave. He was scowling at his reflection in the glass.

She closed her eyes, and a moment afterward she heard him go out of the room. . . . Surely he wasn't going without kissing her when he knew she was awake.

The sound of the living room door opening came to her—then the opening and closing of the door that led into the hall. He was gone!

For a moment Lily was angry. Then she began to see that she had been in the wrong. . . . She really should have sent those clothes to the laundry. After all, it was part of her job to see that clean things were ready for him every day so that he could go out into the world of men and business and keen competition, looking his best.

She sat up in bed, throwing off the sheet and blanket that covered her.

Two minutes later she was in the shower, and three minutes after that she was drawing on her long pearl-gray chiffon stockings. She ran a comb through the bright fluff of her hair. . . . Fifteen minutes after eight, Pat would just be ordering his breakfast in the little restaurant on Boyle street.

"I'll catch him, all right," she said to herself, picking up her hat and coat and dashing out of the apartment. . . . She was going to go down to the restaurant and kiss him before he went away for the day. She would tell him that she had been a bad wife, and beg his pardon.

Lily was very vain, and she always pictured herself as she would look doing certain things. . . . Now, as she ran down the street under the blowing trees, she pictured herself opening the screen door of the restaurant and tip-toeing up behind Pat as he sat at the counter. The waitresses would smile as she laid her hand over his on the white-enameled counter to surprise him as he sat there reading his paper while he waited for his coffee to cool—

But Pat was not reading his paper when she opened the swinging doors of the small white lunch room.

He was talking to a girl who sat beside him. A girl whose blue hat and jacket seemed vaguely familiar to Lily. Then she turned her head to answer Pat. It was Elizabeth Ertz!

Elizabeth Ertz—Lily backed out of the door and stood on the sidewalk, too stunned to know what to do.

"Perhaps I ought to go back and sit down and act as if nothing were wrong," she said to herself.

But she wondered if she could. . . . And besides, why should she behave as if nothing were wrong when a newly-married man was meeting his old sweetheart for breakfast—sitting close to her—smiling at her—

"I'll bet it happens every morning!" Lily went on thinking, working herself up into a towering rage "That's why he gets up and sneaks out of the house without waking me! Telling me he doesn't want me to get up and get his breakfast for him! No, I guess he doesn't. He'd rather come down here and moon over that Flat Heels!"

She forgot, in her fury, that it had been she who had refused to get breakfast for Pat—that she had pretended to be asleep every morning just so she wouldn't have to get up at the peep of dawn to bathe and dress and cook a meal for a hungry husband.

Suddenly she decided to have the thing out then and there. "No use fooling around about it! I may just as well get to the bottom of it now! If he cares for this Pale Face—"

Well, suppose he did care for the Ertz? That was a new thought and a frightening one. It stabbed Lily like a knife. Suppose Pat didn't love her any more? Suppose he had found that he cared more for the little nurse?

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Story by Lloyd Mayer

MARGY, I JUST HAD TO TELL NOISY, WE'VE ALWAYS BEEN SUCH FRIENDS!
NOW WHAT?
I TOLD HIM ABOUT OUR COMPANIONATE MARRIAGE!
HE FEELS SOMETHING TERRIBLE!
I DON'T FEEL SO GOOD ABOUT IT MYSELF!
OH! MARGY!
John Held Jr

"My dear, I'm simply LIVid—I mean I'm ACtually so MAD I could GARgle BUTtermilk and spit TACKS simulTANeously because I've actually NEVer seen anything LIKE the POISonous EGotism of ARab, my dear! ACtually, he SIMply asSASsinates me, no less, because f'r instance toDAY, my dear, that FOUL PIPsqueak had the NERVE to inform me that he'd told NOIsy about our comPANionate MARriage idea and he said NOIsy felt TERribly about it, and, my dear, you should have SEEN the exPRESsion of FIENDish GLEE which overSPREAD his MAP when he SAID it, my dear, because of course he was preTENDing to feel awfully sympaTHETic on account of NOIsy's feeling so BADly and ALL, but he REALly felt nothing of the KIND, my dear. I mean he was INwardly GURgitating with GLEE because he thought he'd put one OVer on NOIsy, my dear, because of COURSE he's so conCEITed and all, he ACtually thinks I was PERfectly sinCERE about suggesting we try comPANionate MARrying at this point—can you BEAR it, my dear? I mean when he finds OUT I've just been taking him for a SLEIGHride I bet you he'll PRACticably be ready to ROLL over and BUTter himself with disMAY, my dear—I mean I ACtually Do."

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Grandma Graham Declares That One Link Is Missing in "That Gang of Crooks."

AT Mother Graham's caustic and embarrassing reference to Eleanor Lincoln's pursuit of Noel Veritzen, I turned my eyes involuntarily toward Mary, who had come into the house with me, leaving her admirer upon the veranda. The next instant I would have averted them again, reluctant to witness her confession—only there were no signs of embarrassment to be seen. Even her color was not heightened as she replied with the appalling candor of the young modern:

"You can bet the last doughnut on the plate that she can't get him away. Little Mary sees to that every time? I wouldn't mind lending him occasionally to some girl who would play the game, but to a high-binder like Eleanor Lincoln—no, thank you, merry gentlemen."

Her grandmother put up both hands in apparent horror. But I caught a twinkle far back in the gray depths of her old eyes which told me that her granddaughter's bold little speech awakened echoes in her head of her own spirited youth.

"To think that I should hear a granddaughter of mine," she began, but Mary threw warm young arms around her neck, and smothered her words with a kiss.

"You would have done exactly the same thing, dearest," she told the old lady emphatically, "only you wouldn't have dared brag about it, allee samee me. But I don't care who knows it except Noel. When I think he's beginning to suspect, I'll have to introduce some competition. By the way, Auntie Madge, I do hope that chap at the station with the 100 per cent American name and the foreign baron look finds somebody to introduce him to you, as he asked this morning. He sure looks interesting. If he were around the place, I could afford to let the Lincoln dame have a look-in at Noel occasionally."

I cheerfully could have shaken her for her garrulity when I saw her grandmother's head lift itself quickly and her keen old eyes fix themselves upon me.

"What's all this?" she demanded. "A strange man trying to find somebody to introduce him to you! It seems to me, Margaret, that is a rather unusual proceeding, to say the least."

"It is," Mary agreed, wrinkling her nose at me, and saw that the love of mischief which is one of her strongest characteristics, was guiding this revelation, which promised serious embarrassment for me, if my mother-in-law's suddenly censorious face did not belie her attitude.

"But the whole thing was unusual. You ought to have been along with us this morning, Granzie. It was like having a front seat at a play. But Auntie Madge can tell you about it much better than I can. I've got to go out and talk to Noel until Katie announces luncheon. He might get lonesome."

She fairly ran out of the room with a backward mischievous glance at me. There was nothing left to do but to recount the whole bizarre happening to my mother-in-law, adding the incident of the Pennsylvania station, when the wolfhound had so nearly knocked me down. I did not mention my surmise that Eleanor Lincoln was the owner of the dog, and that she and "George Logan Jackson" were old acquaintances, for I knew Mother Graham's penchant for finding mystery and melodrama in everything. But she did not need any opinion of mine to bolster the theory upon which she immediately seized.

"Margaret, that girl is a member of a band of crooks," she said. "And that man, of course, is another. They didn't expect to meet at that station this morning, and they must have been terribly upset when the dog recognized Miss Lincoln."

She took a deep breath and invested her voice with the deepest irony of which it was capable.

"Lincoln!" she exclaimed. "And did you say that chap at the station called himself Jackson? Now mark my word, when a fellow comes along calling himself Washington, that gang of crooks will be complete."

White? Not these clothes!

THERE was plenty of soap. The clothes were scrubbed thoroughly, and rinsed. But the water was hard. The soap mixed with the hard water, and formed a dirty ring around the basin—scum! The scum got into the fabric of the clothes. That's why the clothes weren't clean.

But they can be clean. How? By washing them in soft water. And how can hard water be made soft? By adding Melo. Melo prevents scum from forming. Melo makes clothes white. Get a can today at your grocer's.

No one is safe!

Society leader, laborer or messenger—no matter who we are—every one of us may offend unknowingly.

BODY ODOR... plays no favorites

AN interesting face—an attractive smile. You're fascinated. Eagerly you approach. And then—body odor!

What a pity! Attractiveness—charm—forgotten.

Yet no one is safe from body odor. And with activities indoors, close, overheated rooms—body odor is more noticeable in winter than ever.

We must perspire to live. Even on coldest days—our millions of pores continually give off invisible perspiration—often as much as a quart of waste every 24 hours.

Body odor more noticeable in winter—due to stuffy rooms—closed windows.

Pores give off as much as a quart of waste a day—even in coldest weather.

Now, a purifying toilet soap. Its antiseptic lather keeps you safe from body odor.

Hard to tell when we offend

Whether you see this body waste or not—the odor is always there. And no one escapes it. Without taking precautions—a society debutante may sometimes offend as seriously as a laborer.

And unfortunately, we may offend—without knowing it!

For once our own sense of smell becomes accustomed to an odor, it becomes deadened to it. This misleads many fastidious people into thinking they are safe—when actually they do offend.

No excuse for body odor now

Yet it's needless to risk body odor now. Simply wash and bathe often with Lifebuoy, the toilet soap that deodorizes.

The same mild, antiseptic lather that helps protect health by removing germs—prevents body odor by purifying pores.

Lifebuoy also keeps complexions fresh and clear. Millions choose it for every toilet purpose.

You'll enjoy its hygienic scent

You will learn to love Lifebuoy's clean scent, which proves Lifebuoy purifies, yet which quickly evaporates after rinsing. Use Lifebuoy a week and you'll use it for life. Get some today.

Scot Tells When to Spend Most; Wise Thrift Defined.

By B. C. FORBES

WHEN should we spend most? What is genuine thrift?

This being national thrift week, the National Thrift Committee asked me to make a little talk over the radio yesterday, on the birthday of one of America's earliest and most zealous advocates of thrift, Benjamin Franklin. Since the only thing a native Scot is ever willing to give is advice, because it is free, I complied.

HERE is the gist of what I shot into the air:

I suspect I was asked to speak on thrift because the committee knew that I hail from Aberdeen, the city from which most of the typical "Scotch" stories come. Springing from such soil, I naturally believe in thrift, within reason.

One of my native townsmen was walking up Union street one mid-afternoon when he suddenly stopped in front of a newsstand and exclaimed, "That's terrible, terrible."

"What's the matter?" asked his friend.

"See, that newspaper headline says, 'Edinburgh Express wrecked near Dundee. List of killed and injured.' My wife's on that train."

He re-read the headline and then started to walk away. Grabbing his sleeve, his friend excitedly asked, "Aren't you going to buy a paper to see if your wife is killed or injured?"

"Na," he calmly replied. "I won't buy one now. I'll wait until evening, then I can get the sports results in it, too."

IN THRIFT, as in most things of life, there is a happy medium. Neither the miser nor the spendthrift is a worthy example. These very sensible thoughts on thrift were expressed the other day by Owen D. Young, before the New England Society, presumably to America's staunchest advocates of thrift:

"The old notion that saving is always an economic virtue and spending is always an economic vice has, at least, been [illegible] in our day. Savings can only mean from the standpoint of society, additional plant account, more or better houses to live in, more factories to produce, more railroads and highways to transport. Whether we put our savings in a savings bank or in life insurance or in investment, it all goes to plant. If thrift were so universal and extreme as the prudent urge, our plant account would quickly outrun our needs.

"So we are not to judge thrift solely by the test of saving or spending. If one spends what he should prudently save, that certainly is to be deplored. But if one saves what he could prudently spend, that is not necessarily to be commended."

ALL through my boyhood, my breakfast consisted solely of porridge and skimmed milk, and my school lunch consisted of oak cakes without butter or jam, and one rather thin slice of wheat bread. But I would not regard it as wise or thrifty to continue that sparse fare today.

My philosophy of money, my philosophy of money-making, my philosophy of saving, my philosophy of thrift briefly and broadly is this:

During the first half of life those who are born poor should use both their time and their money very carefully. They should err on the side of economy and frugality rather than on the side of prodigality. Their expenditures should be more liberal for those things calculated to help them to advance in the world, books, educational courses, desirable contacts, than for pleasures yielding nothing but passing amusement.

If and when comfortable circumstances are attained in middle life, then, in my opinion, it is the part of wisdom to begin to indulge more generously in recreation, in travel, in hours devoted purely to congenial friendships, in whatever hobby or hobbies may possess an appeal.

As old age approaches, with a financial competency assured, the man or woman or couple who neglects to devote time and money to pursuing happiness is, in my judgment, shortsighted.

BUT, and this is an important but: Unless economy, frugality, thrift have been exercised in the first half of life, there is little likelihood of attaining a position permitting of a more liberal measure of relaxation and enjoyment in the second half of life.

I have known many individuals and families who bitterly regretted not having saved money earlier in life. I have known few individuals or families who regretted having saved money early in life. Have you?

Without saving, no man can ever hope to own his own home; he can never hope to own one stock or one bond working for him all day and all night, while he sleeps; he can never hope to own his own business; he can never hope to obtain peace of mind when he approaches the gloamin' of life, he can never hope to enjoy what Robert Burns called, "The Glorious Privilege of Being Independent," in his old age.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN said: "It is hard for an empty bag to stand upright."

Don't be content to be an empty bag. Fill your head with study, with knowledge, with wisdom. Keep filling your bank account, your investment account, systematically purposefully during the first half of your life so that during the second half, and especially during the closing years, you will be able to stand up and hold your head up with the best of them, kow-towing to nobody, sponging on nobody, fit always to play a part worthy of what we in this commonwealth love to call ourselves, namely, sovereigns.

BEAR OUTBREAK SHAKES UP MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—(AP)—A sudden "bear" drive against the railroad shares, which touched off a number of "stop loss" orders, unsettled today's stock market. The reaction came after an opening display of strength in which the public utilities had taken a prominent part. Trading continued relatively dull, however, with indications that the day's total would again fall below 2,000,000 shares.

The raid on the rails probably was inspired by the belief that holders of those issues were becoming discouraged over their lethargic action during the past few weeks. Chesapeake and Ohio quickly broke 5 points, Canadian Pacific 3⅝ and New York Central, Frisco common, Reading, St. Louis Southwestern and a few others sold down 2 points or more.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent and then dropped to 3½, but this was offset by reports of a firmer undertone in the time money market. The weekly steel trade reviews were optimistic in character, Iron Age stating that finished steel requirements are not only growing in volume, but are becoming better balanced. United States Steel common nevertheless sank below 141 to a new low on the current down swing.

Violent fluctuations again took place in some of the high-priced pool specialties. Midland Steel Products preferred tumbled 13 points, United States Cast Iron Pipe 5⅛ and Case Threshing, General Asphalt and Greene Cananea Copper sold down 3 to 5 points.

Early gains in many of the popular industrials were wiped out and converted into losses by early afternoon. The selling was not in very large volume, however, and a few issues continued to display independent strength.

PASS TOWNSHIP SCHOOL ISSUE

The proposed $250,000 school bond issue of Mt. Lebanon township was overwhelmingly approved by the voters of the township at a special election yesterday. It provides $100,000 each for erection and equipment of grade schools on the Sunset Hill and Beverly Hills sites, and $50,000 for the purchase of a site for a new high school.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The cotton market opened unchanged to 4 points higher today on a renewal of yesterday's covering movement, which may have been promoted by failure of the early news to show rains in West Texas and fairly steady Liverpool cables.

Demand was comparatively light, however, and prices sagged off as soon as initial buying orders had been supplied under selling which seemed to come from New Orleans, local and Wall street sources. After touching 18.70c, or 7 points net higher, May reacted to 18.63c and active months generally were holding within a point or two of yesterday's closing quotations at the end of the first hour.

Private cables reported trade calling and continental buying supplied by local liquidation in a comparatively small Liverpool market.

Subsequently, under some New Orleans and local selling, prices sagged to 18.60c for May, or 6 to 9 points net lower. A little trade buying or covering at the lower prices may have been promoted by a report of insufficient rain in Texas. The market was steadier around midday, active months showing rallies of about 1 to 8 points from the low levels. Probable ginnings in Texas were estimated at about 4,125,000 by a private report from Austin.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The raw sugar market was quiet and unchanged early today. No sales were reported but there were further offerings at last paid prices of 4.46c for Cuban duty-paid, with buyers holding off.

The easier London market and continued liberal offerings in the spot market led to renewed selling pressure in raw sugar futures during the early trading and prices at one time showed net losses of 3 to 4 points. Cuban interests bought on the decline and a rally followed later, with prices at midday net 1 to 2 points lower. Private advices from Cuba said that a conference was being held today between President Machado and the sugar defense committee, and some announcement relative to the restriction of the new crop is looked for in the near future.

The refined sugar market was unchanged at 5.80c for fine granulated. Business was mostly in the way of withdrawals, with buyers inclined to be cautious in making fresh commitments, owing to the unsettled tone of the raw market.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Car Loadings Increase.

Loading of revenue freight cars during the week of January 7 totaled 754,082 cars, an increase of 74,462 cars above the preceding week, but a decrease of 179,828 cars from the corresponding week in 1927. There was one holiday in the week of January 7 and one also the preceding week, over which the gain of 74,462 cars was shown. There was no holiday in the corresponding week last year.

American Can.

American Can's report for 1927 is due early next month. It will show a balance for the common stock of around $4 a share against $4.26 in 1926. Lower earnings last year were due to reduced selling prices and the abnormal carry-over of canned goods from 1926. However, accumulation of Can has proceeded with full knowledge of the company's results for last year. It has been based on the reasonable expectation of an increase of the $2 dividend. For several years American Can has been paying out large sums for expansion of its facilities. With this program completed, stockholders are justified in expecting to receive additional payments at least equivalent to the amount heretofore spent for development work.

Farm Machinery Prospects.

"With the exception of a few unfortunate districts, the past year has been, broadly speaking, favorable to agriculture," said H. F. Perkins, first vice president of International Harvester Company, addressing the fourth annual meeting of Midwest Shippers' Advisory Board at Chicago. "During 1927 the farmer's condition continued slowly to improve. Volume and distribution of crops and prices received for them have been fairly satisfactory. Under these conditions, granted normal crops, it is reasonable to look forward to 1928 in the expectation of a fairly prosperous year for the agricultural districts, and consequently for the implement industry. If nature is kind, we may look for reasonable prices for the farmer's product, better operation of farms and a volume of output for the implement industry as large as 1927 showed."

World Copper Output Up.

Production of copper in December by countries which furnish about 98 per cent of the world's total was 146,361 tons, against 141,971 in November and 142,309 in December, 1926, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. For the year ended December 31, 1927, output amounted to 1,635,316 tons, against 1,600,431 in 1926.

German Steel Wages.

The German Steel Trust has raised the price of steel because of a reduction in working hours and an increase in wages. All of which is good news for the American steel producer. The more prosperous European nations become, the easier it will be for the American producer to compete in foreign fields.

Selling Pipe to Russians.

An Amsterdam cable says it is reported from Rotterdam that a German pipe syndicate has concluded a contract for delivery of 50,000 tons of pipe for construction of pipe lines in the Russian oil fields in the Caucasus.

American Rolling Mills.

Stockholders of American Rolling Mills Company who subscribe to new stock at $75 a share may pay for stock in installments, due February 1, May 1 and August 1, or may pay in full February 1. In case payment is made in full, certificates will be delivered at once. These certificates will be entitled to the cash dividend payable April 15, and to all subsequent cash and stock dividends. It has been the custom to pay a 5 per cent stock dividend annually July 15 to stock of record July 1. It is expected this stock dividend will be paid this year, and if so, stock paid for in full will be entitled to it.

City Asks Bond Proposals.

Sealed proposals for the purchase of $3,057,000 bridge bonds and $100,000 road bonds dated February 1, 1928, and each bond of the denomination of $1,000 bearing interest at 4 per cent, payable semi-annually, free from tax in Pennsylvania, will be received at the office of the Allegheny county controller until 10 a. m., February 7, 1928.

Pittsburgh Coal Output Gains.

Production of Pittsburgh Coal Company in all districts in 1927 was the greatest of any year since 1923. Output of 9,123,912 tons was 81 per cent greater than in 1926 and was slightly greater than in 1924, the year before the company's labor troubles came to a head. The past three years have been marked by a struggle with the miners' union. In the summer of 1925 entire production, with the exception of two non-union mines, was shut down due to inability to compete with non-union fields while paying the Jacksonville wage scale. Since then slow but constant increase in production has been shown as miners willing to work at the proffered wage scale were obtained. Production in the district, where the greater part of production is located and where the fight centered, was 7,629,784 tons in 1927, an increase of 104 per cent over 1926, when 3,737,798 tons were mined. Output in this district last year was still less than in 1924, when 8,304,898 tons were mined.

Steel Operations Expand.

An increase of 3 per cent was recorded in ingot production of leading steel companies for past week. United States Steel Corporation is at 78 per cent, against 75 per cent the preceding week, 70 per cent two weeks ago and 60 per cent during Christmas holiday. Independent steel companies are at 70 per cent, against 67 per cent a week ago and 61 per cent two weeks ago. For the entire industry the average is 74 per cent, against 71 per cent in the preceding week, 67 per cent two weeks ago and around 57½ per cent during the holiday period.

BANK STOCKS

THE banking institutions of the United States reported on June 30, 1927, total resources of $60,132,336,000. Banking is not only the largest business in the country but is the most fundamental, for it performs indispensable services for every other type of business enterprise. The capital funds of the banks on the same date amounted to $9,271,131,000 and each year shows a substantial increase in order to meet the constantly growing demands of American commerce and industry.

The remarkable increase in the number of bank stockholders in recent years indicates that the investment merits of bank stocks are coming to be more appreciated. Prudent investors include among their holdings shares in strong, well-managed banks and trust companies. Bank stocks are not necessarily a rich man's investment, as was once thought to be the case, but find a place in the modest investment program of small investors.

Bank stocks possess to an unusual degree the cardinal investment qualities of safety, yield and marketability. In addition, the probability of appreciation in value over a period of time is greater than in any other type of investment for growing surplus and undivided profits accounts are adding constantly to the equity of the stockholders. The immediate return is moderate but stock dividends and valuable subscription rights over a period of time have made the shares of the leading banks particularly profitable investments in recent years.

The expanding scope of banking activities is adding to the earning power of banking capital. The larger commercial banks and trust companies are engaging profitably in the investment banking business through bond departments and affiliated investment companies. The trust business is constantly growing in volume and contributing to bank earnings. The revenue of the trust departments of national banks, newcomers in this field, has more than doubled in the last two years. Acceptance financing is at a level never before reached by American banks. These and other similar services of recent development are enhancing the value of bank shares. The McFadden Banking Act of 1927 has added greatly to the profit-making possibilities of the national banks and to the attractiveness of their shares.

In our Comparative Analysis the figures show the position of the Pittsburgh Banks and Trust Companies at the close of the year 1927. The shares of a number of these institutions offer a favorable yield and excellent prospects for continued appreciation. The profitable employment of local banking capital is indicated in the report of the Comptroller of the Currency, showing that the net profits of the National Banks of Pittsburgh for the year ended June 30, 1927, amounted to 18.47% of capital and 8.73% of capital and surplus. The shares of these banks and trust companies merit the careful consideration of investors.

We will execute orders for bank stocks listed on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange and are prepared to give firm bids and offers on stocks which are not listed.

Engineering Sags, Lone Star Off

Contrary price tendencies were noted in the current trading favorites on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Carnegie Metals, most active of the lower-priced group, resumed its advance, while United Engineering & Foundry slipped down fractionally, carrying further on the recession which has been in progress for several days.

Upturn in Carnegie Metals was not accompanied by any fresh developments in connection with the company's reported intention of re-opening its abandoned mine at Cananea, Mexico, adjacent to the land on which Greene Cananea Copper Company made its sensational ore strike recently. Carnegie opened dull and somewhat heavy but a sudden buying wave made its appearance around the noon hour with the result that the price of the shares was pushed to new high ground.

United Engineering's sagging tendency has had no explanation from competent sources and traders are of the opinion that the stock is being permitted to drift pending the dividend meeting at which the rate of disbursement on the shares will be determined.

A little weakness was evident in the fuel division also, with Lone Star Gas falling below $53 a share for the first time in many weeks. The heavy tone in this issue was ascribed to the influence of the weak showing of the oils in the New York market.

STEEL DEMAND ON INCREASE

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade says:

Finished steel requirements are not only growing in volume, but are becoming better balanced. Avenues of consumption that only recently were taking relatively small tonnages of steel are making heavier drafts on mill production.

The outstanding example is the automobile industry with its steadily mounting demands. Railroad buying is also a major market factor. With a continuance of rail contracting and the promise of additional large purchases of cars and locomotives. In tinplate, increased specifications for March and April shipment have brought output up to 75 per cent of mill capacity. While demand for tubular products continues to lag, the oil industry is taking more well pipe.

Greater strength in foundry iron in eastern Pennsylvania has advanced the Iron Age pig iron composite price to $17.67, from $17.59 last week.

Tularemia, New Disease Carried by Rabbits

OF diseases, old and new, there is no end. When we think we have heard of the last one, along comes another. Here is one about which you know nothing, I assume. It is called "tularemia."

DR. COPELAND

This is a sort of blood poisoning due to the bite of a peculiarly infected tick or fly. The infection reaches man through a bite of one of these insects, or through a wound of the skin or covering of the eye.

The chief carrier of the poison is the rabbit. It was first discovered in the ground squirrels of California. This was in 1910. It was engrafted into the jack rabbits of the West and has gradually but steadily traveled East. One after another of the states has been invaded until it is found everywhere West of the Alleghanies.

Not all rabbits have the disease, of course, but it has been reported in the District of Columbia, 37 states and Japan. In due time, it is probable, it will be recognized in New York, New Jersey, Delaware and the New England states. So far it has not been seen there.

When it reaches man, tularemia is recognized by a persistent sore, an ulcer, at the seat of the wound or bite. This ulcer refuses to heal and the near-by glands become swollen.

There is fever and every evidence of real illness. The sickness drags on and recovery from it is very slow.

In the bad cases the swollen glands give evidence of suppuration. That is, pus forms. This complication adds to the dangers of the attack. In a report which I saw covering [illegible] cases, there were 17 deaths.

It is in the season when rabbits are hunted and sold that tularemia is likely to be seen. That is in the winter, of course, and it is at this season that care should be exercised in handling rabbits. The experts say it is wise to wear rubber gloves if it is found necessary to handle large numbers of rabbits.

Freezing does not kill the poison in diseased rabbits unless they are left in storage for a month or more. Fortunately, heat, and relatively low degrees of heat, will kill the germ.

Because of the possibility of the infection being present, it is wise to thoroughly cook the rabbit before serving it. When this is done there is absolutely no danger of passing the disease to humans.

It is better to be careful than to be sorry. It pays us to be cautious about unnecessary exposure to disease. If those who handle freshly killed rabbits will take precautions and then, in the kitchen, care is exercised to thoroughly cook the rabbit meat, all is well. Besides, the percentage of infected rabbits in the markets is small, so the dangers are not great.

The American Journal of Public Health has had an editorial recently on the "Open Season for Tularemia."

Answers to Health Queries

E. M. R. Q.—What causes little lumps to form on my face? How can I get rid of these blemishes?

A.—Acne is caused by incorrect diet. Cut down on sugar, starches and coffee. Eat only the simple foods. Avoid constipation. For further particulars send a self-addressed envelope and repeat your question.

G. H. H. Q.—I am 60 years of age and had my tonsils removed last April. The muscles in my neck and throat still pain me constantly—what would you advise? The tonsils were in bad condition.

2. What will help constipation?

A.—Have your throat examined by the physician who removed your tonsils. The pains may be due to neuritis caused by the infection from the tonsils.

2. Careful attention to the diet, plenty of water between meals and regular outdoor exercise. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts, which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

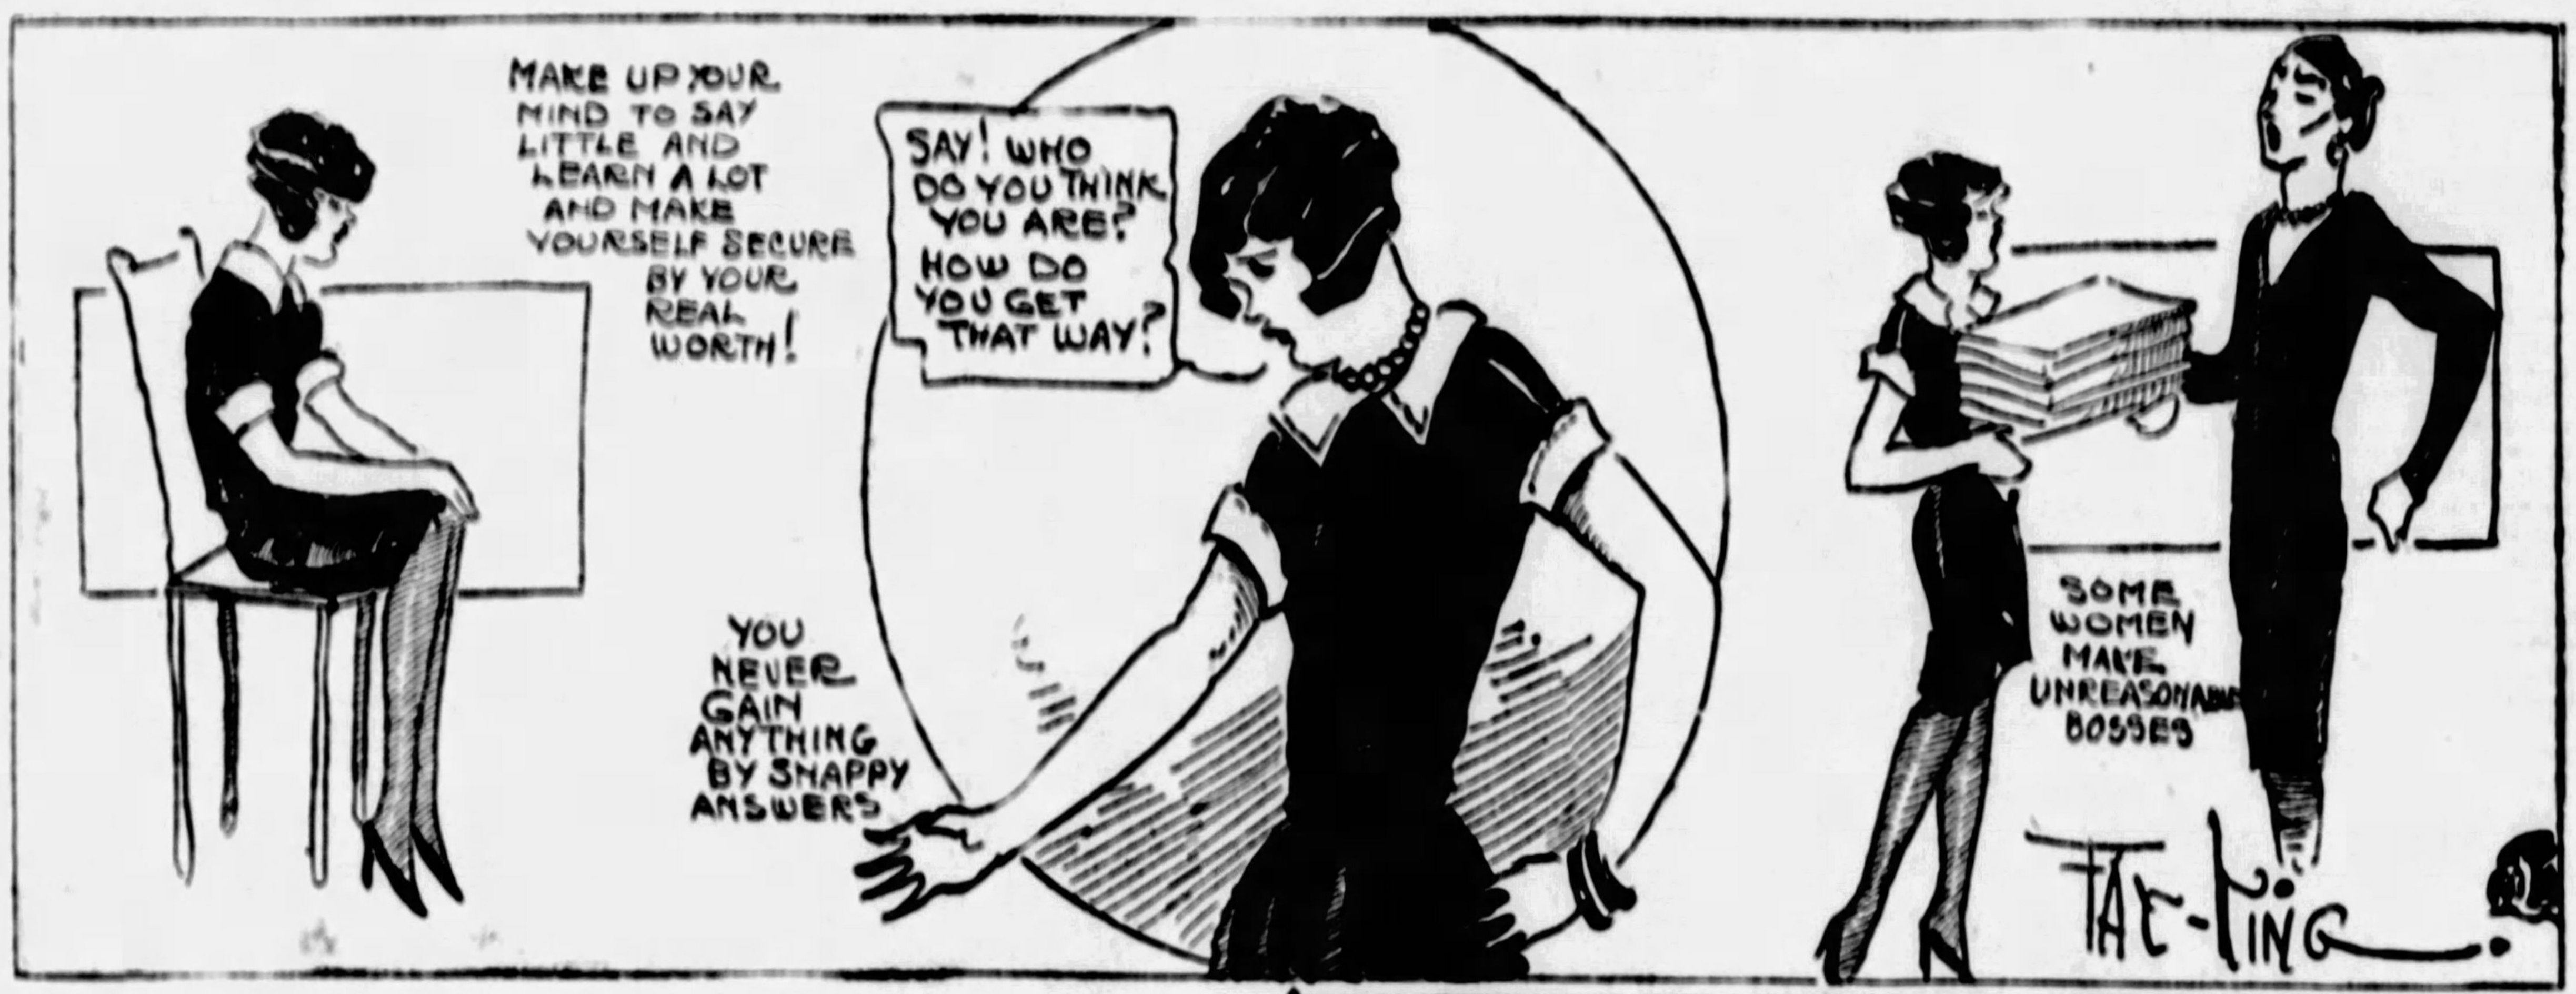
How to Take Bad Bosses, Explained by Fay King



MAKE UP YOUR MIND TO SAY LITTLE AND LEARN A LOT AND MAKE YOURSELF SECURE BY YOUR REAL WORTH!
SAY! WHO DO YOU THINK YOU ARE? HOW DO YOU GET THAT WAY?

SOME WOMEN MAKE UNREASONABLE BOSSES
FAE-KING

By FAY KING

THE other day I was strolling through a shop and happened along just as the head of one of the departments was bawling out one of her girls.

No matter what mistake the girl had made, it couldn't have called for such a display of authority.

But the girl lost her temper, too. She came right back at the other. This was a mistake, although I can't blame her.

It is hard to swallow one's pride and take unjust abuse, but it is better judgment. For it is useless to fight back with anyone who is blinded with their own importance!

The best thing to do is to listen and keep silent, if one possibly can. Then the matter is ended.

A good executive is never unreasonable.

But an unreasonable executive will stop at nothing once you defy him. It will only mean dismissal and no good recommendation when you give them for reference as you will have to in applying to another place.

So it seems to me that when one is so unfortunate as to be temporarily under the heel of an impossible person, the best thing to do is to make up your mind to control your anger.

Learn all you can. Become so useful you need not fear dismissal. Then in time leave and better yourself through the experience you have acquired!

Some women make bad bosses. They have managed to attain a place of importance for which they are not as capable as they appear. They depend upon others to help them hold that place. The fear that these others may discover how much they contribute to their success compels them to domineer and browbeat the workers.

Lesson Eight

By HELEN ROWLAND

HOW NOT TO WIN A MAN

ANY woman can marry any man she WANTS to marry, declares America's most popular misogynist.

Oh, CAN she? Not if I see what I'm looking at!

On the contrary, any woman can marry any man she DOESN'T want to marry!

Three-quarters of the world's prize husbands were merely "consolation prizes," if they but knew it. Yet they will all fondly tell you how "the little woman caught me."

HELEN ROWLAND

But if the little woman had been trying to catch him, she would have missed her aim.

The moment a woman sets her heart or mind on a man, she loses control of her steering-gear and gets her signals mixed. A man can sense her designs and see her headlights a mile off; and his one impulse is to sprint for the safety-zone.

The moment a woman takes a man seriously, she loses her balance, her perspective, and that unselfconsciousness which constitutes "It." That's why a man always marries the woman who doesn't take him seriously

* * *

Oh no, it is not the woman who makes up her mind to marry a man who gets him; it is the woman who "just can't make up her mind." It isn't a woman's "resolution" that wins him—it's her IRRESOLUTION.

* * *

The woman who knows that she wants a man and goes after him, hasn't a chance in the world beside the woman who hangs back and isn't sure that she wants him.

When a man goes looking for love, he is not looking for devotion, but for a GAME. Adventure, difficulty and uncertainty are the things that give the game piquancy.

And, alas, when a woman really cares about a man, her "game" is always rotten. She can't be simple, natural, gay and insouciant. She either slops over like a soda fountain or poses like a mannikin. She shows her hand, drops her poker face, and forgets all her best tricks.

A woman can always marry the man whom she likes just well enough to enjoy having around—but not well enough to miss when he isn't around. The man whom she greets with glad surprise—and parts from without any particular regret.

A woman can marry the man she might love, has loved or ought to love; but if she marries the man she DOES love, it is just blind luck!

* * *

Any woman can marry almost ANY man, except the one she WANTS to marry. That is woman's tragedy!

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Thursday, January 19

Virtue is simply the triumph of discretion over appetite.—ANON.

THE astral influences for this day emphasize the personal affairs, or those in which household, feminine, art, or pleasure and amusement dominate the activities. Singular or irregular experiences may complexion these, in some directions to the point of the spectacular. There may be abrupt angles and the reaction may depress. It is probable that there may be delays, postponements and perplexities.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a peculiar year in which the personal affiliations may be uppermost in the attention, and these may be attended by perplexities, delays and possibly regrets and depression. A sensational aspect of sudden development may arise. But be discreet in all contacts.

A child born on this day may have many conflicting traits, with a leaning toward the beautiful and artistic, and personal indulgences in this direction; yet it may be sullen and suspicious, especially toward things feminine. It may have sensational episodes or abrupt visitations in its career.

Notable Nativity: Robert E. Lee, Confederate General.

Novelty Trimmings

Painting the lily and, indeed, almost any other species of flower, as well as fancy figures, on crepe de chine, velvet or cotton is quite the rage among Vienna manufacturers of novelty hat trimmings. These floral motifs are cut out and stitched to hats of felt, velvet or georgette, imparting appliqued effect. Doubtless this same style of motif will be used on straw hats in the coming spring.

Hemorrhoid Sufferers

You Can End All Pile Misery Without Cutting or Salves.

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why cutting often fails?

Do you know the cause of piles is internal?

That there is a stagnation of blood circulation in the lower bowel?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID, now sold by May Drug Co. and druggists everywhere, that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause, by freeing blood circulation in the lower bowel. This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for sure, quick and lasting relief to thousands of pile sick sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation. There is no reason why it should not do the same for you.

"I was so eager, as Dick's wife, to meet those standards.

"It was a little thing which upset me—just the merest change of expression on his face . . . I was pouring coffee, and for the fraction of a second his glance had rested on my hands.

"I knew my hands looked red and rough from housework and dishes — and knew he had noticed them . . . I became self-conscious, ill at ease.

"Foolishly, perhaps, I felt the evening was a failure.

"Now I know how NEEDLESS it was. Since I have been using Lux for dishwashing, for all cleansing my hands have to do—my hands are soft and smooth and white. I'm never embarrassed now by 'dishpan' hands."

URGE SCHOOLS SUE TO GET POLL PAY

If the Board of Public Education hopes to collect over $14,000 for use of school buildings during elections, it will have to sue the county.

The County Commissioners yesterday flatly refused to pay the school board this amount. Attorney J. Rodgers McCreery, by letter, averred that the county owed the school board over $14,000 for use of school buildings for the past two years. Janitor service in erecting and removing the polling booths, light, heat, storage and rental is figured in the bill.

Commissioner Charles C. McGovern was willing to approve any amount owed the school board for the use of space for polling booths, but opposed paying for light, heat and storage. "It is an imposition on the county to ask for such," he said.

Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong was of the same opinion. The communication was held over. "Let's make them sue us if they want to collect," Commissioner Armstrong said. It was pointed out that the county and city has favored the school board in many ways, such as exempting the payment of city taxes on school properties.

and costs of power plants and transmission lines.

"The Allegheny River and French Creek should be developed for navigation," said the brief, "not simply as an extension of the Ohio but rather as an Ohio Valley arm of the Great Lakes to the Atlantic waterways via the St. Lawrence River and the Erie Canal through New York state. Steel, iron, glass, coal, oil and its products, brick, cement, fabricated metals and other outgoing heavy products from the Ohio Valley, the Pittsburgh district and the upper Allegheny should be able to go to Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit, Buffalo, Toronto, and other lower lake ports at least, and to the Atlantic seaboard via the the Erie Canal without breaking bulk.

"Under this plan of deep waterway construction, the depths of water and widths of flooded valleys are sufficient and the locks can be made any size necessary to accommodate any kind of shipping suitable for such purposes and parallel locks can be installed to provide for any conceivable increased traffic without necessitating other channel or route changes."

UNLOADING!

OUR ENTIRE STOCK OF WINTER MERCHANDISE

To Be Closed Out To The Public

AT COST AND LESS

When the doors swing open Tomorrow Morning at 9 o'clock, there ought to be a line of customers a block long, ready to rush into this store, for the Biggest Bargains in this town during the past Ten Years! This is not Newspaper talk! We have made up our minds to Empty This Store of Winter Goods in the next Three Days, if price will do it. And we don't care how Staggering a Loss we have to take. We don't care how much an article is worth—we have it priced so low that it will sell itself.

This is one time we have opened the throttle and disregarded the speed limit in Value Giving. Get the family around the fire tonight and check off what you need and how much merchandise for personal and home use you can use during the next six months—then come prepared to BUY and BUY! Because the more you BUY the more you'll SAVE!

It's a housecleaning that will bring joy to every thrifty woman in the city. Start from the top floor and walk down to the basement—and on every floor, in every department, on every counter and table—on every rack and in every case, you will see merchandise offered at prices that you would never dream possible, unless you saw it with your own eyes.

It would take an eight-page newspaper to even list the thousands of items. You will find any quantity of wanted merchandise in the store, not mentioned in this ad, displayed with the sign: "Not Advertised." So go all through the store, and KEEP YOUR EYES OPEN, and you will be rewarded with BARGAINS that you'll talk about for a year to come.

GET HERE EARLY, BECAUSE THERE IS GOING TO BE A CROWD THAT'LL MAKE YOU THINK CHRISTMAS HAS COME BACK TO TOWN!

JAIL IS FILLED, WORKHOUSE CROWDED

The County Commissioners are stumped as to how they will care for the rapidly increasing number of prisoners committed to the county jail and workhouse.

Warden McNeil, of the jail, has his hands full with over 800 prisoners quartered in 690 cells. He solicited aid of the commissioners, and asked them to confer with Mayor Charles H. Kline and have police magistrates commit prisoners, receiving over 10 days to the workhouse instead of to jail. This suggestion was believed a solution of jail problem until today.

Supt. A. H. Leslie, of the workhouse, called on the commissioners to discuss his budget for 1928. "How about it, superintendent, the jail is crowded to its gunwhales with prisoners," Commissioner E. V. Babcock said. "Can you care for some of the prisoners and relieve the jail situation."

"I am crowded myself and have no room," Supt. Leslie replied. "I have 1,100 prisoners now and have all I can handle."

CHIROPRACTORS ASK NEW RULES

Chiropractors of the Pittsburgh district are endeavoring to obtain a state law by which they will have a separate board for the examination and licensure in Pennsylvania, consisting of regular chiropractic healers only, Leo J. Steinback, president of the Universal Chiropractic College, declared yesterday before the state commission to study laws relating to art of healing.

Mr. Steinback was spokesman for the chiropractors here and his address was the feature of the hearing for drugless therapists. The commission is headed by Senator William C. Freeman of Lebanon county and is composed of doctors of the regular school of medicine and drugless healers and laymen, who will report to the Legislature next year as to whether there should or should not be a single standard qualification for all who desire to practice the art of healing in the state.

APPROVE PLANS FOR NEW TREVESKYN SPAN

Plans for the rebuilding of Treveskyn Bridge on Miller's Run road have been approved by the County Commissioners. The State Highway Department notified the Commissioners that it intends to realign the road, which necessitates rebuilding of the present span. The cost of the new bridge was estimated by the highways department at $36,500. The Commissioners instructed the Public Works Department to draw up plans and specifications for the bridge.

"That sore throat was no joke—"

"My doctor said, 'Keep up the Formamint treatment. Formamint releases one of the best germ-killing agents we have over the throat tissues—and is absolutely harmless . . .'

"In a few days throat was O.K. —cough gone—grouch gone . . ."

At the first sign of raspiness—soothing Formamint. These tablets can be taken anywhere—act continuously. One every hour to treat sore throat, as a preventive one every 2 hours. Test Formamint yourself. All druggists.

KDKA AND WCAE TO GIVE AUTO SHOW NEWS

Two of Pittsburgh's radio stations will join with the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association in the annual automobile show to be held under the auspices of that association, beginning Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock.

Station WCAE each afternoon and night of the seven days of the show will broadcast concerts from the exhibit, which will be staged in Motor Square Garden. KDKA will go on the air each morning of this week and next week with news and notes from the show.

Music for the annual show will be provided by two orchestral units under the direction of Charles Marsh, and will be continuous. The first of the broadcasts will be heard Saturday night, when the show will be opened by Graham McNamee, famous sports announcer, who also will officiate as the announcer for the opening program.

The exhibit of automobiles this year will be the most colorful ever staged, according to the automobile distributors and dealers. More cars will be shown in colors and color arrangements than ever before. The use of nickel and other bright metal has increased, they say.

Thirty-eight lines of cars, 32 exhibits of accessories and displays by the East Liberty Y. M. C. A., the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh and the Pittsburgh Motor Club will crowd two floors of the big East Liberty structure.

CANAAN DISCOVERS FOX HUNTING PAYS

DAVIS, W. Va., Jan. 18.—Bagging red foxes pays better than farming in Canaan Valley, where the animals are plentiful, and some of the inhabitants have taken up fox-chasing as a means of livelihood. The sons of Mrs. Stella Harman have captured 26 foxes this season, each pelt being valued at $15. Other hunters have killed 24.

Failed Because of Nervousness

Stamina, Force, Power, Ambition, Persistency of Purpose—All Are Lacking.

Don't grow old before your time, don't let nervousness wreck your happiness or chances in life. The man with strong steady nerves is full of vigor, energy, ambition and confidence.

You can have nerves of steel, firm step, new courage and keen mind by putting nerves in first-class shape with mighty Lifetone Tablets, a new discovery, inexpensive and efficient.

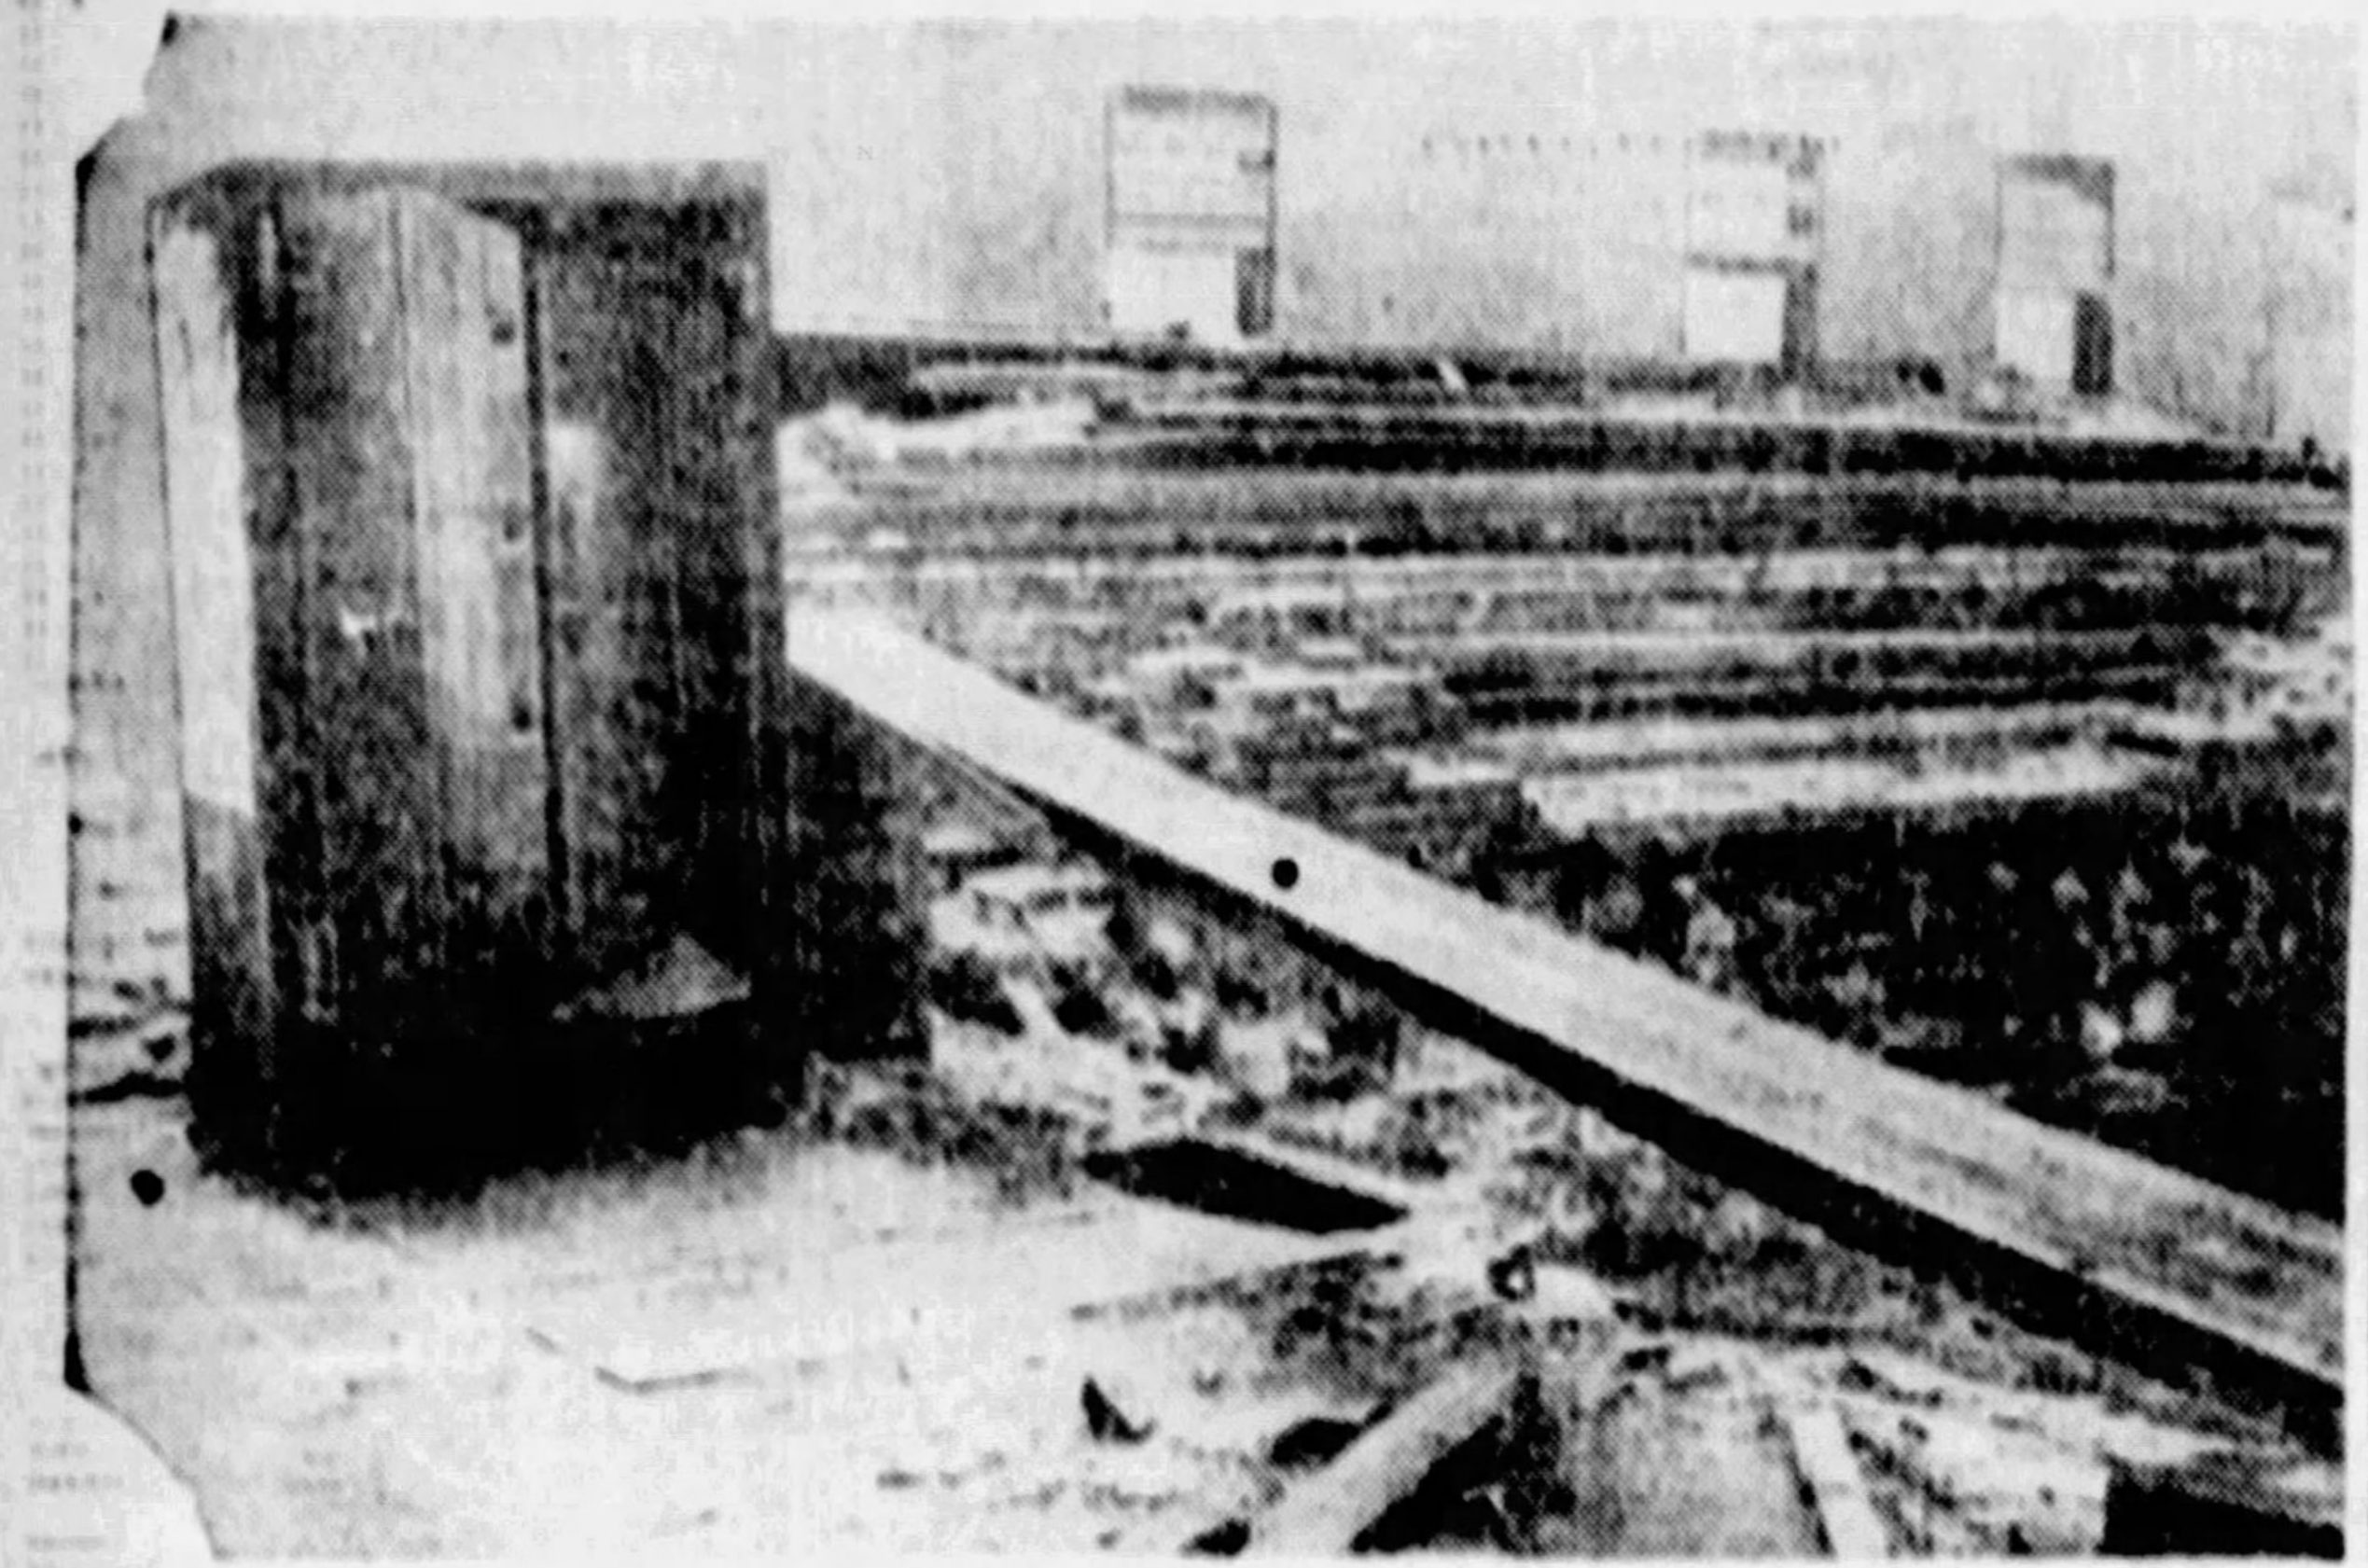
Men and women who get up so tired in the morning that they have to drag themselves to their daily labor will in just a few days arise with clear mind, definite purpose and loads of ambition.

All you have to do is to take two Lifetone Tablets after each meal and two at bedtime for two weeks.

Then if your energy and endurance haven't increased, if your mind isn't clearer and eyes brighter, if May Drug Co. or any druggist anywhere will return the purchase price—gladly and freely. 72 tablets $1.00. you don't feel ambitious as of old

COUNTY'S FIRST GENERAL AUDIT STARTS MONDAY

RAZING BY P. R. R. -:- CREATES MENACE -:- TO THE PUBLIC



A DANGEROUS PLACE

Nice lurking place for persons with no very honorable intentions is this place, according to residents in the neighborhood of Thirteenth street and Liberty avenue, for the street is dimly lit at night, and there's a 20-foot hole just beyond the insecure barrier. Policemen are said to be seldom seen patroling this particular street, where Pennsylvania Railroad Company is tearing down buildings preparatory to widening and otherwise improving the district.

LONESOME SPOT

This 20-foot excavation, separated from the sidewalk by a rickety plank, is a fearsome place to pedestrians who find themselves on Liberty avenue, near Thirteenth street, after dark. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is tearing down many buildings between Eleventh and Seventeenth streets, in Liberty avenue.

PEDESTRIANS OR LUMBER?

Residents near Thirteenth and Liberty avenue complain about the use of the sidewalks for dumping grounds for piles of lumber being removed from buildings razed by Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Collapsing walls, lurking holdup men and dim-lit streets make Liberty avenue, from Eleventh to Seventeenth street, a good place to shun on dark nights.

HEFLIN TERMS EXPOSE PLOT TO 'GET' HIM

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—The recent publication of Mexican documents by the Hearst newspapers was characterized in the Senate today by Senator Heflin, Democrat, of Alabama, as a "conspiracy by certain Roman Catholics" to destroy him.

Heflin said the "forged papers" were obtained by William Randolph Hearst from a Roman Catholic, who "testified he obtained them from Roman Catholic clerks in the Mexican government, and that he told them he wanted the papers for Bishop Diaz, a Roman Catholic bishop of Mexico."

Heflin said his name was linked to the documents because "I was doing everything in my power to prevent the Roman Catholics from using the United States Army to fight the battles of the Roman Catholic Church in Mexico."

He criticized Mr. Hearst for publishing the documents.

"He (Hearst) is willing to deal with Roman Catholic Mexican thieves in order to traduce and slander Senators of his own country," said Heflin.

DEER ARRIVE FOR PARK

The second caravan of white-tail deer arrived in the city today and was taken to the county's North Park, McCandless township. The herd numbers 25. The first herd was installed in the South Park, Snowden township, yesterday.

The animals were purchased from Mrs. H. C. Mosser, Westover, Clearfield county, by the county commissioners.

PHILADELPHIAN HEADS GROVE CITY TRUSTEES

J. Howard Pew, of Philadelphia, was elected president of the board of trustees of Grove City College to succeed the late F. R. Babcock at a meeting here yesterday. The Rev. Dr. Stuart Nye Hutchison, pastor of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, and S. B. Hufnagel, manufacturer, of this city, were added as members of the board.

MINERS' LEADER RAPS 'RELIEF' SOCIETIES

Certain independent miners' relief organizations were openly flayed this morning when Patrick T. Fagan, president of District No. 5, United Mine Workers of America, refused to intercede for two miners arrested while soliciting funds on the street.

Two striking miners from Harwick, Stanley Storneeck and George Hrebar, were arrested yesterday at California and Termon avenues while soliciting funds for the Pennsylvania and Ohio Miners' Relief committee.

The men were fined $10 by Magistrate E. M. Hough, who promised to refund the fine if it was shown the committee which the men represented was authorized by the Miners' Union. They were charged with violating a city ordinance.

When informed of Magistrate Hough's statement Mr. Fagan declared:

"We have fought these independent relief movements since their organization. Less than 20 per cent of the money collected goes for relief purposes, the remaining amount being used for the administration of Red and Communistist organizations. So far as I am concerned Magistrate Hough's fine stands."

LAST BULLET KILLS HIM

The last of five bullets in an old, rusty revolver brought self-inflicted death today to Sheriff Woodson, 40, a Negro, at 3750 Frazier street, escaped hospital patient from Mayview. Deputy Coroner W. T. McQuaide, investigating, found five shells in the revolver. Three had failed to explode, one had missed its mark, but the last bullet lodged in the man's brain.

INDIANOLA MAN DIES OF INJURIES IN MINE

Nick Vigas, 30, of Indianola, a miner, employed by the Inland Collieries Company, died in the Citizens General Hospital, New Kensington, today from injuries suffered a week ago in a fall of coal.

PITT MEN TO BE HONORED

DAVID STEWART
HARRY DECKER
VICTOR PICKARD
HERMAN RECHT
HAROLD JOHNSTON

ACTIVITIES RECOGNIZED

In recognition of their scholastic achievements and participation in campus activities, six students and an instructor at the University of Pittsburgh tonight will be initiated into Omicron Delta Kappa, national activities fraternity. Those who will be honored are David Stewart, 6823 Thomas boulevard; Harry Decker, Ridgeway; Victor Pickard, Hamilton, Canada; Herman Recht, Clairton; Harold Johnston, 3545 Butler street, and William Kern, 158 North Bellefield avenue, all students, and E. Willis Whited, 7339 McClure street, Swissvale, engineering instructor.

AID NOT ASKED FOR WAIF, CLAIM

Philip Trafican, 7, of Frazier street, remained in the Detention Home at Cleveland, O., today, just as puzzled as when he was taken to Cleveland three days ago, while attaches of Juvenile Court here insisted that they had not been asked to solve Philip's problem.

As things are now, Philip is virtually a waif. His divorced mother, remarried, is living in Cleveland and his father, also married again, is in Pittsburgh.

Philips stepmother took him to Cleveland, deposited him in a taxi and directed the driver to his mother's address. But there was no place there for Philip. His mother's new husband said he didn't care to take the responsibility of providing for Philip without the court's approval.

So Philip was moved to the Detention Home, where authorities said they would try to interest Pittsburgh's Detention Home in the case.

Ukase Issued to Tardy Lawyers Proves Flop

"From this time on when a case is called and lawyers do not answer I will direct a non-suit or a continuation of the case," Judge James B. Drew said in Common Pleas Court today.

In the next case scheduled, that of Mrs. Katherine B. Porter in suit for damages against the Pennsylvania Railroad, counsel for Mr. Porter was not present.

Attorney W. B. McFall, Jr., representing the railroad, was told a motion for a non-suit would be granted, but he failed to ask it. The case was scheduled for trial later in the day.

3 ART EXHIBITS AT INSTITUTE

Three exhibitions were on view today in the Carnegie Institute galleries.

The first is the exhibit of small bronzes and other works in sculpture. The foremost American sculptors are represented in this display. The second, in the balcony of the Hall of Sculpture, is an exhibition of modern drawings lent by Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Goodyear, of Buffalo. The third one, also exhibited on the second floor, is a collection of drawings by old masters. These, presented a few years ago by Herbert DuPuy, are from the institute's permanent collection.

TOWNSHIPS GET TAXES ON PARK LANDS BACK

Township taxes amounting to $2,507.08, collected by the county from property owners in McCandless, Pine, Snowden and Bethel townships, who sold their properties to the county for park purposes, were returned to the townships by the County Commissioners.

The purchase of the properties cut a deep hole in the revenue of the townships and they are up against it, the commissioners were told. Money is needed to carry on improvements already planned by the townships. The township commissioners requested that the taxes already collected by the county be turned back to them so that the improvements could be carried out.

The commissioners also took action placing the county park properties on the tax exemption list for the future.

CUT SHORT TAX DISCOUNT TIME

Instead of the usual 30-day discount period, city tax payers will have only 15 days of grace this year. This was decided by Council after Robert Garland had attacked the proposal of Daniel Winters to extend the discount period until February 15.

Collection of city taxes should have started January 1, with a 2 per cent discount until January 31. Collection was not started this year until January 16. Because of the delay Winters, in accordance with the usual custom, presented a resolution to give the taxpayers 30 days.

The delay in collections is blamed by some on the period the Finance Committee of Council required to complete the budget, by others on the work of the board of assessors, which has been given a clean bill of health by Council, and by still others on slowness in the city treasurer's office. Frequently such delays have occurred in the past, but rarely have the tax payers failed to have the discount period extended because of the delay.

When the Winters resolution came before the Finance Committee yesterday, Garland immediately objected vigorously.

"A big taxpayer objected to this extension," he said. "I saw in a newspaper this morning that the tax period was extended. Nobody reads the newspapers. This is a lot of newspaper talk. I don't believe in the newspapers running Council. This is a question of whether we are serving the city or the taxpayers."

"That is all right about the big taxpayers," remarked Winters. "You must remember there are a lot of little taxpayers in the city. The big taxpayers may wait until the last minute of the discount period to pay by check, but a lot of the little taxpayers don't pay by check. They come into the treasurer's office. I move the adoption of the resolution, whether any one cares to second it or not."

Councilmen James F. Malone, John S. Herron, Robert Alderdice and Garland sat silent, refusing to second the motion to extend the period and the resolution died.

"I have an idea that if some one else had made the motion it would have passed," remarked Winters, referring to the fact that the combination that defeated him for re-election as president of Council, has been voting as a bloc against any suggestion he has made.

WAYNESBURG POLICEMEN MUST GIVE UP MOVIES

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Jan. 18.—Hereafter Waynesburg police will not do their "policing" in the back row of moving picture shows. Council last night ordered the officers—both of them—to remain out of theaters while they are on duty.

ERNST & ERNST ENGAGED FOR AUDIT

The independent general audit of county fiscal affairs will start Monday morning. County Controller Robert C. Woodside today notified the County Commissioners that he has engaged Ernst & Ernst, certified public accountants, to make the audit.

The general audit, the first of its kind to be made by the county, will cost at least $50,000. Several days ago the County Commissioners appropriated this amount on request of the Controller.

The auditors will be carried on an extra payroll of the Controller's office.

QUITTING FOR "KEEPS"

MRS. AMANDA C. KEOWN

Having left her husband three times, because of his alleged drinking and abuse, Amanda C. Keown, rear of 824 Lovett way, through her counsel, A. H. Mercer, told the court she was tired of living with Thomas F. D. Keown, has left him for good and wants a divorce. Mrs. Keown tried to save to obtain a home, but claims her husband spent his money on liquor and night life. She charged him with cruel and barbarous treatment.

ST. CANICE DEBATERS ARRANGE ARGUMENT

A. R. McGrath apparently is pointing out the reason why married women should not work, to Margaret McGraw. Genevieve McGraw and F. P. Dixon look on and seem to agree with him. All are members of the St. Canice Debating Society, which, Friday night in St. Canice's School, Orchard place, Knoxville, will argue the question, Resolved: "That the Employment of Married Women Constitutes an Unfavorable Social and Economic Labor Problem." The debate is the first of the season for the society.

SEPARATE and sealed proposals will be received by Eric Fisher Wood & Co., registered architects, at 233 Oliver avenue, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, until 12 o'clock noon, February 15, 1928, for the replacement of the Administration Building (destroyed by fire), of the Pennsylvania Training School at Morganza, Pennsylvania. The proposals will be delivered unopened by Eric Fisher Wood & Company, Architects to the Secretary of the Department of Property and Supplies at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, and will be opened at 10 o'clock a. m., February 16, 1928, by the secretary of the Department of Property and Supplies in the presence of

(a) The Secretary of the Department of Welfare.

(b) The President of the Board of Trustees of the Pennsylvania Training School, Morganza, Pennsylvania.

(c) The architects.

Bidders are invited to be present. Bids will be tabulated and an award made as soon thereafter as possible.

Separate proposals will be accepted for the following work:

GENERAL CONSTRUCTION, PLUMBING, HEATING SYSTEM AND ELECTRIC WORK.

All bids must be made upon prepared forms furnished in duplicate by the architects, on and after January 18, 1928.

Proposals containing any additions, erasures, omissions, additions not called for or additional bids of any kind, will be rejected as informal and no bidder will be allowed to withdraw his bid.

Bids will be accompanied by a certified check in the amount of forty-five hundred ($4,500.00) dollars for general construction work, two hundred and fifty ($250.00) dollars for plumbing work, two hundred ($200.00) dollars for heating work, and one hundred and fifty ($150.00) dollars for electric work, drawn to the order of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Plans and specifications may be obtained at the office of Eric Fisher Wood & Company, architects, 233 Oliver avenue, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Deposits in the following amounts:

One hundred ($100.00) dollars on each set general construction plans and specifications.

Fifty ($50.00) dollars on each set of plumbing, heating and electric plans and specifications.

Plans and specifications, and [only one (1) set] will be issued to contractors under the above plan. Should a contractor desire more than one set of plans and specifications the same may be obtained from the architects at cost of reproduction, accompanied by a deposit in the amounts stated above.

Deposits must be made by certified check.

All checks shall be made payable to the order of Eric Fisher Wood & Company.

Receipts for said deposits will be given and the money refunded upon the return of plans and specifications in good condition and without marking within ten (10) days after the date on which bids are opened.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as represented by the Department of Property and Supplies reserve the following rights: (a) To make award on any item or combination of items covering the various branches of the work at price or prices named in any proposal. (b) To reject any or all proposals or to accept any bid or combination of bids or any separate item of the proposal; which may seem advantageous to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. (c) To award this contract to some other than the lowest bidder, time for completion will be given special consideration, or when the material proposed to be used by such high bidder, or his financial and business standing and ability properly and expeditiously to carry out the work hereunder, or the consideration of desired alternates, make his proposal more advantageous to the state. (d) To accept any alternate submitted by the successful bidder at the price stated in such proposal for such alternate. (e) To deduct any separate item mentioned in any proposal at the price therein stated therefor.

BUGS BAER Says

IT WILL be good news for motorists to hear that New York will not plaster a war tax on gasoline. Or any other drinking fluid.

This tax was destined to take the wrinkles out of the budget for the fiscal year 1928-1929.

We don't know when the fiscal year starts. But it ends suddenly when you try to borrow money.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

The tax was to be two cents a gallon, which would raise twenty million dollars to build more jails for motorists charged with speeding past tax collectors.

Gasoline is a volatile fluid, which, when fed by the vacuum system to the cylinders of an engine, causes two neckers to hug one another in the back seat and gives traffic cops the bright idea of shooting the rear tires off a municipal ambulance which may have strayed into the right of way reserved for visiting princes.

In the days of bad teeth and lamp wicks gasoline had no standing among civilized nations. Kerosene was the important juice in those days and gasoline was its residue. Standard Oil barges used to dump boatloads of gasoline into the ocean.

There were many complaints from anglers that the free gasoline killed the fishes.

Now it is sold at a price varying from twenty cents to fifty. And it kills pedestrians.

However, the fishes were saved. You buy it at a dizzy pump which is known as a filling station.

And even Einstein, who knows why the moon has no elbows and why the stars are too smart to make left turns in a crowded firmament, does not know why it requires 15 gallons of gasoline to fill at 10-gallon tank.

If they called them half-filling stations they would still be a few fractions from the correct sum. Still, we need our gasoline, and with Henry selling fifteen million more cars this year gasoline is going to be listed with diamonds and gin.

Even now there is an enormous wastage of this cleaning fluid. In another season we will have to choose between taking the spots off our vest or taking the folks out for a ride in the car.

The gasoline industry is making great efforts to keep the price up to the demand. But like the weasel that tried to crowd the hippo off Noah's gangplank, it is straining its resources.

President Coolidge Sounds New World Theme in Cuba

The heart of the President's speech before the Pan-American Conference at Havana was its emphasis on the difference between this friendly co-operative association of sister republics and the European organization of armed force and coercion known as the League of Nations.

The difference between the two forms of assembly is as wide as the distance from Geneva to Havana; Leaguism and Pan-Americanism are as far apart as the Old World and the New. The President told the Pan-American Conference:

"You come together under the present condition and the future expectation of profound peace. You are continuing to strike a new note in international gatherings by maintaining a forum at which not the selfish interests of the few, but the general welfare of all, will be considered."

It would be hard to devise a more pointed reference to the League, whose councils and whose policies are directed by the imperialistic nations who came out on top in the war, intent upon maintaining an organization to guarantee their vast winnings. The President goes on:

"Unto us has been given a new land, free from the traditional jealousies and hatreds of the Old World, where the people might come into the fullest state of development.

"The founders of our republic sought no peculiar preferment for themselves. The same disinterested spirit which has animated the conduct of our past conferences has given the American family a high place in the opinion of the world.

"WHAT HAPPENS IN THIS HEMISPHERE IS OF MORE VITAL INTEREST TO ALL OF US THAN WHAT HAPPENS ACROSS ANY OF THE OCEANS."

Nowhere among these republics have great military establishments ever been maintained for the purpose of overawing or subjugating other nations.

In the last hundred years the United States has been engaged in two wars with European powers. The last war, in 1917, was none of our business. It was an error, which, God willing, we shall not soon repeat. The other war, which happened thirty years ago, was to drive Spain out of Cuba, now one of the brightest jewels in the Latin-American crown. As President Coolidge said:

"The very place where we are meeting is the complete demonstration of the progress we are making. Thirty years ago Cuba ranked as a foreign possession torn by revolution and devastated by hostile forces. Such government as existed rested on military force. Today Cuba is her own sovereign. Its people are independent, free, prosperous, peaceful and enjoying the advantages of self-government."

The President's 1,200-mile journey from the national capital to foreign soil, and the substance of his speech, are the happy augury of a new direction of American foreign policy, a direction which is natural, effective and appreciated by those it is intended to benefit.

It's Duty of Friends of Temperance to Rescue It

It is eight years since our country went under the yoke of Prohibition. It was the only nation in the world which wrote a police experiment into its basic law.

In every other nation where war enthusiasm or necessity wrought similar sumptuary legislation, Prohibition has been modified or set wholly aside. The United States is unique in being conscious of its mistake without as yet having developed the courage to correct it.

We have made the correction technically so difficult that a part of our population prefers to let a bad matter drift on into worse. That is true virtually of the entire bootlegging fraternity, which finds the present mess much to its liking.

It is also true in the main of salaried dry leaders, whom either Prohibition enforcement, if it were possible, or Prohibition repeal would leave in the plight of Othello, with "occupation gone."

Another group, somewhat numerous in all, finds a certain excitement in pitting wits against the law. Not from any of these three will come any initiative for a change.

Indeed, the Anti-Saloon League arranged for meetings of ratification and jubilation on January 16, the eighth anniversary of the enactment of the Eighteenth Amendment. And the other two groups are sure to have a kinship of feeling.

So we find that Mr. Hearst was right when he pointed out two years ago that the duty of doing something to improve the plight into which Prohibition has got us devolves upon men and women whose first concern is temperance.

These men and women have no stake in bootlegging. They have no wish to see the return of the saloon. They are not paid propagandists or agents of any kind. They are just good and decent Americans who want for their country a fair average of welfare and order.

When the Prohibition panacea was proposed, some were over-persuaded, all were willing to give it a trial. Few realized the trap-like nature of a Constitutional amendment or the immense harm of trying to make rigid until eternity a mere experiment in policing.

Eight years of experience leave no honest mind deceived. The experiment has failed. It did not promote temperance. It has all but destroyed temperance. Cynical contempt for law travels with flagrant corruption. A generation is being reared to think with scorn of a government which can neither enforce its ban upon alcohol, nor face squarely the issue of repealing that ban with a view to trying a new approach.

It is therefore, still the duty of the men and women in the [illegible] interested in real temperance to come to the [illegible]perance.

The Hearst Papers Advocate:

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and to promote the peace of the world.
2. Proportional representation in the United States Senate, no state to have less than two Senators. Legislation to enforce prompt constitutional reapportionment in the House of Representatives.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal powers to abolish illiteracy in the United States under a Secretary of Education.
5. Election of Congress in November. Installation on the 1st of January following. Inauguration of the President 1st of January next after November election.

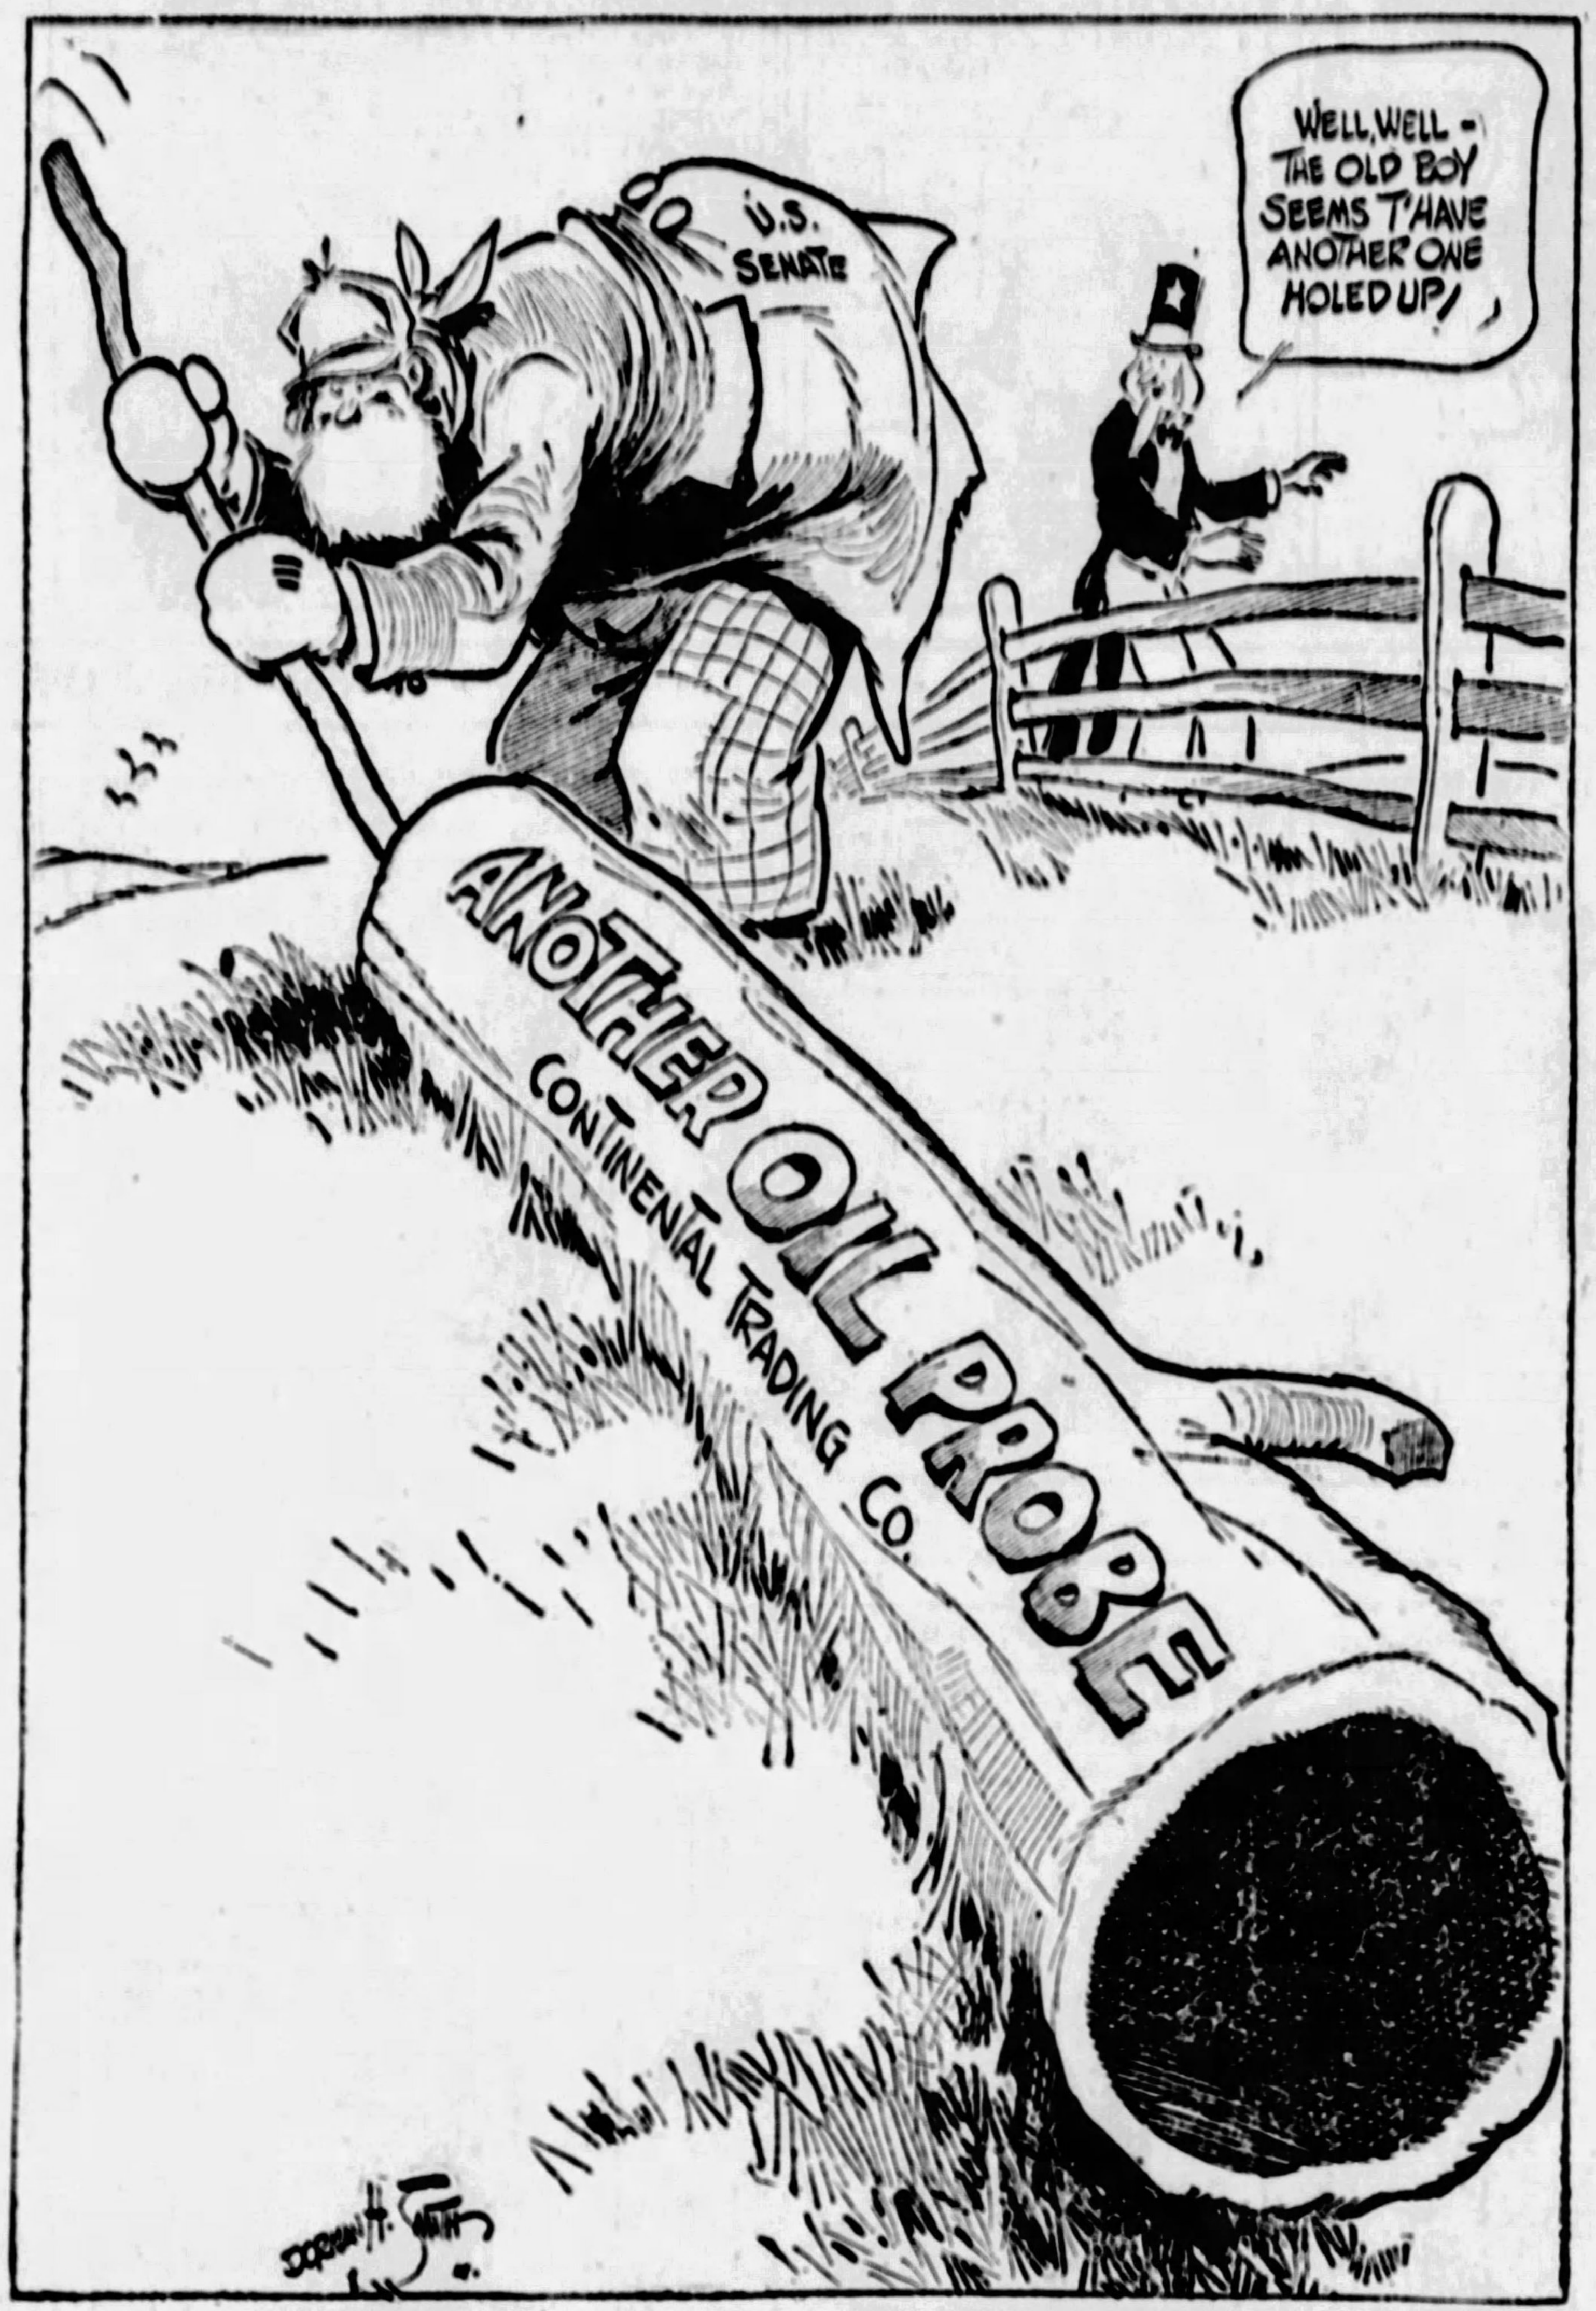
A Bunny—or Another of Those Things



Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Morning Stars

AT LEAST once in midwinter everybody who wishes to know the stars should get up an hour or more before daybreak and look at the eastern heavens to behold the celestial pageantry preceding the sun's rise when he lodges in Capricorn. The keen, frosty air, and the sense of expectancy which seems to spread over the earth through the darkness that goes before the dawn, gives an unwonted aspect to the starry sky. You find yourself facing constellations that you are accustomed to see only in midsummer evenings, when they loiter above the southern horizon with their lazy stars dimmed by the lingering haze of the heated day just closed. Leader among them is the Scorpion, now no longer dulled by the smouldering atmosphere of August, but with every star alive and aglitter along the whole length of its bent spine, the pair in the poised sting shine piercingly bright, while red Antares in the heart burns like a strontium flame.

The Cross is rising with the Swan. Vega sparkles high in the east, the Crown and Arcturus are overhead, and Spica, the characteristic star of spring, glows near the meridian in the south. All of these stars, if the morning be clear, shine with a splendor that they never display in the summer time.

Looking at them, one can understand the feelings of the ancient star gazers who regulated their seasons by reference to the heliacal risings of certain stars; i. e., their appearance like heralds before the sunrise.

Just now, in the latter part of January, three of the five naked-eye planets are conspicuous among the morning stars. These are Venus, Mars and Saturn. Venus and Saturn, in close conjunction on the 16th, continue neighborly, Venus slowly moving sunwards and leaving Saturn behind. Venus is very bright, none of the stars in the constellations being comparable with her in that respect. Saturn is brighter than an average first magnitude star, but very much fainter than Venus. They are both in the constellation Ophiuchus, just above the back of the Scorpion. The planet Mars is nearer the sun, in the constellation Sagittarius. Mars, too, is somewhat brighter than a first magnitude star, and slightly reddish in color. But Venus is the only one that draws the eye away from the constellations, and seems the presiding deity of the sky, a worthy forerunner of the daybreak.

There is a great mystery about the planet Venus. It seems to be veiled by an impenetrable curtain which reflects the sunlight so completely that no certain glimpse can be obtained of the surface of the world beneath. This is the more regrettable since Venus comes nearer the earth than any other planet, and is so placed in the solar system that it seems even more likely than Mars to be inhabited. She defies us to unveil her while herself peeping at us like an Oriental beauty, now from her morning and now from her evening bower. Here is an opportunity and a provocation for some young astronomer with a name to make. Let him begin the adventure now, this winter, on some bright morning when all the world's asleep. Seeing how glorious she is in her veil, he may be inspired to lead her forth without it. Therefore he would stand with Galileo.

Daredeviltry

THE American Psychological Association was discussing the wearing effects of life's petty annoyances when Professor Hulsey Cason, of Ohio State University, said that women are a great annoyance.

There are certain war words, such as "Whoever pulls down the American flag, shoot him on the spot," etc., that come under the head of bravery. The kind of a crack Professor Carson made is pure daredeviltry. One wonders if he is married.

Once Overs

Keep in Line

SUCCESS means that you must shove and push and think and act as others against whom you are contesting, and go them one better if you can.

In the activities of life there is no room for the timid.

Regrettably as it is, there is little chance for the courteous one if he gives in too much to those who would push him aside.

The majority think of their own personal comfort and advancement.

There is a hard time ahead for the one who is too dignified to shove with the shoving crowd.

In a small town or village there is a certain degree of courtesy which cannot be followed in a big city.

If one waits for a full, open driving chance, one receives reprimand for blocking the traffic.

Small town drivers traveling through large cities realize this experience.

So it is in all walks of life.

Keep in line, or someone else will take your place.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Pitying Heart

HE WAS not good, as some would hold
The virtues that a man may own;
Not his the deeds we see enrolled
On monuments of bronze or stone.
But, ah! He had a pitying heart,
And he was greatly dowered to feel
Another's grief; he knew the art
That can, through doubt, some hope reveal.
The tapping of the cripple's crutch
Fell like a summons on his soul;
Of wealth he had not overmuch,
And yet he heaped the beggar's bowl.
He was not good, but well beloved;
The poor and weak made him a shrine,
For when his pitying heart was moved
His tenderness was half divine.

Words of the Wise

The life of man stands greatly in need of reasoning and calculation.—Epicharmus.

It is absurd that he who does not know how to govern himself should govern others.—Proverb.

Man is the creature of circumstances,
Circumstances are the creatures of men. —Disraeli.

It is better to walk than to run; it is better to stand than to walk; it is better to sit than o stand; it is better to lie than to sit.—Hindo Proverb.

Ye Towne Gossip

by K. C. B.

Dear K. C. B.: You know, I am lonesome and I am sure there are many women of mature years in a similar state. I have been married many, many years and my husband has forgotten all of those little acts of kindness and attention that used to be a part of our married life. Never a word or a caress any more, just three meals a day and his office. Perhaps I should not complain, because under other circumstances I might be hungry or sick or uncomfortable for the lack of money. But I am hungry for an endearing word occasionally, for some evidence that I am more than just a housekeeper, hungry for just a "few flowers to the living." Perhaps some lines of yours might help. FIFTY-EIGHT.

DEAR LONELY fifty-eight.

I KNOW a couple.

WHO ARE friends of mine.

WHO NAG at each other.

MOST OF the time.

AND INDULGE in quarrels.

OVER SILLY things.

LIKE DRIVING the car.

OR THE coffee is cold.

OR THE eggs too soft.

AND ONE would think.

THEY HATED each other.

BUT STILL I know,

* * *

THAT IF either of them.

SHOULD ARISE some day.

AND GO away,

FROM THE other one.

THEY'D BOTH nearly die.

OF UNHAPPINESS.

FOR THEY'VE BEEN married.

FOR SUCH a long time.

THEY NEED each other.

AND THEN there are couples.

AS YOU say you are.

WHERE ONE OR the other.

SEEMS QUITE content.

WITH BOARD and room.

WHILE THE OTHER one.

* * *

WANTS more than that.

AND I think that's worse.

THAN THE nagging kind.

FOR WHEN they nag.

THEY DON'T have time.

FOR LONELINESS.

AND LONELINESS.

WITHIN ONE'S home.

WHERE THERE are those.

WHO BY some act.

OR BY SOME word.

MIGHT CHANGE it all.

TO HAPPINESS.

IS THE saddest sort.

OF LONELINESS.

FOR IN most cases.

IT HAS it's being.

IN THE THOUGHTLESSNESS.

AND SELFISHNESS.

OF THOSE we love.

AND JUST for today.

IF IT should be.

THAT THIS is read.

WHO MAY have failed.

* * *

IN DAYS gone by.

LET'S MAKE of it.

A REMEMBERING day.

OF THOSE other days.

WHEN LOVE was young.

I THANK you.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The fille de joie, once roaming the crowded sidewalks of New York, is now rarely registered on police station blotters. There used to be a hundred or so a night picked up and carried away in patrol wagons to the women's night court.

There were the dowdily and shabbily attired who beckoned from dark hallways as well as the magnificently dressed with brightly carmined lips and heavily kohled eyes who dropped handkerchiefs and indulged sly winks in hotel foyers. There were badger workers, knockout droppers and such. Some of these still carry on, but the list grows smaller.

Almost all these daughters of the oldest profession have given up soliciting. Even in disreputable speakeasies ladies may not enter without male escorts. The war against the street walker in New York has been ceaseless and successful.

Their last stand was the public park, where they sat waiting on benches or dropped down in a seat alongside some prospective victim. The fear of soliciting Good Time Charlies, who turned out to be plainclothes men from Central Office, stopped their park promenades.

Every imaginable trap was set for them. Each night along side streets of Broadway it was a common occurrence to hear a piercing scream and see a white faced, agonizing woman being led by the arm to await the patrol wagon.

There are hundreds of them who migrated to Paris, Vienna and far away Shanghai, where freedom was permitted. The nymph du pave has gained wisdom. Her calling is no longer the vicarious one it used to be. She is today the lone huntress for the good provider.

In this way she is saved from degradation of police courts and other brandings the law provides for her sisterhood. She now often lives in fine apartment houses and mingles in public places once denied her kind.

The grand old lady of the American stage is Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, who, at 82, was featured on Broadway this season in a musical play. It was she who created the role of "Buttercup" in Pinafore.

Old timers are always certain of a rousing reception in the Broadway playhouses. At every performance they may be depended upon to "stop the show."

The West street water front is a cream puff affair with its nattily uniformed officers and seamen from trans-Atlantic liners. It is along Brooklyn and Hoboken docks one sees real seafarers with hair on their chest who go round the Horn in windjammers.

They are the rugged riff-raff who go down to sea in ships. They know all ports of the world and have fought and caroused in every one. They are huskies who are ruled by the belayin' pin and brig—human driftwood manning chiefly the lazy going tramp steamers.

There are Finns, Swedes, Lascars, Liverpool "Limeys," Chinese, Canadians, Australians and what not—scarred, shiftless and defiant. The old tubs wallowing at anchor smell of jute, castor beans, copra and other highly aromatic cargoes.

Seamen who walk up the gangplanks may not step ashore until they will endure the gruelling grind of heavy seas and terrible food for a night's spree, from which they always awaken stone broke and perhaps left behind by their ship.

The Bronx is the only section left in New York where the apartment is still known as "a flat." Yet many apartment houses there are just as fine as those down town.

I often wonder if there are any other cowards in the world who, upon seeing a piece of broken glass, have a horrible fear they will swallow it.

American Names

By DR. FRANK CRANE

I have been wallowing in American names. Here in the Northwest Pacific country names are American. I have been at Seattle, Tacoma, Yakima and Spokane. These names are drawn from the Indian and smack of America. This is the country Bill Thompson should be in. It is 100 per cent American. They don't have any trouble with anything British out here. They are not afflicted with immigration, Italians, Irish, English, Germans or anything but ex-easterners and ex-middle westerners, and most of them have been here long enough to catch the spirit of the mountains.

It is a green country with plenty of rain, as a rule, in the coast cities, and plenty of irrigation further inland. You can raise everything here except the devil. They don't raise much of that. But they have the finest apples and potatoes I ever saw.

Here are a few names that I have copied out of the railroad time table. Do they sound like anything else but America?

They are: Acoma, Amaco, Arapaho, Beowaee, Boise, Cayuse, Bucoda, Chemung, Cherokee, Cheyenne, Chinook, Hiawatha, Ilwaco, Laramie, Latah, Manito, Menoken, Manitoka, Mocomema, Multnomah, Nahcotta, Nampa, Oshkosh, Omaha, Oketo, Pocatella, Saginaw, Shoshone, Tieaska, Topeka, Wahoo, Walla Walla, Wyoming and what have you!

These are better than Philadelphia, Boston, New York, New Jersey and such like.

Why didn't they call New York, Manhattan and Boston, Shawmut, and give them names like Chicago and Kalamazoo? They sound better and they smack of the country more.

After all there is only one class of aboriginals, as far as we know; they are the Indians. Our forefathers found them here when they came and, it is said, they first fell on their knees and then upon the aborigines. They have given almost the whole country English or artificial names. But out here in the Pacific Northwest, places are unspoiled and keep the Indian names.

The white man may have made the East, but God made the West.

As Frank Miller, of Riverside, says: "God made Northern California, and by G—— we made Southern California ourselves." But Southern California is full of Spanish names, not Indian.

Personally, I prefer the Indian.

Sudden, Yes!

WE NOTE a headline in one of the metropolitan papers, which are so prone to laugh at country journalism, to the effect that: "SUDDEN EXPLOSION WRECKS BUILDING."

Some explosions are that way, just as sudden as they can be, and it is all wrong. What this country needs is some scientific triumph which will insure slow, deliberate explosions. These quick ones make people nervous.

Stars and Stripes

If we build a new billion dollar Navy we should see that it is not armed with roll-top desks.

"Tea Menaces England," says headline. It's been doing that ever since the "Boston Tea Party."

A lady of the Stone Age, wearing only a necklace, has been dug up in Czecho-Slovakia. We appear to be rapidly returning to the Stone Age.

Tales That Are Told

The Boy's Idea

THE conscientious father ceased chastising his son.

"And now, my boy, tell me why I have punished you."

The boy went on crying.

"That's it," he said, blubbering with indignation. "First you pound the life out of me and then you don't know what you've done it for!"

Too Much

THERE was a fog on the line, and, consequently the train proceeded very slowly, with frequent little rests here and there.

One man, who appeared to be in a great hurry to reach the terminus, began to get very angry.

As they crawled slowly into the station where usually the train never stopped, he leaned out and called the guard, asking how long they were to be delayed.

"Four minutes," replied the official. "From two to two to two two."

"H'm," snarled the exasperated passenger, "d'ye think you're the whistle, or what?"

Making Use of It

AN aspiring dramatist called upon the producer to whom he had sent his first work. Greeted with a curt nod and a few brief words, he addressed the theatrical "big noise."

"You've had my play for over three weeks now," he said, "and the last time I called you said you hoped to find a suitable use for it."

The producer frowned. He was avery busy man.

"So I did," he began suavely. "And I'll use it as promised. We're starting a new play next week, and I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll tear up your play and we'll use it in the big snow scene."

The Horse for Him

FARMER HAYSEED was notoriously mean and, having purchased a horse at the market sale, he was beginning to have doubts as to whether he had not been too extravagant.

However, he led the animal home and gave it a pail of clean water. The horse sniffed at it with dignified disapproval and walked away.

Next the farmer gave it a feed of corn, but once again his generosity was refused.

"Ah," murmured Hayseed to himself, "if only I was sure ye were a good worker, ye're just the horse I've been lookin' for."
